Coal Bill Passage Seen Likely in Senate Today; 'Must' Program Lagging

Leaders Hammer Away At Last Minute Jam on Calendar.

White House Urges New Legislation

Wealth Levies Delayed; Fight Is Waged on Guffey Plan.

By Robert C. Albright.

Hammering away at the President's "must" calendar, Congress arrived on what it hoped was the eve of adjournment last night with three major bills tied up in conference, and a fourth scheduled for passage today.

But a new threat loomed in the path of adjournment this week-end, when the President last night added ship-subsidy legislation to his list of "must" measures.

The Guffey coal bill apparently was assured of Senate approval, after an amendment by Senator Millard E. Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, aimed at the tax heart of the bill, was defeated, 44 to 29.

A gantlet of modifying amendments, some of which may stick, still faced this NRA of the soft-coal industry, but leadership hopes for passage were buoyed by a time limitation on debate.

White House Active.

As legislative wheels spun at top speed, leaders conferred informally on a "sine die" adjournment date, and tentatively agreed the last gavel should fall by Saturday at latest. Much depended on settlement of utilities, FACA and gold-clause differences, still in conference.

The White House, it appeared, was playing an increasingly active role in the eleventh-hour legislative picture, seeking to iron out existing differences and raising some new issues.

A new complicating factor was injected when Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), New York, received a letter from the President asking that a compromise redraft of the controversial ship subsidy bill be pressed for action this session.

Earlier yesterday the Senate Commerce Committee, of which Copeland is chairman, had voted to table an Administration revision of the measure, when it was argued it might prove detrimental to shipping.

Copeland has called his committee to meet this morning to consider the President's latest request, it was learned. A more liberal ship subsidy bill already has passed the House; but so potent is some of the Senate opposition, consideration at this point may prove a blow to immediate adjournment hopes

TVA Amendments Approved.

Meantime, another New Deal law was sent hurtling toward the White House, as both House and Senate approved the TVA amendments, giving the Tennessee Valley Authority the right to sell surplus power, loan money to municipalities and States to develop their own power systems, and permit TVA duplication of private power lines.

In a last effort to agree on a utilities holding company bill, Senate conferees offered a "compromise" substitute for the holding company "death sentence," giving the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission power to dissolve holding companies not economically or geographically integrated. House conferees turned it down flat.

Leaders were considering a move today to instruct House conferees to accept the "compromise." The White House reputedly was behind it. Some members of the White House group, however, pointing out that the House twice has emphatically rejected the "death sentence," felt that any move to instruct conferees should come from the Senate.

Purposely delayed to cap off the session, the Administration's $250,000,000 tax bill, already agreed to by conferees, was held up until all other bills sought by the White

Long Island Hunts Monkeys As 173 Make Escape From Zoo

Frank Buck Tribe Flees Into Woods and Start a General Uproar.

By the Associated Press.

Massapequa, N. Y., Aug. 21.—A chattering horde of 173 monkeys swung merrily through the Long Island woods tonight after their escape from Frank Buck's "Jungle" park on Sunrise highway.

Nassau County police donned stout leather gloves and set out to "bring 'em back alive" since the big-game trapper was somewhere on the Pacific Ocean returning from Singapore.

Despite warnings that the monkeys scratch and bite with wild abandon when cornered, numerous residents joined in the hunt, lured by offers of cash awards and season passes to the zoo.

Fruit stand operators, fully aware of the predatory habits of the fugitives, placed broomsticks within easy reach and prepared to defend their stores to the last gasp.

Summer cottagers nailed down everything that might take the fancy of a roving monkey and wished they never had read Poe's "Murders in the Rue Morgue."

Police and "jungle" employes emphasized, however, that the monkeys were of the small rhesus variety and were no more dangerous than the angry house cat.

The little creatures swarmed to freedom when one of Buck's employes laid a plank across the moat that surrounds their artificially landscaped park, preparatory to cleaning it out.

Led by a screaming simian called Capone, who had been regarded as a chronic troublemaker, 175 members of the long-tailed colony scampered across the plank before startled employes could remove it.

Two of the animals, which were valued at $50 each, were captured, but the others made for the woods on the opposite side of the Long Island Railroad tracks. About 100 laborers working on the tracks dropped their tools and fled as the shrieking horde bore down on them.

Unity Stressed By Roosevelt In Scout Talk

President Says Unselfish Co-operation Is True Citizenship Basis.

Talking by radio to hundreds of thousands of Boy Scouts all over America, President Roosevelt last night declared that a spirit of unselfish co-operation is a real part of American citizenship.

According to the original plans, President Roosevelt was to have reviewed the Scouts of the United States and 27 other nations gathered in Washington for their jamboree. As a precautionary measure against the spread of infantile paralysis, the meeting was called off.

The President told the Scouts that he was sorry this step was necessary and that he hoped a meeting could be arranged in the future.

Quoting the preamble of the Constitution, President Roosevelt said:

"The success of that Constitution is dependent on the attitude of mind and the degree of the spirit of unselfish co-operation that can be developed in individuals."

Text of Speech.

The text of the President's speech follows:

For more than a year I had been looking forward to taking part in a great National Scout jamboree to be held in Washington. The best laid plans sometimes go awry. A splendid program and a wonderful camp had been prepared for the reception of 30,000 Boy Scouts in the National Capital. You were coming here from every point of the

Col. Knox Hits Roosevelt Act As Autocratic

Asserts President Would Abolish Constitutional Restraints.

By the Associated Press.

Batavia, N. Y., Aug. 21.—Col. Frank Knox, Chicago publisher and possible 1936 Republican presidential candidate, appeared before a gathering of upstate New York Republicans for the first time tonight and declared President Roosevelt's ultimate aim was "substitution of an autocratic government for the type of government the Constitution gave us."

Col. Knox's assertion followed a prediction by State Republican Chairman Melvin C. Eaton that "farm riots which recently failed in Missouri over attempted foreclosures of farms, are but a forerunner of other more serious riots in the farming sections of the country that will follow, and must follow, as a result of New Deal policies."

Calls President Autocrat.

The autocratic aim of the President, Col. Knox said, was proved by President Roosevelt's "assault upon the judicial power of the Government," despite his statement in his inaugural address that the Constitution in is present form was adequate to meet extraordinary needs.

Addressing 10,000 persons attending the annual rally of the Genesee County Republican organization, the Lincoln League, Col. Knox said amidst cheers that the President's "assault upon the judicial power of the Government" was a greater blow at individual liberty than any Woman Navy Worker's Murder On Coast Held 'Perfect Crime'

By the Associated Press.

Long Beach, Calif., Aug. 21.—The mysterious slaying of golden-haired Gladys Glena Fair was described tonight as a "perfect crime."

"We have no clews as to identity of the killer or motives for his gruesome deed," said Capt. of Detectives O. M. Murphy. "We are not able to establish within 10 hours the time of the slaying."

The attractive Mrs. Fair, 34, and an employe of the naval board of inspection and survey for eight years, was found slain yesterday in her bathtub.

She had been shot in the head as she sat in an overstuffed chair. Her body had been dragged to the bathroom and dropped over the rim of the tub. She wore a simple house dress.

Capt. Murphy said officers had talked by telephone to the woman's husband in San Francisco, Evan A. Fair, but he was unable to shed any light on the killing. Mrs. Fair had visited with him over the week-end.

Police searched for a tall, thin, well-dressed man and Mrs. Fair's sister, Mrs. Florence Boykin, for questioning. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wray, who live in an adjoining apartment, told officers they saw a tall man in the hallway Monday night near Mrs. Fair's rooms. They said he fled when they walked into the hall.

Mrs. Fair's sister, police said, was last heard from August 12, when her son, Jack, put her on a bus in Ventura, Calif., to go to San Francisco to enter a rest home. Capt. Murphy said he did not know the name of the rest home and had been unable to get a trace of her whereabouts.

Cotton Trade Aid Is Asked By President

Japanese Accord Asked; Treasury to Reveal 12% Loans' Fate.

By Felix Bruner.

President Roosevelt transmitted to Congress yesterday a report of a committee of four members of the Cabinet recommending a program intended to revive the cotton textile industry. The report, the result of four months study, recommended continuance of processing taxes, an agreement with Japan on importations to the United States, and various plans for production control.

At the same time, it was indicated that the long-awaited announcement as to whether the 12-cent cotton loan would be continued would be made today. Secretary Morgenthau, after a visit to the White House, said progress was being made toward reaching a decision on the loan.

On the amount, if any, of the loan on this year's crop will depend the price of cotton, the trend of export business and to a considerable extent the immediate future of the textile industry.

Meanwhile, the Senate Audit and Control Committee approved expenditure of an additional $50,000 to continue the Senate Agriculture Committee's investigation of last March's sudden decline in the price of cotton.

The Cabinet recommendation for continuance of the processing tax came as a keen disappointment to New England manufacturers of cotton goods. In some quarters it has been stated that this tax was responsible for the loss of the recent Rhode Island congressional election by the Democrats.

Dividing its program into 11 points, the Cabinet committee, which included Secretaries Roper, Hull, Wallace and Perkins, made the following recommendations:

11-Point Program.

1. Limitation on the working hours of machine operations and retirement of surplus and obsolete equipment.
2. An agreement with Japan on limitation of cotton textile shipments to the United States.
3. Continuance of the policy of refusal to subsidize manufacture of textiles for export through sales of Government cotton at a low price for this purpose.
4. Purchase of textiles by the Government in advance of needs to permit manufacture during slack periods.
5. A study of the possibility of increasing uses for cotton textiles.
6. Change from the present practice of trading in cotton on a gross weight basis to that of a net weight basis.
7. An investigation of the hedging requirements of mills looking toward desirable revisions or additions to the functions of the cotton futures market.
8. Continuance of the processing tax.
9. A study of possible improvement in merchandising and marketing methods.
10. Administrative and legislative measures to maintain labor standards.
11. Appointment of a continuing committee to formulate means of carrying out the recommendations and to make further studies.

Reich Flouts Confessional Of Catholics

Will of Der Fuehrer Is Held Supreme Law of Germany.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Aug. 21.—The secrets of the Catholic confessional were placed in jeopardy in Germany today when a Roman Catholic priest, Father Horoba, was fined 500 marks (about $200) for "abuse of the confessional chair."

The state attorney at Gleiwitz prosecuted the priest for allegedly attempting to dissuade a woman during a confession from sending her son into the Nazi labor service.

She afterward told her husband and he denounced the priest.

Pleading that the confessional is secret, Father Horoba—a war veteran with medals—declared himself a supporter of the present regime, but said he had orders from his bishop to see that the religious training of young men in the labor service was not neglected.

"Perfidious Attack on State."

The state attorney, acting on special instructions from Franz Guertner, minister of justice, said this was a clear case of "political Catholicism."

(High German Catholic clericals are meeting now at Fulda to consider the Nazi drive against "political Catholicism." A dispatch today indicated a compromise might be sought.)

Every Catholic, the attorney asserted, should be urged to report such "gross abuse of the confessional chair, constituting a perfidious attack on the state."

The court held that "the belief of the Catholic mother in government labor measures must have been rudely shaken" by what Father Horoba told her and the latter "has gone far beyond his duties as a spiritual adviser."

Balk at "Golden Calf."

Roland Freisler, state secretary in the ministry of justice, in an address before the International Penal Congress said Adolf Hitler's will is the supreme law in Germany. He took sharp issue with the liberal viewpoint in penal procedure.

An ultimatum from Hans Kerrl, minister of religious affairs, led many ministers of the Protestant confessional (oppositoin) synod to fear its dissolution. Kerrl told them they must state by August 23 whether they are prepared to accept state financial control.

A reliable report said the ministers have decided they "will not worship the golden calf."

Berlin, Aug. 21 (AP).—Roland Freisler, state secretary in the Reich ministry of justice, announced today that Reichsfuehrer Hitler's will is the supreme law of Germany.

He made this assertion before the international penal congress, taking sharp issue with the liberal viewpoint in criminal law, penal procedure and the execution of sentences.

"National socialism regards the law as the aggregate of postulates made by the national conscience on a nation and its members with the object of it forcing its claims to a national life," Freisler said. "Owing to a fixed view of life, national socialis mregards this law as founded on an arranged moral basis, while the philosophical mu-

Dominions Wary, Fleet Weak, Downing Street Session Told

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

London, Aug. 21.—Britain mustered its best brains tonight to avert war—not war between Italy and Ethiopia, but war in Europe.

As the foreign affairs committee of the cabinet met at 10 Downing street authorities revealed that the aim of British policy is to localize the impending conflict in East Africa.

No hope was held that the League of Nations can succeed where the three-power Paris conference failed in diverting Premier Benito Mussolini from the road to war.

[Premier Baldwin and his ministers tentatively decided to seek action at Geneva for economic sanctions against Italy should she go to war, according to the Associted Press.—Editor's note.]

"I regard the situation as the most serious we have had to face since 1914," said J. Ramsay MacDonald, lord president of the council and until recently prime minister, as he hurried down from Lossiemouth, Scotland.

Britain's dominions tonight were understood to have refused to pledge themselves in advance to support economic sanctions against Italy.

Consulted regarding the Empire's course in the face of Premier Mussolini's insistance on war with Ethiopia, representatives of overseas governments turned thumbs down on any course which conceivably might lead to military action.

"Move prudently—and don't count on us coming to your rescue if you get into a jam with Mussolini yourselves," was the gist of the dominions' warning.

Without assistance of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and other overseas possessions, Britain could not impose economic sanctions against Italy. Hence reluctance of the colonial Mandatory Provisions of Action Opposed By Roosevelt, House.

President Confers On a Compromise

Seeks Resolution That Will Allow Him to Use Discretion.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Although the Senate yesterday adopted with breath-taking rapidity the neutrality resolution drafted by its Foreign Relations Committee, it appeared extremely doubtful last night whether such legislation would be finally enacted at this session of Congress.

This doubt resulted from an impending clash between the Senate and the Administration over whether the President's authority to place an embargo on arms and munitions shipments to belligerents in a foreign war should be mandatory or discretionary. The Senate resolution is mandatory in the event war breaks out abroad. House leaders were supporting the Administration in opposing the Senate resolution.

Roosevelt in Conference.

President Roosevelt took a hand last night in the situation, conferring for an hour and a half with Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Assistant Secretary of State R. Walton Moore and Chairman Sam D. McReynolds, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs. It was indicated that the group undertook to devise a compromise measure.

McReynolds, leaving the White House, said he would have some suggestions along that line to lay before his committee when it meets at 11 o'clock today to consider the neutrality legislation. The Foreign Affairs chairman steadfastly declined to indicate the President's attitude on the question.

But he made no secret of the fact that he was opposed to the inflexible, mandatory provision of the Senate resolution requiring the President to place an embargo on arms shipments on the outbreak of war abroad. He likewise indicated that any measure which goes to the House floor would resemble more closely the resolution which he has sponsored, and which the State Department approves, than the Senate measure.

Compromises Talked.

"I think there will be some kind of neutrality legislation if the Senate agrees with the House," McReynolds asserted, adding that "the Pittman resolution will be broadened by providing for restrictions on loans to belligerents if we bring out any measures."

McReynolds declined to reveal what he had in mind in the way of a compromise. One possibility was a temporary resolution effective only until Congress reconvenes in January clothing the President with authority to deal as he sees fit with the Italo-Ethiopian situation should those two countries go to war. Another possibility was amendment of the Senate resolution giving the President discretion and flexibility in issuing an embargo proclamation but providing that once he does the ban against arms shipment shall apply with equal force to all belligerents to a conflict.

Administration Opposed.

So violent is the opposition of the State Department to the Senate resolution that there were hints that should the House concur in that legislation the President might veto the measure, rather than let it become law. But this talk was discounted on Capitol Hill, where it was pointed out that should the situation get out of the Administration's hand, the President could not affront public opinion by vetoing the measure.

The result was a sharp behind-the-scenes struggle last night, with the Administration seeking to stiffen the opposition of House leaders to the Senate resolution on the one hand, and the Senate neutrality bloc openly engaged in campaigning among House members in behalf of their resolution.

The Administration, it was indicated, is willing, even anxious for

Austria Lines Up With Italy Over Ethiopia

Official Organ of Fascists Praises Mussolini's Plans for War.

By the Associated Press.

Vienna, Aug. 21.—Austria stepped to the side of Benito Mussolini today in his far-reaching dispute with Ethiopia.

The newspaper Weiner Zeitung, official organ of Austria's Fascist government, which Mussolini has fathered, placed a banner line on an editorial praising Il Duce and his African program.

Il Duce, the newspaper asserted, "is not a hypocrite and openly admits his hunger—hunger for land, new sources of wealth."

Austria's worries about what Nazi Germany will do should Mussolini engage in war in far-off Africa were reflected, however, in the editorial.

"On account of Ethiopia there has been a tendency almost to forget Europe," said the paper. "The conviction must prevail throughout Europe that the Occident is, after all, a thousand times more important, than any barbaric organization on the dark continent."

Rome, Aug. 21 (AP).—Italy's military consciousness grew steadily tonight as the extent to which the energies of the nation are bound up in preparations for an East African war became increasingly clear.

The streets of Rome continually responded to the measured tread of detachments of troops moving through the capital on their way to embarkation points.

Emperor Mobilizes Troops to Defend Frontier Fro mInvasion.

Addis Ababa, Aug. 21.—Emperor Haile Selassie, weeping bitter tears of anguish, warned the world tonight his imminent struggle with Italy may touch off a conflict that will threaten "the very existence of humantiy itself."

Mobilization Ordered.

[In London the Daily Mail reported, according to the United Press, that Emperor Selassie of Ethiopia has decided to order a general mobilization of troops against the threat of Italian attack. Decision to throw the Black Empire's war machine into high gear reportedly followed a conference between the Emperor and his tribal chieftains and advisers at the palace. There was no official announcement after the meeting, the paper said. Haile Selassie has withheld ordering mobilization as long as there remained hope of peace efforts succeeding.—Editor's Note.]

Fleet to Stage 1936 Maneuvers In Waters West of Canal Zone

The United States fleet will hold its 1936 maneuvers off the western end of the Panama Canal, according to a statement made yesterday by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Henry L. Roosevelt.

"Following the well-established custom of holding annual fleet maneuvers in different strategic areas and contiguous American territorial waters, fleet problem No. 17 next spring will be held in the Panama-Western Central America coast area," Roosevelt said.

"It is the intention for the United States fleet as a unit to leave West Coast bases the latter part of April, 1936," the Assistant Secretary continued.

"Upon completion of the problem about the end of May, it is probable that some units of the fleet will transit the Panama Canal and opportunity will be taken for individual units to visit northern ports."

Roosevelt revealed that consideration is also being given to having one division of heavy cruisers visit a few countries of South America, returning to the West Coast in December, 1936.

Asked whether protests in the Japanese press against holding this year's maneuvers in the Puget Sound-Hawaii area prompted retention of the fleet in waters close home next year, Roosevelt referred the question to Admiral William H. Standley, chief of operations.

"Admiral F. B. Upham, commander of the Asiatic fleet, did not find any Japanese criticism when he visited Japan," Admiral Standley said.

Roosevelt Aid's Stock Records Facing Scrutiny

Cities Service Company Drawn Into Inquiry on Lobbying.

By the Associated Press.

An intensive campaign against the Administration utilities bill—enlisting even the aid of filling station attendants—was charged up against the Cities Service Co. yesterday by the Senate lobby committee.

From William B. S. Winans, comptroller of the company, Chairman Black (Democrat), Alabama, drew an estimate that more than $200,000 had been spent and an agreement that a "misstatement" was made to employes in urging them to solicit telegrams to Washington expressing vehement opposition to the measure.

In the House, coincidentally, a demand was made by Representative Pettengill (Democrat), Indiana, that Thomas G. Corcoran, Administration aid who helped draft the holding company abolition measure, be questioned on his stock market operations.

"Corcoran Was Plunger."

Pettengill, who fought abolition, said Corcoran has admitted plunging in the market and winning and losing small fortunes, adding:

"I would like to have an investigation as to whether he is in the stock market today, especially in utility stocks."

The Indianan said he could name House members threatened and intimidated in connection with public works projects. Representative Brewster (Republican), Maine, once charged Corcoran with threatening to hold up the Passamaquoddy project in Maine unless he should support abolition. Corcoran denied the charge.

Pettengill also linked Corcoran with a speech put in the record by Representative Eicher (Democrat), Iowa, which he said accused himself and Huddleston (Democrat), Alabama, of delaying the utility bill to permit organization of a lobby against it.

Before the Senate committee, Winans also testified that after the Roosevelt Administration took office, Arthur Mullen, then Democratic national committeeman from Nebraska, became the company's Washington representative. Previously its agent here had been Wade Ellis, a former Republican Assistant Attorney General.

Company Politics Shown.

Senator Gibson (Republican), Vermont, who usually just sits and listens, pointedly made the record show the politics of the company's representatives as related to the parties in power. Winans vigorously protested that such considerations played no part in the employment of either.

In addition, Gibson again brought in the name of Philip H. Gadsden, marshal of the power industry's fight against the utilities bill, and a statement that he had been in Washington opposing the Teapot Dome investigation and the Federal Trade Commission study of utility companies.

"He seems to have been a perpetual lobbyist," Gibson remarked.

"And alarmist," said Senator Minton (Democrat), Indiana.

"Yes, and alarmist," said Gibson.

Howard C. Hopson, dictator of Associated Gas & Electric, enjoyed a brief respite from the witness stand.

From him, however, the committee learned that the Internal Revenue Bureau is checking over the books of some of the system's companies and that his own personal income tax return is undergoing its fifth re-examination.

In questioning Winans, Black emphasized that committee investigators had been denied access to some records of Cities Service. He threatened a subpena. Winans said the company had no desire to impede the committee and promised further co-operation.

"Did it oppose or favor the Wheeler-Rayburn bill, do you remember?" Black inquired.

"I assume that it opposed the bill, but I have never read the newspaper," Winans replied with a smile.

Cab Union to Seek Order Against PUC

Berand Henning Deeclare Siuts Will Be Filed Today

A spokesman for the Cab Drivers Protective Union last night said attorneys for the union were prepared to file injunction proceedings in District Supreme Court today asking that the Public Utilities Commission be restrained from enforcing low cab rate schedules in the District.

The announcement, made by Bernard Henning, union president, followed receipt of notice by two union members directing them to appear before the commission August 28 at a hearing to show cause why their cab licenses should not be revoked.

In defiance of a commission order, the drivers, J. W. Goodman and A. Sivers, and 10 other union members, have continued to operate at a 20-40-60-80 schedule of zone rates. The commission has fixed rates for the District at the prevailing 20-30-50-70.

Resettlement Tenants to Get Fixed Income

Tugwell Deecides on a New Policy, Cites Problem to Has Arisen Lately.

By the Associated Press.

Rexford G. Tugwell disclosed yesterday that he has decided upon a distinct change of policy for new suburban resettlement projects, intended to insure income facilities for residents.

After testifying before a Senate committee that a "serious problem" has risen in several instances where community residents are without means of income, the resettlement administrator said:

"We will complete the projects under way and then we will begin in a somewhat new way."

Projects Completed.

Eleven projects turned over to the resettlement administration by the former subsistence homestead division of the Interior Department were reported completed. In each of these residents were said to be in part employed by nearby industries.

However, Tugwell said that residents in others, now receiving employment in construction work, will have no means of income when the buildings are completed.

"I have ideas I hope can be worked out to provide employment after the communities are completed," Tugwell said.

He added, however, that when new projects are planned, they definitely will be either agricultural communities or low-cost housing projects in areas where people are assured of employment.

Income Required.

In some current projects, residents were required to have a fixed annual income, usually of from $500 to $900 a year. Gardening operations also have been planned.

Some of the projects under construction, Tugwell said, were planned with the hope that the labor available would attract small industries. He mentioned specifically the Reedsville, W. Va., community. But he declared the industries have not been moved to the homesteads.

However, Tugwell said he found people at Reedsville living "very happily" and he was convinced the community provided a great improvement for the residents over their former living conditions.

AAA Quails Before Vast Job Of Checking U. S. Potato Crop

Amendment Slipped Through Saddles New Deal Agency With Bigger Task Than Cotton and Tobacco Control, Administrator Declares..

By the United Press.

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration awaited fearfully last night the arrival of the day when it will have to check and stamp virtually all the potatoes grown in the United States.

A law that slipped through as an amendment to the AAA bill, now awaiting President Roosevelt's signature, provides crop control for potatoes and imposes a tax on any person who grows more than his allotment.

"It is a tough job," said Chester Davis, AAA administrator. "This is a bigger job than the cotton and tobacco control programs combined, and if you can think of any other, throw them in, too."

One difficulty is in deciding how much each potato grower shall be allowed to raise. The average potato farm is about 1 acre. There are more than 6,000,000 potato farms in the United States and half of them report their production. But the total number of growers, including owners and tenants, is unknown.

The AAA will have to find out.

In general, the AAA is in favor of potato control, but it thinks the administrative provisions of this bill are filled with danger. For instance, a fine of $1,000 or one year imprisonment is provided for anybody who fails to stamp a package of potatoes. Enforcement of that alone would require a small army.

The provision is the work of Representative Lindsay C. Warren (Democrat), North Carolina. He had this to say in defense of it:

"It was started by potato growers, approved by the growers in 33 States who read it line by line and attended meetings to discuss it. Its preparation was collaborated in by at least 25 or 30 members of the House.

"It calls for no processing tax.

"It simply provides that the size of the crop shall be determined by the Secretary of Agriculture. Allotments are then made to States and individuals, telling them how many potatoes they can grow. It is based on past performances. It provides that after a man gets his allotment, he must pay a tax if he then sells in excess of that allotment."

The law, during the current crop year, is mandatory. Growers have no recourse, except through the courts. In the second year, however, and all succeeding years, a referendum must be held, in exactly the same way the Bankhead cotton act operates, to permit the farmers to say whether they want the law continued or abolished.

Chambersburg Plans Auxiliary Water Line

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chambersburg, Pa., Aug. 21.—Preliminary steps to install an auxiliary water line from Chambersburg to the source of the town's water supply in the South Mountains, 10 miles distant, were taken last night by the borough council.

The proposed project would cost $300,000. The council authorized Manager of Utilities J. Hase Mowrey to retain the services of an engineer to prepare plans for submission to the PWA.

If the proposal is approved, the town would be compelled to float a $150,000 bond issue.

Cotton Process Tax Seen Doom Of North Mills

New England Described as "The Forgotton Land" Under New Deal Rule.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 21.—The textile industry in New England, employing some 90,000 and almost the sole support of such once thriving cities as Lawrence, Fall River, and Manchester, N. H., faces gradual and almost certain extinction if the processing tax is continued as recommended today by the President's special Cabinet committee.

This was the concensus today of 10 leading New England textile manufacturers who said that now the industry's only hope for discontinuance of the processing tax of about $21 on each bale of cotton purchased rested with the Supreme Court. That judicial body is expected to hand down a ruling on the constitutionality of the tax in October when it decides the Hoosic Mills case.

The report of the Cabinet committee, which, according to Gov. Bridges of New Hampshire, indicates that New England is "the forgotten land," flatly rejected the request of the textile industry of New England.

Gov. Curley Is Cheerful.

Gov. Curley, however, was cheerful about the findings, declaring that they would "prove most helpful."

"The prevailing impression appears to be," he said, "that the ills of the cotton textile industry are of recent origin and only manifested during the Administration of President Roosevelt. The contrary is true. The ills were in existence for 10 years prior to his assuming the office of the President of the United States.

"Without question, mills all over New England will be forced to close if the processing tax remains," said the president of one of the largest textile mills. "When we are forced to raise the price of our product because of the processing tax it restricts public demand. This severely hits marginal mills, and that's those of New England, because in addition to this tax they must pay higher wages."

Other manufacturers charged Secretaries Roper, Hull and Perkins with being dominated by the fourth member of the committee, Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, exponent of the processing tax, and critic of the New England textile industry, which he says is impotent and whining. The characterized the report as "a farce," said it was "evasive, doging and without the courage to face honestly the industry's problems." Moreover, almost all of the mill owners declared thatthey had expected such a report, and that its effect was to leave the industry in "status quo," without a single solution for the industry's many ills.

"The Cabinet's action brings New Hampshire face to face with crisis," said Gov. Bridges. "Within the next three of four weeks it is possible that the Amoskeag mills at Manchester, largest mills of their kind in the world, may be forced to close. This would cripple the State's largest city.

"The attitude of the Administration may work hardship on the tens of thousands employed in the textile industdy in New England. The time calls for decisive action within the industry itself in order that destruction may be avoided. During the campaign we heard much of the forgotten. The New Deal is making New England the forgotten land."

"It is now quite plain to all who can or will read that the cotton textilei ndustry, like industry in general, can expect no constructive aid toward recovery from Washington," said Dexter Stevens, vice president of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers.

"The so-called Cabinet committee report, perfectly timed to be of little assistance to the cotton textile industry as possoble, quite obviously could have been, and probably was, written weeks and weeks ago."

Senate Passage Of Guffey Bill Forecast Today

House have been shoved under the wire.

An effort meanwhile was made by the Administration to get House Judiciary Committee reconsideration of its action Tuesday, shelving the Walsh bill to write NRA wage and hour regulations into Government contracts. Every influence was brought to bear to get this measure, which previously had been passed by the Senate, to the floor of the House.

The President's letter to Copeland yesterday, seeking to pave the way to ship subsidy approval this session, recommended a basis for agreement between opposing drafts of ship subsidy legislation pending before the committee.

The committee already had reported a bill, representing largely the views of a special committee with which Commerce Department officials had co-operated. More recently, Karl A. Crowley, Solicitor for the Postoffice Department, had worked out a measure in collaboration with Senator Hugo L. Black, of Alabama, seeking to eliminate mail-contract abuses Black uncovered in his ocean-mail contract investigation.

Black wants to terminate existing contracts 90 days after Congress reconvenes next session, and to this end was drafting a special resolution yesterday. The Black-Crowley draft of the ship subsidy bill would terminate contracts next June, and the President supported this position in his letter to Copeland, suggesting other bases of accord between the conflicting measures. The White House favors removing dispensation of shipping aid from the Postoffice Department to an independent agency, appointed by the President, a shift favored in virtually all drafts of the measure.

Guffey Bill Debated.

As the Guffey coal bill rode toward a final vote, Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, archfoe of monopolies, offered an amendment removing anti-trust law exemptions from coal producers who co-operate in the new soft-coal set-up. The amendment was approved without a record vote when Interstate Commerce Committee spokesmen accepted it.

Then Senator Tydings put forward his amendment to strike out the 15 per cent tax imposed on coal at the mine doors, with an admonition that it was "a tax on the poor, even on relief workers." Although a strong conservative bloc lined up behind the Marylander, his amendment was rejected by a 15-vote margin.

Tydings countered at once with an amendment to decrease the tax to 5 per cent. He picked up some votes, but this likewise was defeated, 40 to 36. Undaunted, Tydings served notice he will move today to reduce the tax to 10 per cent.

Throughout the day, Senate conservatives directed a running fire of criticism at the Guffey measure. Senator William H. Dieterich (Democrat), Illinois, called it a "coal baron's measure" that would extend monopolies founded on cheap labor in West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

"I am opposed to this bill because it will be harmful to the business and industry and labor of my State, and that applies equally to every State in the Union except West Virginia and Pennsylvania," he said.

"If this bill had a correct title, it would be, 'An act whereby West Virginia and Pennsylvania will control the coal markets of the United States.'"

Minimum Price Assailed.

He objected particularly to inclusion in a single "minimum price" area of all of the coal mines from Pennsylvania to Iowa, with 90 per cent of the total output.

Senator Tydings said contention of proponents of the measure that it would provide more work for miners was "sheer camouflage."

"There is no reason on earth why such a tax will make more work," said Tydings. "It will make less. When you put a tax upon coal, you increase the price and decrease the consumption and throw men out of work. Industrial firms will turn to oil and will accentuate rather than relieve the grief of the miners.

"This is a tax upon the fuel of the poor, even upon the 20,000,000 persons upon relief. It will increase the cost of the Government in supporting those on relief. You might as well put a tax upon bread as to put a tax upon coal."

Senator Walter F. George (Democrat), of Georgia, charged the bill was an effort to regulate fields "completely outside the field of Federal control" and an attempt to "ride roughshod over the will of the minority."

"Outside of political circles, I doubt if there are five reputable lawyers in the country who will say this bill is constitutional," he said.

Guffey Predicts Chaos.

Senator Joseph F. Guffey (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, on the other hand, insisted his measure is constitutional, and predicted the soft-coal industry would fall into "chaos" without it.

"America, as an industrial nation, is dependent for its very life upon coal," he said. "This is a national problem, therefore, and one that must be accepted and settled by the Nation. Fifty years of bituminous coal mining has proven that the industry cannot regulate itself either for the good of the operator, or his employes, or for the country."

Willingness of Guffey, and other sponsors of the measure, to accept the Borah amendment, eliminating anti-trust law exemptions, was attributed to hope that the amendment may be eliminated in conference. Friends of the amendment said that if Congress didn't knock out the exemption the Supreme Court would. Friends of the bill said the measure was not endangered by the amendment.

The Administration last night still had not given up hope for the utility holding company bill, despite complete lack of agreement among conferees. Following the break-up of yesterday's conference, Senators Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, and Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky (Democrats), conferred with the President.

In one quarter it was stated that the President is favorable to the "compromise" framed yesterday by Senate conferees, but is not especially concerned whether the bill passes this session or next. Despite Wheeler's statement that "there probably will be no more conferences," talk persisted of a move to instruct conferees.

Ready for Signature.

The Senate TVA amendments went whisking to the White House for signature early yesterday, after 259-to-90 House roll call approval, and Senate adoption without a record vote.

The measure bulwarks the TVA's authority to sell surplus power, challenged by Judge W. I. Grubb, of Birmingham, Ala. Rates fixed on TVA power will be offered as a "yardstick" for determining fair charges elsewhere. The bill also will permit the agency to sell by-products of its Tennessee Valley operations, including large quantities of phosphoric acid to farmers.

Other provisions of the measure call for TVA approval of all dams on the Tennessee and its tributaries, a 9-foot channel for the Tennessee, TVA regulation of power resale rates, TVA construction of power lines regardless of existing facilities, a $50,000,000 TVA bond issue, and a $1,000,000 reserve fund that could be drawn on by the agency without congressional say-so.

Adjournment in Doubt.

Conference entanglements on the utilities, FACA and gold-clause bills, and prospective Administration moves to shake loose from an unsympathetic House Judiciary Committee the Walsh bill to write wages and hours regulations into Government contracts, led to some adjournment pessimism by House leaders.

Senate Majority Leader Robinson still insisted that the Senate may be "ready to quit" tonight, but he doubted the House could conclude before tomorrow. Some veteran observers at the Capitol, on the other hand, were placing their bets on a deferred adjournment, late Saturday night or sometime next week.

Cabinet Group Cotton Report Given Congress

obsolescence are serious problems in the industry, the committee suggested that withdrawal of excess equipment, financed by industry, "should be controlled by adequate regulation in the public interest."

Japanese Agreement Asked.

In reference to importations from Japan, the committee said:

"Finding from the facts before us that the domestic market has been disturbed by recent imports of cotton textiles from Japan, which, though small in proportion to total national production, have nevertheless shown sudden and unusual increase in certain countable cloths, we recommend that to deal with this situation steps be taken to control these imports, preferably by means of voluntary and friendly agreement with Japan on limitations of shipments of cotton products to the American market."

The committee said this was recommended because the tariff provision of the national recovery act is no longer operative "and because the only available mechanism under the flexible tariff provisions would be broader than the problem sought to be dealt with." The report pointed out that other and similar agreements have been made with Japan.

In connection with export business, the committe said a recommendation had been made that cotton financed by the Government be turned into manufactured goods for export and that upon exportation an allowance of 7 cents a pound be made to the manufacturers.

"This proposal would in effect subsidize cotton textile exports," the committee said. "In view of the possible retaliatory measures which might be taken in foreign countries against such subsidy, this suggestion is not approved.

Processing Tax Backed.

"Furthermore, stabilization of the currencies of the world, a reduction in trade barriers at home and abroad, and attention to the special needs of foreign markets by American producers should lead to recovery of at least some part of the foreign textile markets which have been lost."

In reference to the processing tax, the committee said:

"During the economic emergency as reflected by existing price disparities, we recommend against the discontinuance of the processing tax, which, after due consideration of the alternatives, we regard as the most practical among the available means for securing to the cotton farmers of the Nation a return from cotton equivalent in terms of purchasing power to that which existed in the prewar period and which has enabled them to increase their purchases of the products of other industries, including the cotton industry, thereby benefitting the workers in these industries."

In recommending a further study of the industry, the committee pointed out that "the problem of regional wage differentials must be studied in conjunction with the general problem of furthering the economic development of low income agricultural areas."

In the meantime, the Associated Press reported from New Orleans that Judge Wayne G. Borah in Federal District Court orally upheld the processing tax provisions of the agricultural adjustment act by the dismissal of three injunctive applications filed by New Orleans cigar manufacturers.

Secretary Wallace was in Ames, Iowa, for a regional conference on farm administration problems. Other conferences will be in Logan, Utah; Athen, Ga., and Storrs, Conn. Wallace will attend all of them.

United States textile mills in July reached the lowest mark in production this year, climaxing a steady decline from a peak set in February, it was revealed last night in a report by the Bureau of the Census of the Commerce Department.

In February operation of the Nation's spindles was figured at 100.2 per cent of ordinary capacity. In July it had fallen to 73.5 per cent.

While a similar decline in 1934 was taken to indicate some of this year's loss was seasonal, July operation this year was slightly lower than that of the same month a year ago, when operation was 74.3 per cent of capacity.

Monthly percentages showing the decline this year:

February, 100.2; March, 92.9; April, 83.3; May, 83.4, and June, 74.6.

With 30,110,078 spindles in the country, only 22,312,382 were operated at some time during July, almost 8,000,000 standing idle the entire month, the report showed.

Inquest Holds Man in Killing Of Girl Lodger

Murder Charge Is Placed Against Hisey; Suicide Intention, He Says.

In a drab, gray room at the District Morgue yesterday, Charles Frederick Hisey, 52, nervous and fidgety, heard a coroner's jury hold him responsible for the death of Miss Virgie Lyttle, 26-year-old department store clerk, wounded fatally Tuesday at the Hisey home, 414 Rittenhouse street northwest.

The jury deliberated less than 20 minutes after listening to an hour of testimony purporting to picture the shooting as accidental. Hisey, a printer, was ordered held for action of the grand jury and was booked at police headquarters on a murder charge.

At the advice of his counsel, Robert J. Lynch, Hisey did not take the witness stand. His story, however, was related to the jury by Detective Sergeant John W. Wise, of the homicide squad. In a statement to police, the murder suspect declared that Miss Lyttle was shot accidentally when she attempted to wrest a gun from his hands, Wise testified.

Suicide Aim Is Alibi.

According to Hisey's version of the shooting, as told to police, he asked Miss Lyttle into his room and handed her a note. He requested she give the note to his wife, Mrs. Eunice Hisey. The note allegedly told of his suicide intentions. Miss Lyttle refused. Hisey drew a revolver and the young woman tried to grab it from him. In the scuffle which ensued, the gun was fired and Miss Lyttle was shot through the heart.

Medical examiners testified that Miss Lyttle was shot twice—once in the left chest and again below the collar bone.

Miss Girlie Garrett, roommate of the slain girl, told of hearing Hisey and Miss Lyttle apparently arguing in an upstairs room. She said she heard several words, then Miss Lyttle scream, and finally two shots.

Heard, "Listen, Virgie."

Hisey, she testified, then said, "Listen, Virgie.' A moment later the girl screamed and the shots were heard. Miss Garrett said that she, Virgie Lyttle, Esther Lyttle, her sister, and Mrs. Hisey were preparing to leave for work shortly after 8 a. m. She said she went upstairs to her room and was followed by Virgie Lyttle and Hisey.

Hisey, she said, insisted on talking to Miss Lyttle "privately." He grabbed her arm as they reached the top of the stairs and pulled her into his bedroom. The argument followed.

During testimony describing how Miss Lyttle's body was found, her aged father, Jefferson D. Lyttle, of Hopewell, Va., collapsed and was escorted from the room. He later told questioners he was the father of 13 children and had never before been out of Hopewell.

Miss Esther Lyttle, sister of the dead girl, was unable to testify and was carried from the inquest room in tears. Mrs. Hisey stood upon her constitutional rights and refused to take the witness stand.

Admits Loan Attempt.

Hisey, according to Detective Sergt. Wise, admitted he attempted to loan Miss Lyttle $200 during their conversation in the upstairs room. He said he wanted her to pay back money she had allegedly borrowed from a boy friend.

Reports that the shooting was an outgrowth of an "affair" between Hisey and Miss Lyttle were denied by witnesses.

"Mr. Hisey treated all of us just like daughters," Miss Garrett testified. "There was nothing wrong in his attentions to Virgie."

Pathetic as he stood in a downpour of rain outside the morgue, Miss Lyttle's father, a farmer, said:

"I don't understand all this. I have no hard feelings toward Mr. Hisey, but how did it happen—what happened?"

Policeman Robert T. Talbert, of the Sixth Precinct, shot in the arm by Hisey when he answered a "trouble" call at the Hisey home, was reported improved at Walter Reed Hospital last night.

Court Permits Firm To Boast Over Quins

Toronto, Ontario, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—The initial skirmish to decide whose corn sirup was first used by the Dionne quintuplets was won by the Canada Stark Co. today.

A plea for injunction by the St. Lawrence Starch Co. to restrain the Stark Co. from advertising their sirup as first in the Dionnes' diet and responsible for their growth and development was refused by the supreme court. The case will go before a trial judge to decide the validity of the Stark organization's claims.

'Dreams' Cause Death Of Arizona Prisoner

Florence, Ariz., Aug. 21 (AP).—George Beam's scheme of producing "pleasant dreams" apparently cost him his life.

Eugene Shute, assistant State penitentiary warden, said today he learned that Beam, 28-year-old slayer, had been dampening a handkerchief with a cleansing fluid and inhaling the fumes in his cell, saying it produced "dreams." Yesterday Beam was found dead—a dampened handkerchief over his face.

Choir Singer Indicted In Drowning of Wife

Fitchburg, Mass., Aug. 21 (AP).—Newell P. Sherman, 26, former church choir singer and scoutmaster, today was indicted by the Worcester County grand jury for murder in the first degree in the drowning of his 23-year-old wife, Alice. Sherman, allegedly infatuated with a girl of 17, was accused of overturning a canoe to drown his wife, mother of two small children.

Farmers' Guns Guard Workers In Corn Strike

Illinois Landowners Patrol as Harvest Hands Demand More Pay.

By the Associated Press.

Charleston, Ill., Aug. 21.—Embattled broomcorn farmers, carrying shotguns and pitchforks, patrolled their fields today, after turning back strikers who sought to entice away their harvest hands.

A vigilante organization, numbering about 300 landowners, rallied quickly at the Joe Driscoll farm this morning when informed that 100 strikers had ordered 40 workers out of the field.

Yesterday at the same place, some 100 workers had fled when strike sympathizers, armed with rifles, curtly bade them to quit working.

Protected by the landowners' armament, however, the workers continued today at their task—harvesting one of Cole County's most important crops.

The landowners insisted the strikers' demands for pay increases were not justified, although this year's harvest scale is somewhat lower than last's.

"The crop is standing straight, where last year it was beaten down by wind and rain" one farmer explained. "A man can make $3 to $4 a day with the same effort he put in last year, despite the lower hourly scale."

The strikers want a 15-cent increase from the prevailing rate of 30 cents an hour.

Sheriff Roy Clark, who was watching the situation closely, said he believed he would be able to maintain order.

The vigilante group indicated it was prepared to protect the crop until the cutting was completed, probably in a week or ten days.

Rise in Gas Taxes Hit by Auto Group

$32,000,000 Boost Mulcts Drivers, Association Says.

Revenue collectors have a "happy hunting ground" in the Nation-wide field of gasoline taxes, the American Automobile Association reported yesterday, following a survey of tax increases by various State Legislatures.

According to the association's report, a total increase of $32,000,000 a year in gasoline taxes has been voted by Legislatures in various States throughout the country. Officials of the automobile club declared:

"Our survey of action by this year's sessions of the State Legislatures shows three trends as far as motor taxation is concerned. First, a continued tendency to mulct the motorists through the gas tax; second, continued large scale diversion of motor tax revenue to other than road purposes, and, third, a trend toward stabilization of registration fees on passenger cars at lower levels."

Thomas P. Henry, president of the association, pointed out that five States increased the gasoline tax by 1 cent a gallon. He named them as Connecticut, Delaware, Nebraska, New York and Pennsylvania.

Bodies of 3 Found In Flood-Cut Rift

Santa Fe, N. Mex., Aug. 21 (AP).—Bodies of a man and two boys were recovered today from the mud of an arroyo that was cut in the Santa Fe-Albuquerque highway by a cloudburst last night.

Searchers were digging into tons of rock and silt in an effort to locate the bodies of two other persons, believed killed when their automobile plunged into the washout.

'Strike' Tactics Scored by Head Of Housewives

Mrs. Fribley, President of League, Decries Boycott as Remedy.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—Mrs. Wilbur Fribley, president of the Housewives' League of America, today assailed the use of "strikes and boycotts" as futile in campaigns against rising living costs.

"Housewives don't like strikes and the violence that often accompanies them," she added. "Neither do they like the idea of a boycott, or even use of the word."

The women of the country, said the league head, have a more effective weapon at their disposal—use of substitutes for costly groceries.

That, she said, is what is happening on a huge scale as meat prices go up. Other items grace the family menu in its place and will continue to until the effect of the widespread but unconcerted displacement puts high quotations on the slide.

"But strikes imitating labor walkouts don't help things a bit," she said. "It's only the small merchants who feel the effect of such 'strikes' and they need every penny they can get to keep open these days.

Last winter Mrs. Fribley predicted women would "revolt" against advancing prices by buying less meat and finding substitutes for other costly foods.

As she expressed her views, however, delegations of Chicago and Detroit women carried protests against the high cost of meat to the packing district. They demanded a 20 per cent price reduction.

About 80 in number, the women were met by representatives of Swift's, Armour's and other packing concerns, and were told the high prices were due principally to last year's drought.

"The drought is just a convenient alibi for you packers," the women replied.

Cure of 'Hopeless' Cancer Cases Seen

Chemicals Society Reports on Use of Phosphates.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, Aug. 21.—The apparent cure of a few "hopeless" cancer cases by the administration of lead phosphate to a degree producing lead intoxication was reported to the American Chemical Society today.

Dr. A. E. Osterberg, Dr. J. A. Bargen and Dr. B. T. Horton, of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., said favorable results were obtain in 14 out of 85 instances.

Out of the 14, however, 7 also had been given the irradiation type of treatment. Consequently the lead phosphate treatment was credited with achieving the results in only 7 of the cases.

The procedure involved administering a quantity of lead phosphate during a period of approximately ten days in amounts sufficient to produce acute lead poisoning. This was on the theory that a heavier concentration of the lead occurs in the malignant cells of a tumor than in the normal tissue, and many times results in necrosis or sloughing away of the tumor.

Hungry Chickens Used To Nab Boll Weevils

Savannah, Ga., Aug. 21 (AP).—A chicken's appetite for insects gave Victor B. Jenkins, banker-farmer, the idea for constructing his boll weevil execution chamber.

Jenkins was worried because the cotton cleaner at his gin at Blundale sent boll weevils back to freedom along with trash blown from the cleaner exhaust.

So he inducted the exhaust pipe into a closely screened coop in which he placed 20 healthy and hungry chickens, Rhode Island Reds and Dominiques. The plan worked. The chickens gobble up the weevils. No longer can the insects fly back to fields for more devastation.

1908 Murder Charged to Man In Missouri

'Talking Relatives' Blamed for Revealing Secret Kept 27 Years.

By the Associated Press.

Poplar Bluff, Mo., Aug. 21.—"Talking relatives" robbed Oscar Prince of his 27-year-old secret and led to his arrest for a killing that happened in 1908, his captor said today.

Prince, 52, who came to Carter County, Mo., 22 years ago as Oscar Parkison and became a prosperous, respected farmer, was arrested yesterday by Sheriff C. D. McKinney, of Carter County, and turned over to Kentucky authorities. They held a warrant charging him with killing Ira Isom, 16, at Crockett, Ky., 27 years ago.

The sheriff today said he had overheard a conversation between two farmers and that one of them said Parkison "had killed a man back in Kentucky and nothing had ever been done about it."

With the meager information, obtained three months ago, the sheriff gradually unraveled the past of "Parkison." He learned the farmer once lived in Morgan County, Ky., and wrote authorities there.

"Within a few days I heard from them," he said. "The present officers did not remember the murder, but talked to some of the older residents and found old files. A warrant was sent to me and I served it on Parkison while he was out making ties.

"He said he had worried lots about the crime and about being a fugitive. He appeared relieved considerably after he confessed."

Prince yesterday admitted his identity as the fugitive. To Sheriff McKinney he said Isom was shot in the back of the head after he cautioned Prince to be quiet and not disturb his mother, who was ill.

"I was drunk," Deputy Sheriff Roland Stacy, who came here from Kentucky, quoted Prince as saying. "It has preyed on my mind. I'm relieved now that I'm not a fugitive from the law."

Sheriff McKinney said his investigation revealed that several members of "Parkison's" family knew of the shooting of young Isom. "In my opinion," he said, "the story leaked out through relatives."

Threat Sent Hoover Branded as a Fake

Justice Department Agents Complete Check-up.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, Aug. 21.—Department of Justice agents put a "phoney" stamp tonight on a telegram addressed to J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, by a person giving the name of Alvin Karpis, the Nation's most-sought-after desperado.

R. George Harvey, head of the bureau's Philadelphia office, said "it looks like there's nothing to it. It's been checked by us thoroughly and it looks like a phoney."

Harvey said the message was telephoned to the telegraph company office today and did not threaten Hoover's life.

Earlier reports said the telegram was placed personally by a man who paid for it and walked away. The Federal agents swung into action on what Harvey termed a "complaint" and while the investigation was under way all sources of information were bottled up.

In Washington, Hoover was silent. Yesterday he refused to talk about a threat which Karpis sent him in a letter from Dayton, Ohio. It was posted about a month ago.

12,000 Movies Darken In Tribute to Rogers

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—Motion picture screens in more than 12,000 theaters in all sections of the United States will be darkened for 2 minutes tomorrow afternoon as a tribute to Will Rogers, it was announced tonight by the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America.

Because of the difference in time, the association officials stated, it will not be possible to darken the screens simultaneously to coincide with the hour of the funeral services for the humorist-actor.

Brief ceremonies are planned by many theaters, it was said.

Esthonian Criminal Dies by Hemlock Cup

Reval, Esthonia, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—A 24-year-old Esthonian, convicted of criminal assault upon a schoolteacher, today was executed after the fashion of Socrates' death in 399 B. C.—by the hemlock cup.

The strange mode of death was elected by Paul Voigemast in preference to hanging.

The warden of the Reval Military Prison handed the cup to Voigemast, who took it without trembling, gulped down the powerful dose of cyanide of potassium and dropped with a gasp to the floor.

Little Entente Aloof Toward African Crisis

Danubian States Hope to Stay Out of Picture; Britain Eyes Them.

By the Associated Press.

London, England, Aug. 21.—British eyes, anxiously trained on current cabinet meetings and the forthcoming session of the League of Nations Council, turned also toward the "Little Entente" today.

The opinion prevailed in informed circles that the attitude toward the Italo-Ethiopian crisis on the part of the Danubian nations is of the highest importance. This is because of their known interest in maintaining the authority of the League of Nations and in strengthening the safeguards of European peace.

There was rigid official silence in Rumania, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia, but informed observers said they are too intimately connected with the possible repercussions of an African conflict to remain aloof.

A survey of sentiment in the capitals of the three countries disclosed that officials are inclined to stay out of the picture as long as possible and are perplexed in face of the difficulties involved.

Newspapers Alarmed.

In Bucharest, official comment was withheld, one reason for silence being Foreign Minister Nicholas Titulescu's absence from the country. Semiofficially, however, it was explained that Rumania considers herself, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia in the same boat with France—anxious for peace but not inclined to break with Italy. The newspapers were more outspoken. They expressed alarm.

Adeverul stressed Mussolini's sending of more Italian troops toward Ethiopia "without realizing that the moment he starts a war he will open the door for Hitler in Austria."

In Belgrade, leaders were looking forward to the meeting of Little Entente representatives on August 28, at which meeting the situation will be surveyed in preparation for the Geneva sessions.

Comment by government spokesmen was strictly neutral there, but in contrast with intense popular interest and widespread expressions of sympathy with Ethiopia.

Friendly With Italy.

One spokesman said Yugoslavia's relations with Italy are friendly and his country has no intention of beclouding them by injecting herself into the dispute.

He added significantly, "The opportunity for Yugoslavia to express herself will come when she exercises her function as a member of the League, which is the only instrument now existing in the world capable of maintaining peace."

Prominent political authorities in Praha have expressed the opinion the preservation of European peace is first and foremost in the minds of the Czech and other Little Entente statesmen who are trying to solve their Danubian problems by close co-operation. They expressed eagerness to uphold the positive efforts and labors of the League of Nations. Czechoslovakia's inclination to remain in the background at present was indicated when Foreign Minister Eduard Benes avoided interfering or exposing himself at the July 31 meeting of the League Council by remaining away.

Even Hungary, which usually shows small enthusiasm for any Danubian scheme acceptable to the Little Entente, is carefully refraining from any action likely to rock the boat. Budapest papers have been advised by the foreign office to lean backwards. The semiofficial Pestihirlap, dealing editorially with the Ethiopian crisis, expressed complete sympathy with Italy, but pointed out at the same time that England's viewpoint is to be considered. In some circles hope was expressed that the British cabinet can find a way to confine the war, if it comes, to Africa only, avoiding European complications.

empire to write a blank check to the government in London probably will be a heavy factor in tomorrow's emergency cabinet meeting to determine policy.

Cabinet Leaders Meet.

The cabinet's foreign affairs committee deliberated for an hour and 55 minutes as prelude to the meeting of the full cabinet tomorrow. This gathering was scarcely more important than the day long informal conversations between Foreign Minister Sir Samuel Hoare and leaders of all shades of political opinion, dominion representatives and ageing veterans of World War diplomacy.

Gravity with which the government regards the crisis may be seen in the consultation of such opposition leaders as Laborite George Landsbury, Liberal Sir Herbert Samuel and ultra-Conservative Winston Churchill.

How far Britain was prepared to go it was impossible to forecast in advance of the emergency meeting of the full cabinet tomorrow—although the air was full of rumors.

One foreign embassy informed the United Press that preparations of British leaders envisage possibility of League sanctions against Italy and even an Anglo-Italian armed conflict. This embassy understood that the cabinet recently asked the admiralty whether it was prepared to face a grave emergency in the Mediterranean. The amazing reply was said to have been "No."

Naval experts said that heretofore British Mediterranean naval policy had been conceived on a basis of co-operation with Italy and that possibility of having to close the Suez Canal to Mussolini's troop transports and defend that action upset previous calculations.

A majority of diplomats believe the cabinet will reject any thought of armed opposition to Mussolini. British Empire welfare is best served by peace at this time and hence British policy probably will be concentrated on localizing the conflict in East Africa.

Hoare came to the conference armed with expert opinion. He had spent the morning in conference with diplomats and war-time leaders and for the third time within 36 hours had talked with Ray Atherton, counselor and charge d'affaires of the United States Embassy.

Hoare, the United Press was informed, urged the United States, through Atherton, to revise its foreign policy in the light of imminent danger of war. U. S. Embassy sources said there was no formal and specific reference to economic blockade of Italy or invocation of the Kellogg Pact.

However, British leaders repeatedly have asserted recently that this nation can take no important course in such a crisis without United States co-operation.

During the morning Hoare had the advice of Viscount Cecil, war-time minister of the blockade and one of the sponsors of the League of Nations, and Winston Churchill, Conservative leader who held admiralty, war, air and munitions posts during the World War.

Nazis Told to Scrap Ten Commandments

Munich, Aug. 21 (UP).—Gen. Eric von Ludendorff today proposed scrapping the Ten Commandments because of their Hebrew origin and substitution of a code of 12 German "admonitions."

Characterizing the Commandments as "orders of Sinai," Ludendorff proposed the following code: Be German; be true; be dependable; be proud; be strong; be chivalrous; be self-controlled; be conscious of your blood; be a champion of what is noble; be a destroyer of evil; be with the people with all your heart, and be the enemy of its enemies.

America Keeps Silent

By the Associated Press.

The State Department declined comment yesterday on intimation from London and Paris that the British and French may move to obtain American co-operation to solve the Italo-Ethiopian crisis.

Ray Atherton, charge d'affaires in London, reported on his conference late yesterday with Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign secretary. It was indicated they merely reviewed the British attitude in the crisis and gave the United States full information on all developments.

It has been said authoritatively that the United States, up to the present, has engaged in no diplomatic conversations which would in any way commit this country to any course of action.

At his regular press conference, attended by an unusual number of foreign correspondents, President Roosevelt simply smiled at a series of questions on the foreign situation and on neutrality and said there was nothing to say at this time.

American Tourists Watch War Moves

It's a Show in London, But Otherwise on Continent.

By the Associated Press.

London, Aug. 21.—The possibility of war, which caused England's elder statesmen to abandon their cherished holidays, was only an extra added attraction today to many American tourists.

Prominent in the crowds peering into tiny Downing street and adjacent diplomatic precincts were groups fresh off eastbound ships, patently in a holiday mood, with the chance of a lifetime to see most of England's leaders in the flesh.

There was no indication they were in the least perturbed by war clouds.

Another picture was reported from Hungary and Austria. A dispatch from Vienna said numerous visitors from America, alarmed at the Ethiopian crisis, were preparing to sail home earlier than they had planned.

London, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—United States Senator James P. Pope, on a private trip to study the Italo-Ethiopian war danger, today visited Lord Cecil, veteran British leader who helped sponsor the League of Nations.

Pope, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, hopes to interview Premier Benito Mussolini.

Laval Strives To Keep Accord With Italians

Seeks to Calm Mussolini's Warlike Ardor and Gain Peaceful Compromise.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Aug. 21.—Premier Laval, a self-styled "compromiser," worked tonight, under the shield of Franco-Italian friendship, to calm Benito Mussolini's apparently warlike ardor.

Officials of the French government frankly admitted it would be a disaster to lose Italian strength from the three-power front with which they thought they could control Europe.

Count Louis Charles de Chambrun, Ambassador to Italy, returned to Rome today with Laval's instructions to do his utmost to convince Mussolini a peaceful settlement is best.

Officials said Laval, using his well-known persuasive powers, is seeking to convince Il Duce his colonial aims can be achieved without sacrificing Italy's powerful position in Europe. Laval suggested that Mussolini make a peaceful deal with Emperor Haile Selassie that would enable him slowly to dominate Ethiopia in a manner the League could countenance.

—streets, sidewalks cafes, restaurants, parks and shops. Military news dominated space in newspapers.

Photographs appear daily depicting smiling and cheering soldiers ready to sail, clad in their uniforms consisting of overseas cap, jacket and breeches fashioned of lightweight, olive-drab material and heavy boots for marching over the rugged East African terrain.

Additional columns of space were devoted to the progress of vast military maneuvers which will reach a climax next week in mock warfare in the Alps along the Austrian frontier.

Naples hustled as more than a dozen vessels were being loaded with war materials prior to embarking with their complements of troops. Amid this martial atmosphere, diplomatic aspects of the Italo-Ethiopian controversy all but faded from view.

Germany Holds Aloof

Berlin, Aug. 21 (AP).—Germany's attitude toward an Italo-Ethiopian conflict will be one of strict neutrality and disinterest, it was stated tonight in informed circles.

The Reich, it was reported reliably, will not send munitions to either nation. It was explained, further, that it will be "entirely impossible" for German volunteers to participate in the war, if it develops.

"Our viewpoint is one of complete neutrality and our interests lie in the European situation," one informant stated.

Germans as a people, however, seemed deeply interested in the prospect of war because of their keen memories of 1914-18.

Verein Assails Nazis

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 21 (AP).—The Catholic Central Verein of America, national organization of clergy and laity, mostly of Germanic antecedents, voted condemnation today of the "brutal attitude" of the Nazi government toward priests and members of Catholic orders.

In a resolution, adopted without debate at the closing session of the organization's eightieth annual convention, the verein protested against "the unjustifiable interference on the part of the German government with the fundamental, inalienable and God-given rights of our Catholic brethren in Germany" and against "the brutal attitude of that government in denying the imprisoned priests and religious, even before their trial, all spiritual consolation of our holy faith."

A preface to the resolution said "the Ambassador of the German government at Washington in a recent press interview attempted to minimize reported acts of oppression and the ruthless persecution of minorities in Germany," but that reliable information from other sources impelled adoption of the resolution.

Nice to Delay Naming Bank Commissioner

Baltimore, Aug. 21 (AP).—There will be no action on the appointment of a new bank commissioner before September 8, Gov. Harry W. Nice said today.

Gov. Nice said he had not decided upon the new commissioner, and that he would take no action until he returns to his office on September 8. The Governor will be in Annapolis tomorrow, holding extradition hearings and attending a meeting of the board of public works. Friday he will start a vacation cruise with his family on the bay.

Italy Spends Millions For War Preparations

Rome, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—War expenditures are making heavy inroads upon Italy's financial resources, the July 31 treasury statement revealed when issued today.

The statement disclosed that on that date Italy had a deficit of 501,000,000 lire ($41,132,100), of which the total of 375,000,000 lire ($30,787,500), were for expenditures for the East African campaign—preparations for war against Ethiopia.

Selassie Views Impending War As World Crisis

the very existence of humanity itself will be threatened.

"We will be back in 1914";

"There will be no more security for the world than there was then. International treaties will have no more validity than the word of a thief."

His eyes smoldered as he proudly declared his own people have "sufficient courage and patriotism to bear the assaults of Italy alone."

Warns of Disaster.

But he warned: "If other nations are drawn in, as surely they will be, it will be a disaster of the first magnitude.

"I pray God each day that such a catastrophe may be averted."

As he spoke his tense capital, echoing to the weird undulations of frenzied warriors demonstrating their zeal in mimic war, heard reports from over the empire that a wave of patriotism is sweeping the land.

From the hands of native runners came word that the Emperor's subjects in all provinces have been shaken from their traditional lethargy.

The Emperor disdained his glittering throne and sat in an ordinary armchair behind a flat-topped desk as he talked. His study in the new imperial palace, furnished throughout in modern American style, was suggestive of President Roosevelt's offices in the White House.

Autographed photographs of all the Presidents of the United States since Theodore Roosevelt peered down from the walls as the sad-eyed monarch spoke from his heart.

Little changed in outward appearance since his coronation in 1930, the Emperor, by his wistful face and tear-filled eyes, displayed the deep anguish under which he is laboring.

He wore a simple black cape, tightly-fitting white jodhpurs and American shoes.

The United States, Great Britain and the other great powers, he said, "do not realize the gravity of the situation."

In measured tones of the ancient, Semitized Amharic, interpreted by George Herouy, son of his foreign minister, Selassie opened the interview with the greeting, "Peace be unto you."

As the din of war preparations increased over the nation, the British legation began to prepare for possible war by assembling material for bombproof shelters. A first step was the purchase of 6,000 square yards of heavy corrugated galvanized iron sheets to protect buildings and make shelters for the legation guard and British nationals.

Selassie Shows Strain.

Selassie, reviewing his almost fanatical fighting men, who wasted no powder in their maneuvers, showed the strain he is under from shouldering more tasks than seemed humanly possible.

He was known to be worried over lack of arms and ammunition, but today's disclosure, from reliable sources, that he has millions in gold and silver secreted in caves, foundations and other hiding places, put a more optimistic face on the munitions problem.

Part of the hoard, several millions of dollars of it, was bequeathed to the country, for its defense, by the late Emperor Menelik. Ironically enough, another large part, some 10,000,000 gold lire, came from Italy as indemnity after the disastrous defeat of the Italians at Aduwa.

There are other large sums deposited by the present emperor, out of government reserves, specifically for protection of Ethiopian independence.

Emperor Selassie, who drove to today's maneuvers in a shiny new American car and appeared before his troops in a smart military uniform and a lion's mane headdress, recalled Menelik's dying command to his relatives to defend Ethiopia's independence at all costs. He reiterated his determination, if all peace efforts fail, to take the field at the head of his army the moment war is declared.

The pace set by the Emperor and his staff began to tell on some of the foreign advisers today. Unable to keep up, they were forced to cancel appointments.

But the sad-eyed ruler drove ahead at full speed, personally handling routine matters normally left in the hands of subordinates.

The sky above the capital was dark with the rain-swollen clouds and the Ethiopians eyed them anxiously. The "Karampt" or rainy season is reaching its end.

While it lasts, the gumbo earth protects Ethiopia. When it ends and the earth hardens to support vehicles, the danger of invasion increases.

Gen. Vehis Pasha was on his way to Harrar to assume command of the fierce Somali troops. He commanded the Fourth Turkish Army in the Caucusas during the World War, but the Turkish government announced several weeks ago that he has cast his lot with the Ethiopians on his own responsibility.

Among the dark warriors whose feigned attacks and shouts turned Addis Ababa into a warlike camp today were American Negro veterans of the World War. Their "Give 'em the works, boys" contrasted sharply with the savage war cries of the natives.

Tribute to Post Paid by Friends In Home Town

Rites Held at Tiny Church; Rogers' Family to Take Farewell Alone.

By the Associated Press.

Maysville, Okla., Aug. 21.—Wiley Post's home town paid him its last tribute today, with simplicity and dignity.

The quiet crowd that gathered from the farming countryside was far too large for the tiny church where the famed flier's body lay, and the brief service was conducted in front.

The Maysville service was arranged to comply with the aged parents' wish, so those who knew Post long before he flew to fame might attend. The final rites will be at Oklahoma City tomorrow afternoon at almost the same time services are being held in California for Will Rogers, who died with Post in an Alaskan plane crash last Thursday.

Words Are Brief.

Words were brief at the church today. W. E. Showen, the town editor, introduced Mac Q. Williamson, State attorney general, who lives at nearby Pauls Valley.

Speaking of the fatal crash, Williamson said, "at first we couldn't believe. Then the truth came home with verification. My friends, a lovable, noble, courageous soul has found rest and peace."

Post's father and mother and brothers and sisters had not come from their farm when the body arrived from Oaklahoma Ctiy with its escort. They preferred to wait until the others, hundreds of them, had an opportunity to walk past the flag-draped bier.

Crosson Visits Parents.

Joe Crosson, the Alaskan ace who piloted the plane that brought Rogers' and Post's bodies to the United States, was among the escort. Later he went to the parents' farm. They had sent word to town they wanted to see him.

When Williamson finished speaking Showen, the editor, arose. He invited the people to walk past the bier. Many were in denim overalls, many in calico, some in their Sunday best. They gazed mutely at the country boy, who they said, never forgot he was one of them.

The Rev. J. Whitcomb Brougher, a friend of Rogers, arrived this morning from Portland, Oreg., to officiate at the private services tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the Wee Kirk o' the Heather in Forest Lawn.

Only 125 persons can be seated in the cemetery chapel. Hence provisions were made for two public services at the same time as the funeral.

Author to Be Eulogist.

In the Hollywood Bowl, which accommodates 35,000 persons, Rupert Hughes, the author, will deliver an eulogy. Conrad Nagel, film actor, will read a selection and Lawrence Tibbett, noted barytone, will sing a selection to be chosen by Mrs. Rogers. The Hollywood American Legion Band will play "Nearer, My God, to Thee" and the funeral march from Beethoven's "Third Symphony." A Nation-wide broadcast of the Hollywood Bowl services is planned.

In the Beverly Hills Community Church, which Rogers was instrumental in founding, another service will be held, with 200 of the available 650 seats occupied by aviators. Part of the service will consist in an amplification of the Forest Lawn rites.

Simultaneously in all motion picture studios tomorrow afternoon work will cease and ministers will lead devotions. It is the first time the industry has accorded such honor to an individual.

Wiley Post Goes Back to Old Home—Dead

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

The casket containing the body of Wiley Post, aviator killed with Will Rogers in the Alaska crash, is removed from a mortuary in Oklahoma City for a brief trip to Maysville, Okla., where friends and relatives waited to conduct a funeral at the Maysville Missionary Baptist Church. Burial will be in Oklahoma City today.

Rogers Rests in Chapel

Los Angeles, Aug. 21 (AP).—The gold chapel of the Forest Lawn mortuary, where lay the body of Will Rogers in a plain bronze casket, was selected today for the private meeting of members of his family.

Mrs. Rogres and the three children, Jimmy, Will, jr., and Mary, arranged to leave the train bringing them here from the East at a suburb and go at once to the quiet cemetery in the hills over Glendale.

There final arrangements were made for the funeral tomorrow afternoon.

Tomorrow morning the privacy of today will be surrendered to permit those who loved Will Rogers to file by his casket placed under pine and olive shade trees on a broad expanse of lawn near the entrance of the cemetery.

The memorial planned for the man who held a unique place in the Nation's life will be a useful one, said the committee of 13 in charge. Fred Stone, Billie Burke and Mary Pickford are among those shaping plans for the tribute. It will be an auditorium or some other public edifice.

Vidal Will Seek Crosson's Data About Tragedy

Goes to Coast for Rogers' Funeral and to Investigate Crash.

Eugene Vidal, director of the Bureau of Air Commerce, has gone to the West Coast to attend the funeral of Will Rogers and to interview Joe Crosson, veteran Arctic flier, concerning the airplane accident in which Rogers and Wiley Post were killed, according to a statement at the Department of Commerce yesterday.

Crosson visited the scene of the crash near Point Barrow before flying the bodies of Post and Rogers out of the Far North. He is regarded as virtually the only man who can supply the information needed by Commerce officials to prepare a report, required by law, concerning the probable cause of the fatal accident.

Murray Hall, Commerce inspector in Anchorage, has not been able to reach the scene as yet, due to unfavorable weather conditions. Press reports have indicated that the Eskimos have hauled the broken airplane to higher land. Officials fear that this handling of the plane will make it impossible for Hall to reach any definite conclusions concerning the causes of the accident. For this reason Vidal is anxious to hear the details of what Crosson found when he inspected the broken ship.

While on the West Coast Vidal also will talk with Government inspectors who gave the plane its license. Officials stated yesterday that it had been granted a provisional "N. R. type of license restricting its use to experimental and long-distance flying."

As Department of Commerce officials made preliminary plans to write their report on the crash, the War Department received a message from Col. Roberto Fierro, of the Mexican air force, extending sympathy.

"The Mexican air force extends through me sincerest condolences and is deeply grieved by the tragic death of the glorious aviator, Wiley Post," Col. Fierro wired.

Mystery Army Bomber Lands At Wright Field

Officers Mum on Martin Competing With Two Rivals Today.

By the Associated Press.

Dayton, Ohio, Aug. 21.—Winging approximately 425 air miles from Baltimore, Md., in little more than two hours, Glenn L. Martin's "mystery" bomber arrived at Wright Field at 5:37 p. m., Eastern standard time, today, for Army tests beginning tomorrow.

Accompanied by a two-man crew, the plane was flown by W. K. Ebel, assistant chief engineer of the Glenn L. Martin plant.

Army officers were quick to throw a cloak of secrecy around the craft, which, its builders contend, embodies new departures in construction. It has a 76-foot wingspread, and is powered by two air-cooled motors developing better than 800 horsepower. "Wide open" the bomber is said to be capable of more than 250 miles an hour.

Its arms equipment includes three machine guns, besides bombs, a two-way radio, automatic pilot, adjustable pitch propellers and the newly designed "homing" radio compass.

The Martin bomber will enter competition with two others, a Douglas and a Boeing, preliminary to a decision on what will be purchased for the Army Air Corps.

Cases of Paralysis Decline in Virginia

Only 9 New Cases Found; 4 Are in Albemarle.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 21.—Virginia's poliomyelitis cases receded somewhat today from the high totals reported earlier this week. Nine new cases of paralysis were recorded by the State health department, making 229 since August 1.

Albemarle again led the list with four. Others were reported from Amelia, 2; Greene, 1; Nottoway, 1, and Tazewell, 1.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., Aug. 21. Citing the opinions of leading infantile paralysis authorities, Dr. W. Ross Cameron, health officer of Washington County, Md. told the Eastern Panhandle District Nurses Association, meeting here today, that persons recovered from infantile paralysis, such as those children at The Pines, infantile paralysis center here, are no more of a menace to a community than those who have recovered from pneumonia or any of other numerous maladies.

"If the presence of these children at The Pines were a menace, this community would have outbreaks of the disease at intervals, but the disease does not exist here."

Dr. Cameron said that it has been established that infantile paralysis is contracted chiefly by contact with cases or with acute carriers, who harbor the organism for only a brief period and that prominent authorities are agreed that chronic carriers are virtually unknown. The Pines is operated by the State.

Two Drivers Are Freed In Traffic Fatalities

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Shepherdstown, W. Va., Aug. 21. Drivers of two automobiles in the fatal injury of two children in separate parts of the this county over the week-end have been exonerated.

Miss Mary Nichols, of Shenandoah Junction, W. Va., driving a car which killed 12-year-old Thelma Twigg Sunday afternoon at a road intersection at Kerneysville, W. Va., was absolved of all blame. It was said that Miss Nichols had blown her horn, but that the child became confused and ran directly in front of the car. Miss Nichols was fined $10 and costs yesterday for driving with defective brakes.

Timothy Carter, driver in an accident in which Joanna Clark, 7, was fatally injured Monday afternoon, was held by a jury to be not responsible for the death of the child, which occurred near here. Both children died in Martinsburg, W. Va., hospitals.

House Opposes Senate's Action For Neutrality

action at this session of Congress on the McReynolds' neutrality resolution, which leaves to the President's discretion the invocation of an arms embargo and further leaves to his discretion the designation of the countries to which embargo should apply.

No Action At All Preferred.

But, it was further revealed, the Administration prefers no legislation at all to the Senate resolution which emerged at the eleventh hour of the session on Tuesday and yesterday was rushed through to passage by the Senate within 25 minutes—without a roll call and without any but the most fragmentary debate.

Chairman McReynolds early in the day indicated the direction of Administration thought when he declared that he was "unalterably opposed" to the Senate resolution and that the "only certain thing in this situation is that the Senate measure will not be reported by the House committee."

McReynolds said his opposition was based solely on the mandatory provision of the Senate resolution. He said he would press for action on his discretionary resolution and to that end he summoned his committee to meet at 11 o'clock today to discuss what action should be taken.

Due the fact that there appears to be a majority sentiment in the House for the Senate mandatory provision, the McReynolds committee may decide to let the matter drop. If it reported to the Senate floor the McReynolds resolution, House isolationists would have an opportunity to move to substitute the Senate resolution for it and if such a move succeeded nothing but a Presidential veto could stop the mandatory legislation from becoming law.

Members Back Measure.

House support for the Senate resolution was plainly indicated yesterday when the latter measure reached the Speaker's desk. As the clerk announced the Senate action a number of members applauded, an unusual and indicative demonstration of sentiment.

But even if the House membership stands behind its leaders and substitutes the McReynolds proposal for the Senate measure, the outlook for enactment of neutrality legislation at this session is no brighter. It is virtually certain the Senate would not accept such an alternative and the time remaining before adjournment is too short to work out a new formula.

In this connection it is significant that both Democratic Floor Leader Joseph T. Robinson and Senator Key Pittman, two Administration stalwarts, along with others, turned their backs on State Department suggestions when the resolution was drafted in committee.

State of War Required.

Superficially the Senate and McReynolds resolutions do not appear to be far apart, but actually there is a vast difference. In the first the President is required to proclaim a state of war whenever it breaks out, and after he does so it becomes unlawful for any person in this country to ship arms, munitions and implements of war to any of the belligerents. The only discretion left the President under that provision is to determine a state of war in cases where a formal declaration is lacking, such as the Japanese invasion of Manchuria.

In the McReynolds resolution the President need proclaim a state of war only if he finds that conditions are developing that may involve the United States and that an arms embargo would promote this country's peaceful relations with other nations, and even then he is left free to designate which of the belligerents will be subjected to the arms embargo.

Would Destroy Bluff.

Under the Senate measure this Government's position in any threatened conflict abroad would be frozen. All the world would know far in advance that as soon as hostilities started the United States would act against all parties to the conflict, thus destroying any bargaining or bluffing power this Government might otherwise have.

Under the McReynolds resolution the course of this Government in a threatened conflict would remain unknown until the President acted. At the same time this Government's hand would be strengthened in seeking to prevent an outbreak because it would be possible to apply the embargo solely against the nation disregarding American suggestions. But, it is asserted on the other hand, this might draw this country into war instead of keeping it out—the purpose of neutrality legislation.

Thus the struggle between the two viewpoints represented by these measures is, in reality, a fight between the isolationists and those favoring international cooperation in world affairs—between the same elements which constituted the fights over American adherence to the League of Nations and to the World Court.

The isolationists on Capitol Hill who insist on mandatory neutrality legislation do not particularly wish to put the President in a straitjacket but they are fearful of what they call "American meddling in Europe's affairs" and they wish to make it impossible for such action to be taken without Senate approval.

So much for the background of this situation. Pittman experienced no difficulty in getting the Senate to lay aside temporarily the Guffey-Snyder coal bill yesterday to take up the neutrality resolution. He made a brief explanation of the provisions of the resolution which was rushed from his committee Tuesday when a small group demonstrated their ability to jam the legislative machinery if such action were not taken.

Senator J. Hamilton Lewis (Democrat), of Illinois, offered a substitute proposal which would authorize the President to handle, through executive orders, any situation which might develop while Congress is in recess. But he did not press this proposal to a vote. Senator Gerald P. Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, likewise withheld a proposal for an embargo on loans to belligerents.

Danger Seen In Travel.

There was no detailed discussion of the measure. The debate consisted of a few questions seeking clarification and brief remarks by Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho, asserting that the provision that Americans could travel on belligerent ships "only at their own risk" was insufficient.

Borah contended that Americans should be barred with traveling on belligerent ships, except in case of flight from a country at war. He said that not alone such citizens but the whole nation, was involved if anything happened to them. He pointed out that the killing or injury of Americans on belligerent ships would have a psychological effect on the country, arousing it to hostility toward one of the belligerents.

But the Idaho irreconcilable said he would not press his point, and, to the general amazement of all, the resolution was passed by a viva voce vote. It was immediately sent to the House. Meanwhile, nine House members called on President Roosevelt, seeking his support of immediate House action on the Senate measure.

Those who went to the White House were Representatives Fred J. Sisson, of New York; Louis Ludlow, of Indiana; Frank L. Kloeb, of Ohio; Fred Biermann, of Iowa; Maury Maverick, of Texas, and Herman P. Koppelman, of Connecticut—all Democrats—and Charles W. Tobey, of New Hampshire, and Theodore Christianson, of Minnesota, Republicans, and Harry Sauthoff (Progressive), of Wisconsin.

They were reluctant to discuss their visit, but it is understood the President told the group he wished discretionary legislation adopted. The groups on returning to Capitol Hill, however, became the forefront of the movement for House action. The President at his press conference refused to make any comment whatever on the neutrality legislation.

Rome, Aug. 21 (AP).—A stony silence greeted news tonight the United States Senate had approved a resolution designed to insure America's neutrality in event of war.

Officials declined to comment while awaiting a full text. Well-informed circles pointed out, however, that this development, while accentuating Italy's feeling of isolation, could in no way serve to shake Rome's East African policy.

Informed circles explained, however, that the Italians are likely to feel particular bitterness over the part of the resolution warning Americans off ships of belligerents and refusing use of American ports as supply bases for belligerent ships.

These circles said such an action seemed to Italy to constitute carrying a simple "colonial problem" beyond its confines, across the Atlantic.

7 Persons Hurt When Skidding Bus Hits Autos

One Machine Is Hurled in Path of Trolley; 5 Women Victims.

Seven persons were injured when a bus of the Great Eastern Stages skidded into an automobile and threw it directly into the path of a Capital Transit Co. street car, then careened into another automobile at North Capitol street and Rhode Island avenue late yesterday afternoon.

The injured:

Mrs. Kathleen Rupp, 27, of Takoma Park, Md., driver of one of the automobiles.

Mrs. Rose Loewe, 25, of 325 Channing street northeast.

Her son, Albert Loewe, also of Channing street.

Mrs. Julia Corbin, 50, of 1026 Fifteenth street northwest.

Mildred Carter, colored, of Philadelphia.

Samuel Macquail, 22, colored, Durham, N. C.

Those most seriously injured were riding in the automobile driven by Mrs. Rupp. They were rushed to Sibley Hospital and given first aid.

Mrs. Rupp suffered undetermined injuries to her back. She was admitted to the hospital. Others in her car, Miss Coles, Mrs. Loewe and Albert, were shocked, bruised and cut.

Police were told Mrs. Corbin and Mrs. Carter were passengers on the bus.

At Casualty Hospital a preliminary examination revealed they had suffered nothing more than cuts and bruises, but a more thorough examination was to be made. Macquail, in Freedmen's Hospital, also believed to have been a passenger on the bus, was hurt only slightly.

The accident occurred on a rain-glazed pavement, which made skidding easy.

According to Mrs. Rupp, she had stopped her car for a red traffic flash when the bus skidded into the rear of her automobile, throwing it into the path of the oncoming street car.

The bus, according to police, then careened into the automobile of Francis Ontrich, 31, 1349 Kenyon street northwest. He was unhurt.

Charles F. Nolte, 43, of the 1700 block of L street northwest, driver of the big bus, and several passengers on the bus were badly shaken.

Traffic was rerouted by a special detail of police, called to the scene.

Mrs. Rupp's car was badly damaged.

compass, and, in addition to the American Scouts, our brother Scouts from 27 other nations had accepted invitations to send delegations.

But, alas, a rather serious epidemic of inafantile paralysis arose in the vicinity of Washington and, on August 8, the United States Public Health Service and the Health Officers of the District and the nearby States concluded that to hold the jamboree would be a hazard. With great reluctance therefore, we had to call it off.

But for this unfortunate happening I would have reviewed this day the thousands of Scouts lined up the length of Constitution avenue, and later we would all have had a party on the White House lawn. I want you, in your own home towns, to know how sorry I am that I can not be with you myself. I am in spirit with each and every one of your gatherings tonight.

You boys, old and young, in every part of this broad land—present Scouts and former Scouts—your numbers running into the millions—constitute a very real part of our American citizenship. We are bound together in a democracy operating under a Constitution whose purpose was and is "to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our posterity."

The success of that Constitution is dependent on the attitude of mind and the degree of the spirit of unselfish co-operation that can be developed in individuals. Scouting is essentially and clearly a program for the development of that unselfish, co-operative attitude of mind. Scouting revolves around, not the theory of service to others, but the habit of service to others. Scouting makes the individual boy conscious of his obligation to his patrol, to his troop, to his community, to his State and to his Nation.

Even before you become of voting age, you actually have a part in civic affairs and you bear responsibility in your home communities. We older citizens are very proud of the many contributions that individual Scouts and Scout organizations have made to the relief of suffering, to the maintenance of good order and good health, and to the furtherance of good citizenship and good government.

You who are active Scouts are, in addition, learning many useful things—knowledge which will stay with you all your lives. You are having opportunities to fall in love with and understand the great outdoors. Do not ever fall out with Nature and her wide-open breathing spaces. Love them. They will sustain and strengthen you in later years when confining circumstances of life may tend to narrow the spirit or soul that is in you.

I do not have to tell you to throw yourselves, with all the enthusiasm and the energy you have, into your Scout work, into the programs of your patrols and troops and councils. But I do want to express to you the very deep hope that when you grow older and get out into the stream of life, you will retain that same enthusiasm and energy and that you will apply it through every day and every year of your lives. The Scout motto 'Be Prepared' applies just as much to the wider service which is your opportunity when your full civic responsibilities are attained.

Just as you are individually a necessary part of your patrol or your troop today, so will you become necessary parts of the citizenship of your communities. I do not have to remind you that one individual who lags behind slows up the whole troop. In the Navy we have an old saying—that the speed of the fleet is no greater than the speed of the slowest ship. When you go out into life you will come to understand that the individual in your community who always says "I can't" or "I won't"—the individual who by inaction or opposition slows up honest, practical, far-seeing community effort, is the fellow who is holding back civilization and holding back the objectives of the Constitution of the United States.

We need more Scouts—the more the better—for the record shows that, taking it by and large, boys trained as Scouts make good citizens.

I hope a Jamboree, in place of the one we missed this year, will be planned for sometime in the future. In the meantime, I send you my warm greetings, personally, and as the honorary president of the Boy Scouts of America. Good luck to you and carry on!

Things as They Are

By Samuel Crowther

SURVEYS of the state of current business are confused by the use of words which seem to have a meaning but which actually are meaningless. The three words causing most of the confusion are deflation, reflation and inflation.

"All have to do with changes in prices as expressed in money and pretend to describe stages in the buying power of money. Both deflation and inflation are vicious hussies who have many acquaintances but no friends. Reflation, however, although she is the twin sister of inflation and has all her vices and habits, has managed to stay respectable.

Deflation connotes falling prices and therefore bad business, for men do not greatly venture against the chance that they may have to sell for less than they paid. Inflation connotes paper money prices which rise so rapidly that the money loses its value. Reflation connotes an inflation controlled by a wise, good fairy to the end that everyone not only buys at the right prices but also sells at satisfying profits. The ecstatic condition which results from planned reflation still lies among the future hopes of the world. Governor Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board rather fancies himself as a reflationist.

If deflation is caused by a too rapid decrease in the supply of money—which in the case of the United States means bank credit, for the bank check is our main money—then stopping the decrease in money ought to stop deflation. By the same reasoning, increasing the supply of money ought to raise prices and restore the prosperity interrupted by deflation. Taking prices to just the right point is reflation. President Roosevelt announced that he intended to restore prices to the 1926 level and thought by so doing he would restore the kind of prosperity we had in 1926—and which at the time we thought little of. That is the managed money theory.

• • • •

The only trouble with the theory is that, if it works at all, it works only within limits so narrow as not to matter. The reason for this is that money prices form only one part of the story. If all prices went down in deflation and up in inflation, neither would bother us, for we would merely re-mark the price tags and go ahead. It is exchange values that matter. Money of itself neither creates nor exchanges goods. It is a facility—a means to an end. It is not an end of itself. In deflation, prices and incomes do not all change at the same rate. That is why exchange—that is, business—slackens and men are thrown out of work.

When the exchange values readjust themselves, good business returns, regardless of the price level. Forcing up prices by increasing the supply of money does not immediately bring about a level of active exchange because all prices and incomes are not equally affected. Exactly the same sort of exchange value readjustments have to go on with rising prices as go on with falling prices. Thus efforts at reflation are just as likely to delay as to hasten the readjustment of values which alone start business. There is more evidence that credit tinkering in the present depression has delayed recovery than there is that it has hasteped it.

All of which presupposes that someone has a financial and business barometer with deflation, reflation and inflation so plainly marked that the financial ship can know what to expect. No such barometer exists. The early stages of deflation always appear to be healthy liquidations of overstocked and overpriced lines. The early stages of inflation are always welcomed as the return of prosperity. Only when deflation or inflation are in full cry are they recognized. And then nothing that has been as yet discovered can be done to stop them. It may be unkind to recall to some thousands of our citizens that they bought paper marks on the chance that the Germans would get their money in hand.

Reflation is inflation. No one has ever yet been able to control an inflation that amounted to enough even to be called a reflation. Our Government, through borrowing, has vastly increased bank deposits and the capacity to extend credit. The records show that responsible men will not now borrow. Men, women and corporations are today anxious to keep out of debt. Only the Government is rushing into debt.

• • • •

Money or credit that is not being used has no more effect on business than pictures of money. Thus the reflation efforts to date have had no effect at all in promoting business. The thing called business confidence is a result of exchange values getting to a point where people feel that they can earn money. It is a result, not a cause. When bargains appear, so do the buyers. The outstanding bargain of today is the automobile. That is why the automobile sales have been heavy. And the largest part of all the business today—outside of the regular consumption of absolute necessities—can be traced to the automobile.

The danger of reflation is that it turns up when not wanted as inflation. It begins as good business with free borrowing. And no one knows in advance where it will strike. In 1919-20 it hit commodities. In 1928-29 it hit securities. The actual supply of goods has nothing to do with the incidence of inflation, for speculation at once causes apparent shortages. In 1920, at the apex of silk speculation, there was actually a glut of silk in New York. It turned out that we were overstocked on most of the commodities that were supposed to be short. Some signs point to inflation having made a start in the stock market, for many of the prices are not justified by earnings or prospects. On the other hand, heavy foreign buying and the desire to get out of bonds and into equities may account for the buying.

Knights of Columbus Urge Roosevelt to Protest Religious Strife.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 21.—The Supreme Council of the Knights of Columbus addressed tonight a letter to President Roosevelt protesting against "the silence of the Government of the United States and its tacit acquiescence in the persecutions of the Mexican people."

The letter, signed by Martin H. Carmody, supreme knight, Grand Rapids, Mich., was approved by the council which directed, through a unanimously adopted resolution, that it be sent to the White House.

After citing previous efforts, the letter, speaking in behalf of 400,000 members of the Catholic order, urged the government to "immediately take action in consonance with its well-known and settled policy by protesting publicly against the persecutions" in Mexico.

It also asked that the "executive department of the Government of the United States shall withdraw its opposition to the Borah resolution." After reviewing religious conditions in Mexico, and declaring that citizens there are "denied the consolation of religion and the right to worship God in accordance with the dictates of their own conscience," the letter continued:

Rely on Roosevelt.

"We avail ourselves of this opportunity to protest against the failure of the United States to extend to the oppressed people of Mexico that solace and comfort which has been so often held up to the persecuted peoples of other races and religious beliefs and to the unwillingness of this Government, of which you are now the Chief Executive, to allow the adoption of the resolution whereby the matters and things herein referred to can be established by competent and compelling proofs, with a view to determining the policy of this Government in connection herewith."

The letter and resolution were presented and approved after Bishop Francis C. Kelley, of Oklahoma City, had told the council that the President could stop "religious persecution" in Mexico if and when he desired.

The bishop's address followed the renaming, for his fifth two-year term, of Martin H. Carmody as supreme knight and the election of a full slate of officers.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 21 (AP).—Application for work relief funds for the Virginia School for the Deaf and Blind at Staunton and for the town of West Point were received today as State PWA Director James A. Anderson announced that September 16 would be the deadline for application.

The Staunton school asked a grant of $22,500 toward the $50,000 cost of installing a sprinkler system in nonfireproof buildings and for repairs and modernization. West Point asked $35,000 for street improvements and for extensions of the sewer and water systems.

Liquor Control Board To Establish Agencies

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 21.—The State liquor control commission has decided to open agencies, instead of liquor stores, in Shepherdstown, Berkeley Springs, Romney and Moorefield, it has been announced by J. A. Proctor, leasing agent for the commission.

The agencies are to be installed in established stores and will not require a special staff to operate them. No special equipment will be needed. The stores in which the agencies will be located, and opening dates, have not yet been announced by the commission.

Bus Route Shelters May Be Erected by WPA

Baltimore, Aug. 21 (AP).—Erection of shelters for children along school bus routes as a Works Progress Administration project was suggested today by John J. Seidel, director of education under the WPA.

Construction of the shelters would be left to the county boards of education. If they believe the idea feasible, they may submit a construction program as a WPA project.

Labor Security Boards May Be Named Today

President Indicates He Will Send Appointments to Congress Soon.

President Roosevelt indicated yesterday that he expected to send to Congress today the names of members of two important boards which will administer legislation enacted at the present session, the Labor Board and the Social Security Board.

The Wagner labor bill, creating a board to handle labor disputes, was signed two months ago, but action in making the appointments was delayed. The President signed the social security bill last week.

At the same time, the President announced that six more independent Government agencies would be required to submit their expenditures to the Budget Bureau. They are: Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, Federal Surplus Relief Administration, Export-Import Bank, Second Export-Import Bank, Reconstruction Finance Corporation and Electric Home and Farm Authority.

A previous order placed expenditures of various housing agencies under bureau supervision. The President said seven or eight more agencies would be given the same status.

It was also revealed that the resignation of James A. Moffett as housing administrator had been postponed at the request of President Roosevelt. He returned Monday from a honeymoon trip to the Orient. He is expected to stay with the administration at least another month.

Sportsmen Hold Outing.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 21.—Sportsmen from Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia were guests today of the Hagerstown Chapter, Izaak Walton League, at an outing on the Potomac River near Sharpsburg. Clay-bird and rifle shooting featured the afternoon, with supper being served in the evening to 300 members and guests.

A bill strengthening liquor tax laws and reducing levies on brandies used in winemaking was approved yesterday by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Among other things, the bill makes it an offense to carry a sawed-off shotgun or machine gun, or to use smoke-screen devices while transporting taxable intoxicating beverages. On wines, the bill:

1—Reduces from 20 to 10 cents a gallon the tax on brandy used in fortifying wines;

2—Repeals the tax on grape concentrate;

3—Permits the manufacture of wine and brandy from oranges;

4—Allows the manufacture of brandy from dates;

5—Lets domestic wines be used in rectifying spirits, in the manufacture of prepared cocktails and mixed spirits.

Col. Knox Raps Roosevelt's Act As 'Autocratic'

issue "ever presented in any campaign since the country was born."

His address was preceded by a speech by Eaton, who struck at what he called "New Deal maladministration in the Nation, and Democratic misrule in this State."

Raps "Modern Barnum."

Eaton's remarks followed by a few hours a luncheon address in which he referred to President Roosevelt as a "modern Barnum in the White House, dragging into the public spotlight the weird policies of the Tugwells, Moleys and other members of the Brain Trust."

Col. Knox seized upon the President's inaugural address to prove his claim the Chief Executive hopes to change the Constitution. "Let me read," the colonel said, "a short quotation from President Roosevelt's inaugural address of March 4, 1933, as follows: 'Our Constitution is so simple and practical that it is possible always to meet extraordinary needs by changes in emphasis and arrangement without loss of essential form. It has met every stress of vast expansion of territory, of foreign wars, of bitter strife, of world relations. I am prepared under my constitutional duty to recommend the measures that the Nation in the midst of a stricken world may require.'

"That is as sound today as when Roosevelt said it."

"Already they [the New Dealers] show signs of fear of punishment by an aroused people, but even should they, temporarily, withdraw from the issue they have made, their underlying purpose has been made clear," Knox said. "We know they ultimately propose the substitution of an autocratic Executive for the type of government the Constitution gave us."

Speaking at a Republican rally which opened the party's drive in the President's home State for control of the Assembly, major prize in the fall campaign in New York, Col. Knox predicted the Roosevelt Administration would be defeated because no popular government had ever been able to withstand the "disastrous effect" of increased taxes and increased living costs operating simultaneously.

He insisted necessary reforms could be accomplished "under a Constitution that preserves intact the essential doctrine of State's sovereignty," which he called "essential to the preservation of the Union itself," and added "we need no amendment to the Constitution, destructive of individual rights, to provide that justice be done our working people."

He called upon the Republican Party to evolve a sound farm policy "which shall not depend upon scarcity of food products," because the 1936 national election would have to be won in the Middle West.

Fast Action Needed To Get Sewer Fund

Hampton Area Must Apply to PWA Before Sept. 16.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 21.—Prompt action by localities in the Hampton Roads area will be necessary if PWA funds are to be obtained for the $8,000,000 sewage disposal system recommended by engineers of the United States Public Health Service, it appeared here today.

Col. James A. Anderson notified R. B. Preston, of Norfolk, chairman of the Hampton Roads Sewage Disposal Commission, created by act of the Legislature, that the new deadline for applications had been set at September 16 by authorities at Washington.

Col. Anderson, acting State director for PWA, explained whatever action was taken necessarily would proceed from the local governments in the areas affected.

Gov. Peery said he was very much interested in the proposal, which he thought was of fundamental importance to the sea food, beach resort and residential interests of the Hampton Roads territory.

Cumberland's Stores Closed For Day at Fair

Half Holiday Declared by Mayor; Baltimore Honored Today.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 21.—A half-holiday was observed today—"Cumberland Day"—at the eighteenth annual Cumberland Fair. Mayor George W. Legge declared the holiday. All business places and city and county buildings were closed to give "Cumberland Day" the largest attendance at Fairgo of any day of the week.

Tomorrow has been designated "Baltimore Day," when Mayor Howard W. Jackson will bring a party of Baltimoreans to join the several hundred now here for the races in connection with the fair.

Friday will be "Pennsylvania Day," when General Manager Harry A. Manley of the fair will present a trophy to the winner of the fourth race in the program. Manley is a native of Harrisburg, Pa.

Extensive preparations have been made for the fifth annual all-breed dog show to be staged at the fair Saturday by the Western Maryland Kennel Club. E. M. Joel, Carnegie, Pa., is superintendent of the dog show.

Last night the Shriners of Ali Ghan Temple were guests of General Manager Manley, who is a past potentate. Horse owners, trainers, track officials and jockeys were guests of General Manager Manley at a buffet supper at the Jockey Club.

At the old-fashioned riding tournament in front of the grand stand Adam Frolier, Moorefield, W. Va., won first honors.

Observers expect Senator Aubrey Weaver and C. C. Louderback to be nominated without opposition. Carroll Menefee is secretary for the district.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Aug. 21.—A farm show is to be held here November 20-23, when farmers in nearby counties are to be invited to enter exhibits. Plans for the four days include fashion shows, band concert and lectures of interest to farmers.

Wallace Orders Unused Roads 'Plowed Under'

Value of Area to Be Given Stress in New Program, Secretary Says.

Secretary Wallace carried his "plow-under" policy to the Nation's roads yesterday.

In announcing plans for secondary road improvement under the relief program Wallace said that consideration should be given to the number of relief workers in the area in which a road is to be improved, and to the possibility of creating economic and social values in the areas served by proposed improvements.

Then he added a note. It said: "It is as important to consider the values that may result in denying improvements and so encouraging abandonment of unproductive and physically handicapped areas as to consider the positive values resulting from improvement in desirable areas."

He added that in the absence of strong local reasons projects proposed for construction of secondary feeder roads in submarginal areas should be denied. Consideration also should be given, he said, to the location of Federal resettlement projects.

Subject to these considerations, he added, preference should be given to roads that connect farms and rural homes with railroad and water loading points, schools, churches, and other points of public congregation, including community developments and unincorporated villages.

Still Basically Destructive.

Since conference committees are not permitted to inject new provisions into their compromises, or to eliminate material appearing in both Senate and House bills, very little improvement of the tax measure was to be anticipated from its final overhauling. Considering these limitations, the conference committee has done a fairly creditable piece of work.

Among the definite improvements are the substitution of higher estate taxes for new inheritance levies; the extension of added surtaxes to incomes as low as $50,000, and the elimination of the McCarran amendment designed to aid silver speculators. A committee amenable to the public interest could scarcely have failed to modify the conflicting bills in these particulars. The surprising thing is that tax bills carrying the eliminated provisions should ever have reached the final stages of enactment.

When all of the improvements in the bill have been appraised, however, they fall into insignificance beside the incongruities and the demonstrably false principles which it still contains. To produce a genuine revenue act Congress would have to start all over again. Indeed, the indications are that Congress itself would have to undergo some radical changes. The present membership has manifested little sense of responsibility for preservation of the national credit on either the revenue or the expenditures side.

Almost any section of the bill will reveal that its essence is largely political ballyhoo. Taxes have been levied, for example, on the excess profits of corporations. In a period like the present it is more important to obtain "excess profits" than to tax what rarely exists. The fact that the yield of this levy is officially estimated at only $10,000,000 exposes it as a meaningless yet irritating gesture.

Elimination of the Borah amendment was not an important loss, for the volume of tax-exempt bonds in which large fortunes can be invested is already large. And even if the Federal Government should discontinue issuing tax-free securities, State and municipal governments could not be expected to desist. But when the Administration advocates the issue of more tax-exempt bonds while levying taxes up to 75 per cent upon incomes that find a haven of protection in those issues, the inconsistency of the entire tax program is emphasized. The so-called revenue proposals sent to Congress by the President were in reality a disguised scheme to penalize a few wealthy individuals and to injure a few large corporations. Numerous congressional modifications have not changed the basic nature of the White House plan, as is evidenced by the vicious spread between the corporation tax rates for large and small undertakings. On the foundation laid by the President it was always impossible to expect contraction of the steadily widening gap between governmental income and outgo. So disillusionment is not increased by the conference agreement.

Essential Enterprises.

On the same day, it is announced that St. Elizabeths Hospital seeks governmental approval for a $3,420,510 improvement program and that the PWA is planning a large-scale low-rent housing enterprise for Southeast Washington. There is more than a superficial relation between these projects. They are two practical, appealing and constructive efforts to meet two great needs, and each is calculated to give, during the course of its development, employment where it will have the greatest economic advantage.

St. Elizabeths has done and is doing an inestimable service for the District. But it is doing this service under severe handicaps, for the demands upon the institution have grown greatly. It requires a subsistence farm; it requires at least eight new buildings. The realization of these desires would mean that the hospital could go far toward feeding itself and give proper care to 1,120 patients more than it now cares for—1,120 persons at present in dire want of such attention.

Constructive steps toward the modernization of housing in Washington are no less imperative. As alley slums are demolished there must also be constructed shelters for the dispossessed, houses that they can afford to rent and maintain. And the Southeast low-rent housing plan is one step toward these consummations.

Finally, each of the construction proposals brought together in yesterday's news will entail a stimulus to the building industry, which in turn will stimulate other basic trades. For both the St. Elizabeths program and the Southeast low-rent project there is nothing except commendation to be offered.

The Senate Goes Hysterical.

After a completely superficial and often semi-hysterical discussion the Senate has without record vote adopted a so-called neutrality resolution which would be discreditable to the intelligence of a high school debating society. It does not insure neutrality. It tends to hasten the coming of war in Europe. It violates every principle of constructive diplomacy. It is probably unconstitutional. And it would almost certainly break down if it were ever put into actual operation. It is, of course, unthinkable that such a completely pernicious measure should be allowed to go any further toward enactment.

In the course of the "debate"—that word must here be used in quotation marks—it was intimated that the Department of State is at least partially in accord with the measure adopted. Nothing could be further from the truth. Officials of the Department, who have the real responsibility for keeping the United States at peace, are aghast at the mess the Senate has created in its eleventh-hour attempt to rush through legislation on a subject where much senatorial thinking is, to say the least, immature.

So far as the immediate threat to world peace is concerned, the Senate resolution can only encourage the outbreak of hostilities. If Italy's scheduled attack on Ethiopia is now to be averted it will be only through the application of pressure by those nations which realize that a colonial war in East Africa may easily start a world-wide conflagration. Such pressure Great Britain, through the agency of the League of Nations, is preparing to exert. At this critical juncture, when the American attitude may well decide whether there shall be peace or war, the Senate resolution says, in effect, to Italy: "Go ahead. You may be absolutely assured that the United States will do nothing to impede your course."

If this were all it would be the very negation of intelligent policy on the part of the United States. But it is far from all. This Senate resolution underwrites Germany's evident hope that Mussolini will be encouraged to go ahead, so that the Nazis may have a clear field to seize Austria and perhaps attack Russia. And in addition the resolution virtually says to Great Britain: "Try to stop the coming of international disaster and very soon you may be at war with us." The measure does not merely encourage war in Europe. It goes far to insure that after we have encouraged such a war we shall be drawn into it.

This grotesque situation arises from the naive manner in which the Senate resolution assumes that the "implements of war," to the export of which it would apply a mandatory prohibition, are only such articles as the President shall proclaim as "implements of war." Completely overlooked is the fact that a belligerent also has rights in defining "implements of war." If Great Britain, for instance, should blockade Italy the former probably would promptly declare not merely guns and shells, but also cotton, wheat, coal and many other basic commodities, contraband.

As to the situation then arising the Senate resolution is conveniently silent. But obviously only one of two alternatives would be possible. Either we should have to fight Great Britain to protect our trading rights in "implements of war" unproclaimed as such by the President; or else we should have to extend our embargo so as to cut off a large part of our trade not merely with Great Britain, but also with Canada, Australia, Bermuda and other British possessions.

It is impossible even to suggest all the dangerously ridiculous situations to which this Senate resolution might give rise. Senator Tydings really summarized them on the floor by comparing the project with "New Year's resolutions, which will be broken about as soon as war is declared." That, of course, would be the only possible outcome. And except for two factors this eleventh-hour essay in statecraft on the part of the Senate might be completely ignored as a perfectly absurd gesture.

The first of these is that the Senate resolution obscures and impedes the really constructive McReynold's measure, still pending in the House, which by giving the Administration essential discretionary powers avoids the worst pitfalls in the highly complicated problem of maintaining neutrality. And the second deplorable factor is that the Senate measure provides a probably unintentional but none the less definite encouragement to Italy to proceed in shaking the foundations on which the peace of the world now precariously rests.

Actuarially Sound.

In at least one vital respect the District unemployment insurance bill was strengthened by the conference committee. The House had provided for a large contribution from the District government accompanied by benefits far more liberal than any provided by the States that have enacted laws of this kind. The Senate eliminated both the contribution and the more liberal benefits. In conference it was judiciously agreed that compensation should be limited to a maximum of 16 weeks during a year and that the District government should make a moderate contribution for a period of at least three years.

Through this arrangement the solvency of the local system should be assured. It is entirely proper that some part of the unemployment insurance fund should come from general taxation, since it is intended to solve a community problem. When the scheme is fully established on a sound basis, the payment of more liberal benefits may properly be considered.

The weakest aspect of the bill in its completed form is its failure to provide for any contributions to the fund by employes. The excuse for this defect is that State laws now in operation levy the entire burden of unemployment insurance upon employers or divide it between employers and taxpayers. That, of course, does not alter the logic of the principle that employes should participate in the financing of a system for their special benefit. The flavor of the dole will never be entirely eliminated from this undertaking until employes are recognized as contributing partners.

A question mark may be raised, also, over the provision extending the terms of the bill to individuals employing a single workman, not including domestic servants. The cost of administering the law in cases of this kind may far exceed its value. No one of these objections is serious enough, however, to warrant delay in final enactment of the measure. Since it appears to be actuarially sound, it may well be put into operation, leaving for the future further amendment as experience exposes the defects which Congress now has overlooked.

X Marks Kensington.

In April 14 children were killed at a grade crossing at Rockville. Immediately a great hue and cry against such vulnerable spots was raised. Coincident with the agitation, President Roosevelt announced that some $200,000,000 of the work-relief fund would be allotted for grade-crossing elimination. Since then it has been found that this type of project would have to be partly abandoned because of high material costs.

Now, five months after the Rockville disaster, what has been termed "perhaps the most dangerous" grade crossing near Washington is still in existence. This is the one at Kensington, which the Montgomery County commissioners are urging the Maryland State Roads Commission to abolish. Action in the matter will apparently have to wait until "funds are available for the construction of an overhead bridge," but the recommendation is an initial step in the right direction. The Kensington crossing already has taken a toll of several lives, and a report drawn up by the local office of the A. A. A. calls it "considerably more dangerous than the one at Rockville."

The Kensington "death trap" merits its gruesome name particularly in view of the blind and abrupt turn in the approach from Washington; because of the numerous tracks, both railroad and street car, that run side by side at this junction; and by reason of the fact that it has gone unguarded at night. In their efforts to have this grade crossing eliminated, the Montgomery County commissioners should be accorded every cooperation. It is to be hoped that some action will be taken before another tragedy there carries out the foreboding contained in the A. A. A. report.

This Doth Fit The Time.

There is not yet in the air what autumnal poets are pleased to call a "nip." Despite a few cool hours now and then, small displays of velvet hats and fur coats, and the obvious I-give-up look of linens laundered too often, summer is not over. But fashion forecasts, like presidential ones, are at hand. At present these prophecies seem to be running neck and neck when it comes to uncertainty, vacillation, and just plain idiocy.

In the first place, there is the matter of color. "General opinion among the fashionable experts," says one of them, is that the leading hues will be "red, blue, purple, yellow, and green." That should make it all as clear as mud to Milady. In other words, pick any color from one to ten and you're sure to be in the mode. Skirts are to be "definitely but not obviously shorter" and daytime clothes will be "militaristic, done with subtleness." It is already a well-accepted fact that the trend in clothes for the next six months will be distinctly Italian Renaissance. But the announcement that they are also to be "militaristic, done with subtleness" suggests that the stylists are finding no inspiration in modern Italy. Militaristic, yes; but far from subtle.

This winter promises to be as exciting as a six-ring circus if housewives and stenographers decide to list these hints as "must" modes. Mrs. John Doe, in "angel draperies" and "aureole hats" will at least lend a figurative aspect to the theory that marriges are made in heaven. And Winnie the Breadwinner, bending over her typewriter in a "snood of mauve petals" should do much to lessen the monotony of office routine.

The classic prediction of them all is that headdresses which mount to two feet and slippers without heels will be worn. The one advantage in this would seem to be that though your head is in the clouds, your feet will be firmly on the ground. And that's one fashion forecast that the presidential pickers might do well to note.

Oh, yes, to be sure, we are a peace-loving nation; still we have a Secretary of War, but no Secretary of Peace.

Equation In Cotton.

From The New York Sun.

A little equation which gives a lot of light is to be found in an article in the Texas Weekly. In the year ending on July 31 the cotton consumed in the United States amounted to 5,500,000 bales. The gross proceeds of the processing tax on this cotton were $110,000,000. Hence the equation. The gross proceeds of the processing tax on American-consumed cotton were equivalent to 1,938,000 bales at $57 a bale. But the decline in world consumption of American cotton in the same period was 2,180,000 bales. Hence it can be argued that the reduced consumption more than offsets the proceeds of the processing tax.

"Only Washingtonians."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I would like to know why a Washingtonian cannot get a job on a Government building in the District of Columbia. My husband is a stone cutter (union), and was born here in Washington. I have been a resident here for the last 15 years; our children were born here. We have a small home, but I am afraid we will lose it because we have not been able to pay anything on it for months.

When District men go to the contractors for jobs, they are told that they must have a letter from a Senator to work there. Since when did Senators acquire control of such jobs? Does not the Washington man's tax money have the same value as that of a citizen of Maryland? We pay taxes on our home; we had to pay for road tax, yet we do not live on that road. I pay water tax and automobile tax.

I wish someone would go and find out how many local men are working on the big new Government buildings they are putting up, and have put up, in the last two years. I hope and trust there is a man in Washington who will read this and have courage enough to stand up for his neighbor and townsman and see that he gets the same rights and treatment as anyone else. We were forced to go on relief last winter. I will not say how many times we were hungry and our clothes are now getting thinner. The children suffer the most because they do not understand why they cannot have things like other children.

Why don't Washington business men take local men for their work? It would pay them back, as these men would buy and spend here at home where they earned it. I am sure there are plenty more men here like my husband who are walking the streets without work because they are "only Washingtonians." M. S. A.

Washington, Aug. 20.

Voice Of America.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In a recent editorial you criticized members of Congress for introducing bills aimed at the German government and its policy of persecution. You relied upon the proposition, apparently sound, that under our form of government this is not a legislative matter, but within the province of the State Department.

But whatever restrictions there may be upon members of the legislative branch, there are none upon the American people. When the average citizen beholds the almost barbarous treatment of Jews and Catholics, the deliberate cultivation of race hatred, the denial of religious freedom, the untold suffering inflicted upon thousands of innocent people, he has a right and a duty to become angry and to give expression to his resentment. In every nook and corner of this land there is the deepest resentment over these things. Nor is there less resentment over Italy's threatened warfare upon a comparatively weak and defenseless nation.

There is a great wave of protest against cruelty and injustice. It is the voice of a Nation speaking out against man's inhumanity to man. It is the voice of men and women, regardless of creed, protesting against religious persecution, against cruelty, and against aggressive warfare. It is the voice of America protesting to the world that we live in a civilized age and crying out against inhuman practices calculated to bring great suffering to the world. And when the voice of America speaks even the State Department must listen.

WILBUR LA ROE, JR.

Oakland, Me., Aug. 18.

What The Northeast Wants.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post of August 14 quoted the Commissioners as saying that other sections of the city were protesting against the request of the Southeast for improvements on the grounds that Southeast pays a relatively small amount of taxes. Sunday's papers of August 18 quoted a civic association official as protesting against a small outlay in bituminous surfacing on several streets in the far Northeastern section of the District. We do not protest when other sections secure millions in bridges and concrete pavements, but we simply ask a fair share.

It seems that they are demanding that the WPA funds be allotted on the basis of wealth rather than the needs of the several sections of this city. We have no complete arterial highway with concrete pavement, curb, gutter, sidewalks or shade trees. Our arterial highway zigzags over nine streets from Minnesota avenue to Sixty-third street, and is a patched, makeshift macadam roadway.

We continue to ask for a first-class concrete arterial highway on Grant street, which is 100 feet wide, from Minnesota avenue to Fifty-ninth street northeast, and the improvement of Eastern avenue. This would serve not only the far Northeastern section of this city, but also adjacent Maryland.

After 15 years of pleading, the Commissioners have completed their studies of flood relief along the valley of Watts Run, Grant street and Deane avenue northeast, and the matter is now pigeonholed in the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, where we fear it will remain until all PWA and WPA funds have been allotted. They refused to consider this problem or give us an audience last week at their regular meeting. Floods here have caused loss of life and very heavy damage to property, and stop all street traffic at each high water.

HOWARD D. WOODSON,
President, Northeast Boundary City Association.

The G. O. P. Candidate.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When Republican Party delegates meet in convention next year, it can be taken for granted that the candidate selected for the Presidency will be one who at all times has been loyal to Republican Party principles, and whose public record has been consistent therewith. There is equal assurance that no one who has used the party label to secure public office, and whose course of action afterward has been more or less hostile to the best interests of the party, will be honored with a nomination.

With an able, consistent and loyal Republican as standard bearer in the 1936 campaign, the Republican Party can look forward with confidence to a signal victory. This is not a time for hackneyed politicians to press their claims for recognition. The Republican Party is not lacking in able and loyal leadership of men in the prime of life.

"MASSACHUSETTS REPUBLICAN."

Relief Complaints.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have heard the "New Deal" cussed and discussed in both the press and by word of mouth, but have not seen anything in the press about three very vital features of it. I ask space to present them.

First: Local political "machines" supply all help for administrative office and for the best jobs on the works. These people consider themselves better than the average relief worker and make it as hard on him as they can. Often they are not even civil. In some places it is freely admitted that the less competent a man is, the better his standing.

Second: "White-collar" workers, foremen and timekeepers must work several more hours each week than they can be paid for, lest they lose their jobs. Their time is turned in for the amount allowed in the schedule fixed at Washington, but they must not stop then.

Third: When a man cannot get a "square deal" from the local administrator and writes to headquarters, his letter is sent to the very man who would not accord him fair treatment at first—and he is soon the victim of spite work.

I think such practices should be known to everyone in the country.

No Medal For Rogers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Can honor's voice provoke the silent dust, or flattery soothe the dull, cold ear of death?"

No medals can assuage the sense of bereavement the sense of loss to the public, but the expenditure of public money proposed by an Oklahoma Representative would be a crime, in face of the hunger and need for life's necessities now torturing thousands of American men, women and children!

It would be a crime, whose first denouncer would have been that dear Will Rogers we love—that sweet man we've laughed with. He would scorn the squander of the people's money for so puerile, so futile, so inadequate a thing as a medal. It would be a cruel flingback of Will Rogers' laughter into his face.

Will Rogers needs only the love he left in the Nation's big, grieving heart! Wiley Post needs no bit of stamped gold to keep vivid the memory of his indomitable courage to an admiring world!

Commune And Communism.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the Sunday Post of August 18, H. B. Murkland, in speaking of the Paris Commune of 1871, says that it may be called "the first attempt to put scientific socialist theory into practice." Like many other writers, Mr. Murkland has been misled by the similarity of the French word "commune" to the English word "communism." The truth, of course, is that the Paris Commune of 1871 was neither Socialist nor Communist. The French word "commune" simply means a municipal corporation, and the rising of 1871 was a revolutionary assertion of the republican people of Paris of their right of self-government as a municipality.

The national assembly, where the monarchists had a two-thirds majority, had stopped the pay of the national guard and given to the landlords the right to exact full payment of rentals in arrears; 150,000 families in Paris were thrown into extreme poverty, and the misery produced the rebellion. The commune did its best to relieve the poor; but could carry out any socialist or other theory, as it lasted only ten weeks. It was suppressed by the monarchists with ruthless slaughter. J. J. KRAL.

"... or He To Hecuba?"

Post Office, Thursday.

IT'S a pleasant day that sees Cyril Maude—of Devonshire, England, and of all the English-speaking stage everywhere—join, even unwittingly, the ranks of contributors to this Column. But it was a mention of one of the Still Forgotten Men which brought our new recruit to the initiation chamber, and it is of that man we wish just now to speak, as illustrating the brevity of much theatrical fame: Daniel Bandmann.

Well-remembered Claus Bogel had been talking on the subject: he who, though now playing an important role at the Library of Congress, once played surpassingly well many another role on an equally distinguished stage. He said:

"Take for instance, Bandmann."

"Who," we inquired, "is he?"

And Bogel sufficiently answered:

"Not 'is'—you should say 'was;' in more senses than one it is 'was.' That's just the point. He was a good deal. He even seems to have had a more than American vogue. But today you can't find one person in a hundred who ever heard or read of him—not even in the theatrical profession."

* * *

The reputation of hundreds of second-rate painters survives their epochs—and their canvases. What is it that condemns so many popular actors to oblivion?

He flourished in the Sixties and Seventies—lingered on a little later. And "flourished" was the word—until the date of his decline. Born in Germany, he played Shakespeare in German and English, and in Germany, Australia and long years in every corner of the United States. He wrote a book of reminiscences, "An Actor's Tour, or 70,000 Miles with Shakespeare:" it's out of print. In a copy of Frank Leslie's Weekly, dated shortly after the Civil War, you can come across a laudatory article about him—and, except in the files of old newspapers, that's about all you'll find about him. Yet he was what a subsequent generation—itself an old generation now—called "a theatrical idol."

Bogel said: "I never saw him act, but I've heard my father speak of him. I remember, too, reading, as a boy, of his appearance at Faranta's Theater in New Orleans. That was probably in the last phase: a ten-twent'-thirt' affair. He must indeed have been a very old man then."

Bogel said he'd heard that many later celebrated actors played in Bandmann's company. In 1883, at 14, Julia Arthur made her professional debut as the Prince of Wales to Bandmann's Richard of Gloucester—remained with him for three years.

* * *

"And I think Cyril Maude acted with him, too," Bogel ventured. "As fine a man as he is an actor: Maude. Calm as only an Englishman can be, he made a tremendous contrast to our stage-director, Gustav von Seyffertitz. I remember another member of the company who, pleading long stage-experience, refused to follow the director's directions. 'Two t'ousand year' on de stage an' still don't know how to act!' groaned von Seyffertitz. Why, Maude told me——"

"Do you mean," somebody asked, "that you were once in Maude's company?"

Oh, yes: Bogel had played with Maude in the Frohman production of "Jeff."

"Then," it was urged, "write to Maude about Bandmann."

So Bogel wrote, and now Maude replies.

"Bandmann was a wonderfully clever actor in many ways," the immortal creator of "Grumpy" types from his lovely place in South Devon, where he is manifestly his own typist. "He gave a marvelous performance of Shylock. He seems to have been the last of the good old Barnstorming Tragedians. His Richard III was powerful—in fact, so powerful that I remember being simply terrified of him as he bent over me, flourishing a two-handed sword, against my poor little one covered in green velvet with a bit of gilt down its scabbard. So much so that I promptly left the stage, muttering a few Shakespearian remarks, and fled, as the Bard would have said, incontinently! When we had a bad house, I have known B to turn his back on the audience and bow low that way.

"It is 52 years since I played with him all through the (American) Western towns. We finished up in San Francisco at a theater then called the Mission St. Morgue—most appropriate name, too. He then wanted us to go on with him on reduced salaries—but!"

But that's not our "but." The word "clever" leaves our question open. Did Bandmann bite the scenery? So did Forrest. Did Bandmann chant his lines? Didn't (honestly, now) Booth? "Bandmann," Bogel muses, "must have possessed some extraordinary talent that, though it had such a great appeal, went unrecorded." Yet what talent.

* * *

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

No Redress For John Doe?

WHAT I would like to know is if a citizen goes along minding his own business, always cheering at parades, always saying "ma'am" to ladies and generally living up to his raising and then some poison-pen enemy elects him to the Democratic county committee in a Republican neighborhood simply by markipg a ballot by stealth in a voting booth, isn't there anybody he can sue? Isn't there any redress for that?

The problem is personal, because a man called up in our Connecticut suburb the other day saying he was a vice chairman of the Democratic county committee and asked what I was fixing to do about turning the rascals out.

"What rascals?" I asked.

"These Republicans," he said. "Jones, the road commissioner; Shine, the town supervisor, and the assessors and the town clerk and the town collector."

"What's the matter with them?"

"Republicans," said the vice chairman of the county committee—"every last one of them."

"What am I supposed to do?"

"Do?" said the vice chairman. "Hell, man, you've got to get them out of there! You've got to put up a fight. You're the local committeeman——"

"When you say that, smile," I said.

"Well, you are," he said.

"It's a lie," I said.

"It's not, either, any lie," he said. "I can prove it."

• • • •

HE brought out some papers. The world reeled, and everything went blank for a moment.

"Let's not raise our voices," I said. "Let's adjust this quietly. My reputation is all right around here, and I don't want a scandal. Tell me how this happened."

"Somebody voted for you last year and you got elected," he said. "Let me be the first to congratulate you."

"But doesn't a man get a trial in such cases?" I asked. "What about my constitutional rights? I never even got a subpena. This is the first I heard of it."

"No," the vice chairman said. "You were duly elected and certified and"—here he smiled comfortingly—"you know, there's patronage with it."

"You mean I'm a political boss?"

"Sure, a Jim Farley in a small way," he said. "You've got one election inspector to appoint. It pays $60 a year. Whom do you want to give the inspectorship to?"

"Don't try to trick me," I yelled. "You are trying to get me to squeal on a pal. I'll take my punishment if I have to, but I am not going to rat on a friend. I only want to know who elected me."

• • • •

"ISN'T there anybody around here that could use the 60 bucks?" the vice chairman wheedled.

"But around here they won't even let you in the polling place if they think you're a Democrat," I said, "much less permit you to sit at the table alongside respectable, God-fearing Republicans of the best families as a Democratic inspector."

"We are going to change all that," he said. "But first we have got to turn the rascals out. Now, how about you running for road supervisor? You can vote for yourself—that's one. And your inspector will vote for you—that's two."

"But do you know what the road supervisor has to do," I said. "He has to get out and dig out culverts and mow weeds in summer and in the winter he has to be out at 6 in the morning with a tractor and shovels clearing away snow. That's not like being something in the AAA or the HOLC. That's a working job—with a shovel."

"But there's no danger," he said. "You won't get elected with just two of you voting for you."

"Who started this, anyway," I demanded. "I want to get to the bottom of it. I'll admit I am a Democrat, but who squealed, and can't I do anything to fix it up in a quiet way? I might be able to dig up $10."

He waved this aside.

• • • •

"YOU owe a duty to your party," he said. "Party leaders like you and Homer Cummings and Joe Robinson have got to stand by our President. It's a disgrace up here—all these Republicans, and you wanting to square things for $10."

"Get out of here!" I yelled. "I deny everything. I'll demand a jury trial. No man can come into my little love bower and call me a Democratic committeeman in the presence of my loved ones. Go on, you cad—scram!"

The vice chairman bowed.

"Oh, another Huey Long, eh?" he said. "Not regular. Going to jump the party. All right, jump. But wait till we turn the rascals out, and then I hope you get a ticket for speeding some night and come around to the Administration to square it. And you might as well understand you lose your patronage. Your $60 inspectorship is out."

Party lines are crumbling up our way.

Another Thriller

By William Lyon Phelps

A LITTLE while ago I expressed in this column my admiration for Carroll J. Daly' because all of his murder stories are so crowded with exciting action.

Well, here is another American writer of detective novels who has an equally strong clutch on the reader's undivided attention, and who has created a detective so original that the books in which he appears are worth study and reflection, as well as the time spent in entertainment, only they are so fearfully exciting that one has no leisure to think.

• • • •

This writer is Rex Stout, and like so many other American authors, was born in Indiana. He has had extensive experience in business, from office boy to hotel manager, and, not content with life on shore, he was for some time in the United States Navy.

The only thing wrong with his murder story of 1934 was its title; for some reason he called it "Fer de Lance," a name beyond the range of most readers, including myself. I never knew until I read this novel that fer de lance is a poisonous snake, about seven feet long, whose bite is usually deadly, and which does not give warning of his nearness by a rattle. In this story appears a detective weighing about 300 pounds, called Nero Wolfe, who is as fond of beer as Bulldog Drummond. He does all his work motionless in a chair, and has an intellect that matches his frame. I say this book is a thriller, but it is also filled with such keen observation that it would be worth reading even if it lacked excitement.

Japan And The Philippines

With Independence Nearing, Islanders Must Choose Between Trebling Cost Of Living By Tariffs To Protect American Trade Or Yielding All Commerce To Japanese Invasion.

By Vicente Albano Pacis.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Manila (By Mail).

ALTHOUGH the forthcoming Philippine-American economic conference, which President Roosevelt has promised to call, perhaps in Manila as soon as the Commonwealth is inaugurated in November, is strengthening Filipino hope that there can be economic prosperity with political independence, the Japanese angle of the local economic situation is a veritable dilemma to both the Philippines and America.

Observers believe that the Philippines have only two ways out of the onsetting economic difficulty as a result of independence. The first is trade reciprocity between America and the Philippines, and the second is what Governor General Frank Murphy calls "an economics that will not be largely sugar, but which will square off with independence." Both these alternatives, however, appear difficult of attainment in the face of Japan's economic activities in the Philippines.

Under a tariff reciprocity, the main problem will be Japan. And under an independent economic scheme, the main problem will also be Japan. The Filipino consumer is so used to buying cheap Japanese goods that a tariff adequate to protect American articles on the Philippine market will abruptly raise his cost of living to a level which will greatly reduce, if not altogether, stop his buying. On the other hand, if America should give up the Philippine market, Japan would have it all to itself in no time. And with Japan economic king in the Philippines, the democracy which America founded here will forever be in danger.

JAPANESE articles generally cost only a third of what the corresponding American commodity sells for. This is true with respect to textiles, to footwears, to toys and hardware, to electric appliances and even to building materials. A Japanese shirt costing 75 centavos is worth, at least, three times with an American label. The difference between a Japanese and an American shirt corresponding to these prices is only in workmanship and quality, but then the masses are not quality buyers. It follows that to protect the American shirt, the Japanese shirt must be made to pay a 200 per cent ad valorem duty. Unfortunately, it also follows that a 200 per cent increase in ad valorem duty also means, at least, a 200 per cent increase in the price the masses must pay for imported goods.

If Japanese articles were dominant in only one or two lines, it would not be so bad. But the truth is that America has allowed Japanese economic encroachments in the Philippines too long. Since the great market crash in 1929, Japan has slowly but surely appropriated the Philippine market. Today Japanese articles constitute easily two-thirds of the entire stocks in retail stores all over the Philippines run by Filipinos, Japanese or Chinese. In order to retrieve the Philippine market for the United States, the insular Legislature would have to treble the tariff duties now levied on Japanese articles, an act which would automatically treble the general cost of living. Whether local consumers would stand for or could stand such an abrupt upsetting of the economic level remains to be seen.

But, after all, it is generally understood that when the Governor General said that Philippine economics must square off with independence he had in mind not a continuance of some sort of trade reciprocity between the United States and the islands but a greater economic independence of the Philippines from the American market. And the Governor General is running the Roosevelt economic conference.

• • • •

IT was Gov. Murphy who, while in Washington, urged Roosevelt to announce the calling of the conference simultaneously with the approval of the Philippine constitution, under which the Commonwealth will be governed. It was he who, while in the Capital, suggested the organization of an interdepartmental committee consisting of undersecretaries of departments to study the Philippine question from every angle. His statements before this committee, as well as the committee's subsequent findings, will form the basis of the American views at the conference.

Upon returning to Manila, the Governor also organized a similar committee, consisting, however, of secretaries of departments and supported by a group of technical men in and outside of the government. This committee is now busy studying the Philippine side for presentation at the conference.

As Gov. Murphy seems to be the brains of the conference, and as the conference may be held in Manila, it is expected that he will exert a tremendous influence on its deliberations and recommendations. If this is true, then it is reasonable to expect that he will urge "an economics that will square off with independence." Whatever may be the other features of this new economics, it is certain that it will try to correct the almost absolute dependence of Philippine exports upon the American market.

• • • •

BUT if tariff reciprocity is discarded as a solution, then the motive for protecting the local market against Japanese goods is also eliminated. And an unprotected market will surely mean a greater impetus in the economic penetration of the islands by Japan. Even with only the present opening wedge, Japan will have acquired complete economic dominance in the Philippines by the time the Commonwealth ends and the republic is to begin. With the wedge widened, the Japanese economic conquest of the islands will of course be more rapid and more complete.

Does the Japanese flag follow Japanese trade? This is the great question of the moment in Philippine-American relations. With the political angle of the relationship all settled and disposed of, a greater concentration on its economic side has been possible with the result that new dangers heretofore unseen or disregarded have become more obvious. So ominously does Japan loom in the horizon that Philippine public opinion is even now being prepared for the proposition, which the economic conference will consider, that if Philippine economics cannot be made to square off with Philippine independence, should Philippine independence be made to square off with the best possible Philippine economics? The Filipinos are being made to understand that if Japan blocks the way to advance, then a shift and even a retreat may be the better part of valor.

Tamed City

By Peter Kihss

Lewisohn Concert.

New York.

THEY call this the city of jazz. Yet, for 18 years now, night after summer night, hundreds of the sons of Knickerbocker have been worshiping the music of the classics. Night after night, these 18 years, the city's crowds have been eddying into great concrete-tiered Lewishon football stadium, high upon a knob in western Manhattan, thronging to listen to the great operas, surging to attend the world's symphonies, to witness the gossamer-delicate ballets of the nations.

These are strange crowds for New York. They say this is jazz town. Here, they say, music is an accessory to noise. Here music is said to be considered merely an excuse for high-stepping and gallivanting. Here, and it's true, the town is full of night clubs, where orchestras play in sometimes-losing competition with spectator's chatter.

• • • •

YET, here it is night time in the stadium. Now an orchestra is playing the music called classic—music now subdued and gently rustling—music suddenly blaring into martial magnitudes. And the crowd? Silent. Piercingly, beautifully, rightfully silent.

It is a spectacle worth glimpsing, worth imitating. It is the sort of thing Washington is beginning to experience in its riverside concerts this year.

To the wind and the stars, Lewisohn Stadium is open. Now a moon of amber so soft that its roundness blends away into the sky smiles upon perhaps 4,000 silent spectators. Darkness caresses all those present. Darkness save only on the stage where the iris slashes of the costumes of the opera swish bright across a background of golden brown. Darkness save only in the pit where tubes of lights upon musicians' stands gleam like little fireflies.

• • • •

THE crowd, most of it, is enraptured. Night after night most of its members come, all the faithful. Often they do not even ask the name of the offering. Content they are just to sit, to listen. Some of the members, as always, are grim in their intentness. They work at being the audience. They are like elements in music crowds everywhere. They are music's "lovers." They attend because fashion bids.

Then there are others, those who give New York its carefree reputation, those who find their gayest pleasure in just being in the crowd. For them, life begins when the scene ends, when lights flash on, when soft drink and peanut salesmen leap into the aisles to cry unto heaven.

"Coming up—two cones," predicts and asks a voice four rows high.

"O. K., coming."

The crowd laughs.

• • • •

BUT then again the lights dim. Silence reconquers the crowd. Dazzling hues flounce across the stage. The grimy spires of City College soften into neighborliness. Harmony wafts across the field.

To the din of the city, summer is adding an undertone of classicism. For 18 years it has repeated the process. They say that this year—no one can know just why—the crowds have broken all records. Fifteen thousand men and women heard Jascha Heifetz stroke his violin a fortnight ago.

Now there are midsummer night concerts in the larger parks. A band plays nightly in Central Park here, in Prospect Park across the East River in Brooklyn. The crowds are getting bigger. Music tames the city.

The Once Over

Crosson's Flight.

Winging down the misty trail
In a curtained plane—
Bringing home two pals who won't
Fly the course again.

Purring from the tundra waste
With a heavy heart
Bearing back two flying chums—
Best of friends must part.

Zooming down the Western Coast,
Death within your crew . . .
Will and Wiley silent there
Flying through the blue.

Droning thru the ghostly mists .
Torn in heart and mind,
Crosson brings his buddies home—
Theirs the ties that bind.

Coming thru the black of night . . .
Hear the motors roar!
Will and Wiley coming back—
They will fly no more.

Through the faintly breaking day
Crosson's plane appears;
Death can never, never part
These three musketeers.

There it dips upon the wind,
Flashing in the sun . . .
"Good and faithful servants all!"
Says a Voice, "Well done!"

Ticking off the lonely miles,
Wiley, Will and Joe;
Two are stark and silent there
But they know . . . they know!

Bodies in the darkened hull
But their spirits ride
Up in front, and Crosson knows
They are at his side.

There! The final landing's made
Near the dark, fresh loam . . .
Will and Wiley know the truth—
Joe has brought them home!

The United States had better rush that neutrality announcement through before some of the boys start writing "Over There" songs.

Way Is Cleared To End Jam on Rail Pensions

House Committee Drafts 'Gentlemen's Agreement' Involving President.

By the Associated Press.

A "gentlemen's agreement," involving the President, was reported last night to hold promise of breaking up the jam delaying final congressional action on the new railroad pensions system.

The proposal was submitted for the President's consideration after the House Ways and Means Committee reached an apparent impasse in their work on the plan.

Two bills are involved—one already passed and on the President's desk calling for pensions of as much as $120 a month to railroad employes who retire at 65. The other, tied up in the Ways and Means Committee, would levy payroll and income taxes on employers and employes to finance the pensions.

The Ways and Means Committee was informed that if the tax bill, with its 4 per cent levy on pay rolls and 2 per cent on income, were allowed to go through, the Government immediately would be obligated to provide more than $2,000,000,000 in cash.

Agreement Framed.

Within ten years, they were advised, the Federal obligation would reach $4,000,000,000. So they worked out this agreement:

Pass the tax bill and let the President, Vice President and Speaker each appoint members to a special board which would survey the situation and report back to Congress by next January 3.

Since the pensions laws would not become effective until next March, the special board would have time to determine how much the maximum pensions should be reduced or how much the taxes raised to make the pension system self-sustaining.

The plan was outlined to Charles West, presidential liaison man on the Hill, with the understanding that he would talk it over with the President and report back to the House committee early this morning.

Taxes to Increase.

Involved in the agreement also was an increase in the proposed tax, which, at its 6 per cent level, would raise $90,000,000 to $105,000,000 the first year.

The proposals most talked of were to boost the taxes either to a total of 7 or 8 per cent.

But one supporter of the measure, Reresentative Monaghan (Democrat,) Montana, who has spent hours with the committee in executive session, said the $4,000,000,000 deficit could be calculated only by figuring that railroad business was going to get worse and that rail workers who retired at 65 would live longer than the 12 years which insurance companies accept as the expected longevity.

"Figures don't lie, but sometimes liars figure," he said, although emphasizing he did not mean to criticize Treasury actuaries.

While the committee was battling on the problem, railway labor executives and representatives of 21 standard railway labor unions talked over the bill with the President.

They assured him they were willing to support a tax bill raising money necessary to finance the law.

Earlier, congressional sources had been informed the President wanted both bills enacted this session because there was no certainty the next session would approve the companion tax raiser.

Louis Howe Moved To Naval Hospital

Presidential Secretary Is Declared Much Improved.

Louis McHenry Howe, secretary to President Roosevelt, who has been recuperating for months from a serious illness, was moved from the White House to the Naval Hospital yesterday.

It was explained that he could be more comfortable at the hospital than at the White House, where plumbing and electrical equipment are being installed.

Mrs. Roosevelt accompanied Howe to the hospital. Dr. Ross T. McIntire, White House physician, said that the secretary continued to show consistant improvement.

It is expected that the entire White House family will be forced to move soon because of the work going on in the building. They are expected to go to Hyde Park following adjournment of Congress.

Taylor Grazing Bill Sent to White House

By the Associated Press.

Congressional action was completed yesterday on amendments to the Taylor grazing act with House approval of the conference report already adopted by the Senate. It now goes to President Rooseyelt.

The measure increases the limitation on public lands which may be included in grazing districts from 80,000,000 to 142,000,000 acres.

Veterans' Measure Goes to President

By the Associated Press.

Congress sent to the President yesterday a resolution by Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, giving veterans with insurance claims against the Veterans' Administration 90 days from the time their claims are denied to file suit for collection.

The legislation would be effective as of July 3, 1930, and applied to all suits now pending. Any suit that was dismissed solely on the grounds that time had elapsed for such action may be reinstated within 90 days after presidential approval of the resolution.

'Down With Il Duce' Cry Heard in Paris

Paris, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—Shouting "Down With Mussolini," a small parade of French Colonial Negroes staged a sympathy demonstration for their brothers in Ethiopia today.

Leaders were arrested and several bruised in fist fights with police, who drove them from the boulevards in accordance with a ban on all street manifestations.

CCC to Persist In Buying Shoes Of Composition

But Protests By Leather Interest Cause Cut in Proportion.

By the Associated Press.

In the face of strenuous protests from leather and cattle interests, the Civilian Conservation Corps has ordered bids on 187,500 pairs of shoes with composition heels and soles.

But the order represents a 50 per cent reduction from original plans. Bids will be received at the same time on 562,500 pairs of shoes with full leather heels and soles to determine which are cheaper.

Robert Fechner, director of the corps, in discussing the method by which he arrived at the decision to so divide this purchase of 750,000 pairs of shoes, said:

"I decided that we should not equip all of these shoes with composition heels and soles, but should equip a quantity sufficient to demonstrate fully the possibilities of shoes thus equipped for Civilian Conservation Corps use.

His First Intention.

"Accordingly, I first directed that one-half of the 750,000 pairs of shoes, or 375,000, be equipped with composition heels and soles, but on reconsideration it was decided that one-fourth of this total, or 187,500 pairs, would be sufficient.

"It has been stated to me that by departing from the leather sole and heel this office would be in opposition to the general policy of the Government with respect to improving the leather market. Further, that the policy is to favor home-grown goods against foreign products.

Sees Cotton Benefit.

"On this score I desire to make the following observations: First, that I consider my primary duty to be to the Civilian Conservation Corps and by whatever amount I can reduce the cost of shoes or of anything else entering into its maintenance by just so much can I take more young men off the street and rehabilitate them.

"Second, if I can reduce the accident rate due to slipping, I not only save suffering among these young men but I increase the amount of constructive work which the corps can accomplish, and, third, that while there would be some decrease in the amount of leather in the shoes, the cotton market benefits, since the type of composition sole and heel in question contains a large percentage of cotton."

Officials said the War Department, which makes all purchases for the corps, would call for bids soon.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., Aug. 21.—Alleging that her husband broke an agreement in a deed of separation, Mrs. Hattie V. Wech, manager of the Vindobona Hotel, Braddock Heights, has asked the Circuit Court to dismiss his petition in which he seeks to gain possession of a library valued at several thousand dollars which he charges his wife with having sold or concealed. Wech is a resident of Washington.

Mrs. Wech said that under terms of the agreement the library was to become the property of her husband and he was to remove it within a period of 18 months from the agreement date. In its place he was to fill the library room with books, part of which were to be taken from the library and the remainder to be purchased by him. Mrs. Wech says her husband broke this agreement and carried away certain property which under the terms of deed belonged to her.

White House Expected to Act In Utilities Jam

Congress Awaits Roosevelt Compromise Scheme on 'Death Clause.'

By the Associated Press.

Direct presidential intervention to compromise the deadlock on the Administration utilities bill was forecast last night in authoritative congressional quarters.

Upon this information Democratic Senate and House leaders decided upon an effort to keep Congress in session until some sort of a utilities regulatory measure is enacted.

Informed sources said the President was prepared to send a letter to one of the Senate or House handlers of the utilities measure, suggesting a compromise instead of arbitrary abolition of "unnecessary" holding companies after 1942.

Leaders Summoned.

Such a suggestion, it was said, would follow lines of the compromise proposed earlier in the day to the Senate and House conference committees and rejected by the House group. It was presented by Senator Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, and would eliminate the mandatory 1942 date, but direct the Securities Commission to reduce holding companies to single integrated systems.

Shortly after reports of presidential intervention reached the Capitol, the House conferees on the utilities bill were summoned to meet today. Speaker Byrns and Chairman O'Connor (Democrat), New York, of the Rules Committee, planned to be present to discuss the compromise.

Earlier in the day the conference committees had broken up in bitter disagreement and with one official statement that the bill was dead.

But, quickly, Administration chieftains conferred. Vice President Garner, Speaker Byrns, Representative Taylor (Democrat), Colorado, acting floor leader, and Chairman O'Connor (Democrat), New York, of the House Rules Committee met. Garner was reported to have said President Roosevelt wanted the compromise and that Senate leaders thought the House should vote on it.

"I still have hopes of getting a utilities bill," Byrns said after this gathering. "The compromise in all probability will be offered the House first, today or tomorrow, on a motion to instruct the conferees to accept the compromise."

"Up to the House."

But it was known that with two previous House votes on the dissolution clause in mind, Chairman Rayburn (Democrat), Texas, of the Interstate Commerce Committee was reluctant to ask another ballot before one by the Senate.

The Senate conferees felt differently.

"It's up to the House, entirely," Chairman Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, of the Senate conferees, told newspapermen. "We've offered them a compromise on behalf of the Senate. We can do no more."

"Do you think this is the end of the bill so far as this session is concerned," he was asked.

"It would seem so," he replied.

But Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, was another who declined to admit that the measure was dead.

Senator Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, author of the compromise proposal, reported the situation in person to President Roosevelt. Back at the Capitol they said the situation was unchanged, but it was considered significant that Senators immediately went into conference with Ben Cohen and Thomas Corcoran, the Administration aids who have assisted throughout in the drafting of the bill.

Arlington Body To Aid Clergy In Beer Fight

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Co-operation of the county board with the Arlington County Ministerial Union's efforts to bring about a closing at midnight of the cafes in the county selling beer is assured, it was revealed last night.

Plans are under way, according to B. M. Smith, chairman of the county board, by the Ministerial Union to hold a special meeting in the near future at which resolutions will be adopted asking that the county board take the matter up with the State Alcohol Beverage Control Board.

While it is known that the county board has no authority to regulate the sale of beer in Arlington County it is felt that there support in the matter will have much weight with the State authorities, Mr. Smith stated.

Smith states that he is in sympathy with the movement, is giving it all his support as a citizen and will unite with members of the board in adopting any action sought by the Ministerial Union.

It is expected that the matter will come to the attention of the board at its first meeting in September if not before.

A conference at an early date between members of the Arlington County board and officials of the National Park and Planning Commission to work out a definite plan for completion of the southern approaches to Washington appeared likely last night following the meeting on Tuesday night of representatives of the Arlington County civic groups.

The committee representing the Arlington County Civic Federation, the Jefferson Civic League, the Columbia Pike Improvement Association and the Arlington Ridge Citizens Association adopted a resolution calling upon the county board to request from the Planning Commission a comprehensive plan of the roadways and also requesting the two agencies to collaborate.

Following the adoption of the resolution, H. D. Woodward, who acted as chairman of the group, said the idea behind the move was to obtain a plan for highway development which every one in Arlington County would support.

The key to the solution, according to the committee, is the completion of the northern route of the Lee boulevard, connecting with the Arlington Memorial Bridge.

A conference between the county board and Planning Commission is expected to be arranged following the board's meeting on August 30.

B. M. Smith, chairman of the county board, when advised of the committee's action stated that he was confident that the plan would have the united support of the county board.

In an effort to relieve traffic congestion and make travel more safe through Clarendon, it was learned last night that an ordinance providing for one-way parking along North Irving, North Hudson and Henderson streets on the west side is about to be advertised.

In accordance with the provisions of the law, ordinances so advertised come before the board for its approval 30 days thereafter.

Summer Camp Leaders in Report Reveal That 123 Boys Get Aid.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 623.

Members of the Alexandria Kiwanis Club will assemble at the George Mason Hotel at noon today to go to Washington and join the club of that city in an interclub meeting at the Mayflower Hotel. Harry F. Kennedy, first vice president of the club, will head the delegation.

Roger C. Sullivan, chairman of the summer camp activities committee, reports that to date 111 boys have been given outings of from one week to ten days at the camp, and on Monday next the last group will be taken to the camp, making a total of 123 for the season. This is approximately 20 more than were taken care of in 1934.

During the period of caring for the underprivileged boys at the Kiwanis camp this year, five boys have been treated at the Alexandria Hospital, one for a major operation, two for broken arms, and two had tonsils removed. Four more are to be given hospital treatment next week. The average gain in weight of the boys this year has been 4½ pounds, slightly more than in previous years.

The stage is set for the donkey baseball game tonight at Baggett's Stadium by the Alexandria Lions Club for the benefit of the charity fund of that organization. Isadore Bregman is general chairman.

Constable Slaps Driver's Wrist, Ends Battle Without a Shot

Montgomery County Officer Uses Quick Thinking, Foils Quick Shooting.

The quick wits of Constable J. H. Davis, of Bethesda, early yesterday averted a gun battle between Robert T. Green, 43, colored, of 1628 Corcoran street northwest, who had been reported to police as a drunken driver, and Montgomery County officers.

Green was stopped just after driving his car zigzag through a red light at Wisconsin avenue and East-West highway by Sergt. D. LeRoy Snyder, with whom Davis was riding. When challenged, he attempted to pull a loaded .32-caliber revolver on Snyder.

Seeing Green's hand emerge from his pocket with the gun, Davis struck him on the hand and pulled his own revolver. Green's gun clattered to the running board of his car and the officers took him to Bethesda police station, where he was booked on charges of carrying a concealed weapon and drunken driving.

He later was released on $1,000 bond to appear in Rockville Court Monday.

This was the second gun case this week to come to the attention of Bethesda police. Elbet Beverly Rhodes, 53, a carpenter, was booked on a similar charge when he attempted to pull a gun on J. H. Vogel, of the Washington Suburban Sanitary District, Monday, in a quarrel over the right to use parking space in Westhaven, near Massachusetts avenue extended, in Maryland. He was arrested by Sergt. J. S. McAuliffe and Private W. S. Crawford, and is being held in $500 bond pending his trial Friday.

Arlington Youth Killed by Train

Twenty-six hours after George Justis Humphrey, jr., 21, left his home at Hatfield in Arlington County, his father at noon yesterday identified his mangled body, found early in the morning lying in the right of way of the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railway Co., at Bush Hill, near Franconia, Fairfax County.

"I thought nothing of his going (young Humphrey left home about 10 a. m. Tuesday) until we missed him at home this morning," the anguished Humphrey, sr., said.

"He was a good boy. He didn't smoke. He never drank. He was not one to run around. I don't know why my boy should leave home that way. He drew some money out of the bank Monday, saying that he was going to make a trip to North Carolina to visit his uncle, D. E. Pinckny, but there was no reason for him going any other way than by train."

Police said Humphrey, jr., obviously had preferred ties and cinders burning beneath an August sun to air-conditioned coaches. Dr. A. C. Hanson, Fairfax County coroner, issued a verdict of accidental death last night.

Annulment Asked August Bigamist

Mrs. La Vaughn Witt, of Capitol Heights, Md., yesterday asked the Prince Georges County Circuit Court for an annulment of her marriage to John Amos Witt, a convicted bigamist.

In her suit, filed at Upper Marlboro, she pointed out that he was sentenced in that court August 1, 1933, to three years in the Maryland Penitentiary for failing to obtain a divorce from Miss Serafino Arcabasso, of Flushing, Long Island.

The plaintiff also declared she had been informed that, after she married Witt in Capitol Heights in 1927, he engaged in another illegal marriage with a woman from Charlotte Hall, Md.

The present Mrs. Witt asked custody of her three children, June Irene, 7; Doris Estelle, 5, and Florence Virginia, 3. Thomas J. Luckett, Mayor of Capitol Heights, has been retained as attorney.

WHY WE CALL IT "AIR-CONDITIONED" AMERICAN GAS

OUR new American Gas is called "AIR-CONDITIONED" because it does the same things for a motor that "air-conditioning" does for trains, theatres, stores, etc. It keeps the motor cool, sweet and efficient—no matter what the outside changes in temperature and humidity may be.

For even in the course of a day, a motor can be subjected to a lot of weather changes. And with existing regular gasolines it becomes erratic.

Because of its 100% Pure Petroleum Base—because it is not acid treated—because it needs no added chemicals—because of our new refinery and modern processes—and because of careful adjustment of light end content—we have been able to condition this new American Gas to counteract erratic motor performance caused by changes in outside temperature and humidity.

As a result of all these things, it is 100% clean burning—does not leave harmful deposits—has greater net power—and nets more miles to the gallon. And for good measure, a higher anti-knock rating than other regular gasolines to which chemicals are added for anti-knock alone.

"AIR-CONDITION" Your Motor!

Stop at any Yellow and Black American Gas Pump and fill up your tank with "AIR-CONDITIONED" American Gas. Then keep your car "air-conditioned" with "AIR-CONDITIONED" American Gas. Even though it costs us more to produce, it is being sold at regular gas price from Maine to Florida and inland by thousands of American dealers and stations.

Legation Made Embassy As China Gains in Rank

President Roosevelt Receives Credentials of Dr. Sze as Official Recognition of the First Diplomatic Rise in Years.

After several years Washington again witnessed the rise of a legation to the status of an embassy, when yesterday afternoon the President received Dr. Sao-Ke Alfred Sze at the White House, when he presented his credentials as ambassador after serving his country in Washington as minister, first in 1921 to 1928 and this time since February, 1933.

The last legation to be raised to an embassy was that of Poland. The former Ambassador, Mr. Tytus Filipoweiz, came to this country as minister, succeeding Mr. Jan Ciechanowski, and a few months after his arrival the legation was elevated to an embassy, and Mr. Filipoweiz became the first Ambassador of Poland to Washington. Mr. John B. Stetson was the first United States Ambassador to Warsaw.

U. S. Embassy Elevated.

The United States Legation in China also has been elevated to an embassy and Mr. Nelson Trusler Johnson, also a popular member of Washington society, who has spent many years in the Capital, was made ambassador. He has served in the State Department in various capacities, including chief of the division of Far Eastern affairs, and later as Assistant Secretary of State, and is in great favor with his friends and colleagues as our first Ambassador to China.

The Ambassador and Mme. Sze are among the most popular members of the Diplomatic Corps and have many friends throughout the country, as both are graduates of Cornell University. The ambassador's elevation from minister is a well-earned reward for service to his country and the better understanding between his government and that of the United States.

The Ambassador entertained at dinner Tuesday evening at the Republic Chinese Restaurant in honor of the 13 Boy Scouts of China and their leaders who were on the high seas en route to this country to attend the International Jamboree when the meeting was canceled because of the proximity of the camp to the section of Virginia where an epidemic of infantile paralysis prevailed.

The guests were the leader of the Chinese Boy Scouts, Dr. Chi Lin Yen, and the assistant leader, Mr. Kwan Yu Hsu. The representatives of the United States' Boy Scouts were Mr. Linn C. Drake, the leader; Mr. J. Wallace Talley, Mr. Harvey Gordon, Dr. E. C. Martin, Mr. Hubert Maze, Mr. Hugh C. Armstrong, and the 13 Chinese Boy Scouts. Members of the staff included at the dinner were the First Secretary, Mr. M. S. Lao; the Second Secretary, Mr. T. L. Tsui; the Third Secretary, Mr. P. C. Huang, and the Attache of Embassy, Mr. J. Z. Huang.

A drive down the Mount Vernon Memorial highway will give an idea of the elaborate plans which had been made to accommodate the Boy Scouts from foreign lands as well as those from the United States who were making the trip from as far West as California, Oregon and Washington.

The Ambassador will leave Washington in a day or two for Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., to join Mme. Sze and their family for the week-end in the cottage that they have leased for the summer.

Albanian Minister to Sail.

The newly appointed United States Minister to Albania and Mrs. Hugh Grant expect to sail shortly for Albania, where the former will assume his new duties. They will be accompanied by their daughter, Miss Louise Grant.

Dr. Finot in New York.

Iran Minister at Rehoboth.

The Minister of Iran and Mme. Djalal have returned to Rehoboth Beach, Del., where they are spending the summer, after a day in Washington yesterday.

Mrs. Samuel Ficklen And Daughter Back At Home in Capital

Mrs. Samuel P. Ficklen and her daughter, Miss Imogene Ficklen, have returned to their home in Washington after visiting in Virginia.

Miss Ficklen, who was a popular debutante of last season, has spent the summer attending various house parties at Charlottesville and Virginia Beach. She also visited her uncle, Mr. John Corbell, at his summer home at the seashore.

Later she joined her mother and together they motored through the southwestern part of the State, stopping for a time with their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. William Pannill, in Martinsville.

High U. S. Officials Will Attend 'Annapolis Farewell' Premiere

Distinguished officials of the Government will attend the world premiere of "Annapolis Farewell" tonight at 8 o'clock at Warner Bros. Metropolitan Theater.

Among the honor guests will be the Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull, the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Henry Morgenthau, jr.; Mr. Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Emergency Relief Administrator; the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Harry A. McBride, Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota; Senator Park Trammel, of Florida, chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, and Mrs. Trammel; Representative Carl Vinson, of Georgia, chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee, and Mrs. Vinson.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Henry L. Roosevelt, will head the representatives of the Navy Department, including Admiral W. H. Standley, Chief of Naval Operations; Rear Admiral Adolphus Andrews, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation; Rear Admiral J. K. Taussig, Assistant Chief of Naval Operations, and Capt. Frank Jack Fletcher, aid to Secretary of the Navy Claude Swanson.

Midshipmen to Attend.

Headed by Commander Oscar Badger, acting commandant of the United States Naval Academy, the entire second class of 330 midshipmen and officers from the United States Naval Academy also will attend the opening of this picture, which was filmed on the Academy grounds at Annapolis last June. The premiere is expected to be the most elaborate and colorful ever held in the East.

Paramount Newsreel cameras will record the arrival of the distinguished guests at the Metropolitan tonight. The theater itself will be decorated with flags and bunting. All the pomp and circumstance of a gala premiere will be included, in addition to the presence of officials and the midshipmen who could appear nowhere else in the United States.

The Naval Academy Band Orchestra will occupy the pit of the Metropolitan and will play during the evening's program. This orchestra appears in the picture during the June Week hop scenes.

Newsreel Opens Program.

The program, announced today by John J. Payette, Warner Bros. general zone manager, will open with a Newsreel and a Vitaphone Technicolor short, "Romance of the West," then "Anchors Aweigh" will be played by the orchestra. A bugler will then blow assembly as the lights fade and "Annapolis Farewell" appears on the screen. Following the picture, other numbers, including "The Blue and Gold," will be played by the orchestra.

Sir Guy Standing, Tom Brown, Rosalind Keith, Richard Cromwell and Director Alexander Hall headed the contingent from Hollywood which came to Annapolis last June to make "Annapolis Farewell," which is an authentic story of midshipmen life. Full co-operation of Naval and Academy officials resulted in a film which has been given the Navy Department's stamp of approval.

Because the midshipmen play such a prominent part in the picture, they were permitted to come to Washington tonight to represent the Academy at the premiere. Buses will bring them to the Willard Hotel here, where they will meet relatives and friends before going to see the picture.

Hair on Limbs Yields Quickly To New Cream

Preparation May Be Used on Face Without Harm to Complexion.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

ONE of the most vexatious of all beauty problems concerns the hair—superfluous hair on arms, legs and face. Freckles, crow's-feet, dry skin, all these fade into insignificance beside this one problem. So far science has been unsuccessful in finding any preparation which would check the growth of this hair permanently.

There's electrolysis, of course, or more explicitly the deadening of the hair roots by an electric needle. This process is both tedious and expensive, although many women have found it a satisfactory solution of their hair troubles.

Most women turn to preparations which may be externally applied. They hope against hope they may find one which takes away the superfluous hair—and keeps it away. Others fear to use these preparations lest they injure their skin.

Let's be perfectly practical and honest about the horde of hair removers on the market and choose one out of this large number which may be used with excellent results. Do not suppose there is only one. As a matter of fact, there are dozens which remove hair easily and safely. Naturally the hair growth will return—that is to be expected.

This one preparation we have in mind is so safe that it may even be used on the face without harming the skin. To make it even more convenient to use, the manufacturers have put up a regular kit which includes a generous sized jar of the remover cream, a soothing cream and lotion, and an antiseptic cream. This kit, complete enough for the most ardent worker on hair removing, is modestly priced, and one of the most unique arrangements of its kind on the market. The preparation may be bought separately, of course, but who can resist the appeal of this compact group?

While this remover does not permanently take away the hair—it does the next best thing. It takes the hairs away right down to the skin so that they do not grow back to normal length for quite some time. Furthermore, if it is used consistently, it actually discourages the growth of superfluous hair so that instead of returning each time thicker, and coarser, it grows more sparsely.

"Bob-ette" on Market.

GIRLS who are allowing their long locks to grow should give an enthusiastic welcome to "bob-ette." Now "bob-ette" is a curler with a knack for making waves look as though Mother Nature placed them there herself. It's only about so big, and weighs about so much, being the featherweight champion in the curler clan.

Although bob-ette looks very much like curling irons it works in an altogether different manner, requires no heat, and can be placed in the hair and left there till the curl is ready.

You simply wind those awkward ends about bob-ette — be sure the hair is damp first—then clamp down. In a little while, when the hair is dry, remove the tricky little curler, and see what a wave you have!

"Bob-ette" is grand for any kind of curl, but it's ideal for bothersome, scraggly ends. Price? 10 cents!

Bags for 49 Cents.

OF course it's a bit late to buy a white handbag, but think about this. Maybe yours is pretty dirty about now, and maybe it looks quite the worse for wear. Are you going to continue to use it and allow it to mar your well-groomed effect? Why should you? Regular dollar bags (white) are reduced now to 49 cents in a downtown store.

Why don't you pick up one for this modest sum and enjoy it the rest of the summer? Besides you can start out with it next spring!

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of The Washington Post, National 4200, Extension 305, for further information, or write, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope.

Strictly Speaking

Try These.

1. When are "hanged" and "hung" correctly used?

2. What is the meaning of the phrase "to throw a tub to a whale?"

Check Here.

1. When a criminal is executed by hanging, he is "hanged" not "hung." In other senses of the verb hang "hung" is the correct past tense and past participle. Thus, "They hanged the horse thief to the nearest tree, and the body hung till morning."

2. To satisfy a pursuer with something less valuable than the thing pursued; to ward off danger by offering some allurement to an enemy.

Women Held Obligated To Pay Liberation's Cost

Bachrach Photo.

Mrs. Blair Banister, Assistant U. S. Treasurer, Solves Problem by Hotel Apartment; Mrs. Emily Blair, by Skillful Servant Staff.

How can a woman with both a job and a home save herself from domestic worry? If married, what share of the household expenses should she bear? These and other problems of the career wife are discussed in the following article, the second in a series of four.

By Emma Perley Lincoln.

DISCUSSING the matter of homemaking with a number of women of achievement, it becomes evident that however emancipated a woman may be, whether musician or high official, on her falls the traditional responsibility of perfecting the setting she calls home. And on her, as in ages past, depends its success or failure.

Just how smooth a result is accomplished by women whose days and weeks and months are spent at executive desks or dashing over the earth in airplanes, trains and boats, or speechmaking and gathering material for books and articles, has as many variations as there are individuals.

Mrs. Blair Banister, Assistant Treasurer of the United States, editor, wit and one of the New Deal's most brilliant stars, reduces the housekeeping problems to the minimum by living in an apartment hotel, where complete service is available for no greater effort than a telephone message. The apparent nonchalance with which Mrs. Banister disposes of her home management is a certain indication of the highest type of executive ability.

"It may be it's because I like doing one thing at a time," she said, "but my experience proves for my own satisfaction at least that my work goes best when I have fewest outside worries and cares. Then, too, living in an apartment hotel is infinitely more economical than keeping up a house."

"Naturally, one misses the spaciousness of a house and the chance to step out in one's own garden, but apartment life has its compensations. We come home from an arduous day at the office to dine on our own little terrace 12 floors above the sounds of the city, the sparkling night pattern spread out below us, and the starry sky overhead. It gives one a feeling of escape and detachment most revivifying.

Feels That Work Comes First.

"If we decide to go to the country for the week-end, no more preparations are necessary than turning the key in the lock, with the assurance that we can return to find everything just as we left it."

Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, veteran suffragist, writer, lecturer and member of the advisory council of the National Recovery Administration, feels, above all, that for the professional woman, as for every other woman, home should come first in her calculations. She says in her own case, if her work conflicted geographically with her husband's, the work would go.

"My working has never been for the purpose of relieving an economic problem," said Mrs. Blair, "and my experience is probably identical with scores of other women. When the overhead is paid, there is little profit left, above what I would ordinarily have in the home my husband provides for me."

Money Value Underrated, She Says.

Mrs. Blair thinks women too seldom regard their time as having a money value.

"Only a woman who has had experience running a home and a business can appreciate how much money her domestic activities save her husband," she said.

"Valeting, managing accounts, shopping and marketing and generally keeping up the home, save him actual cash."

"A married woman who has a job," Mrs. Blair said emphatically, "should pay for the things which set her free to do that job."

According to Mrs. Blair, her money must be spent for paying extra helpers, for the busy woman cannot save pennies, when spending dollars means an economy of time and energy needed for her work.

For instance, Mrs. Blair's idea of house cleaning, which by the way should elicit the combined cheers of the men of all nations, is to put ten people at work for one day, rather than prolonging the agony for ten days with one pair of hands.

Cites Value of a Caterer.

Another example she cites is this. When unexpected guests come for dinner, it is better to telephone the caterer to send up an elaborate dessert to give the dinner a festive look, than to attempt to hurry to make a possible failure resulting in frayed nerves and a spoiled evening.

Mrs. Blair thinks the basic plan for housekeeping is the same whether the home is large or small. The way she is keeping house at present she says reminds her somewhat of the days when she first began writing, when one maid-of-all-work assisted her and she wrote her articles with a baby in her lap and another playing at her feet.

At that time she began by paying for a nurse for the children, in order to have more leisure for her writing, and, as her field widened and the demands from outside increased, she was obliged to pay for other servants and to devise a definite system for running the big establishment her life required.

This system included a conference with the housekeeper in the morning when plans for the day were discussed and orders given. When she came home at night, Mrs. Blair said she invariably checked over the house from top to bottom. If anything was wrong, she made notes and took them up with the housekeeper the next morning.

Paid Bonuses to Servants.

Her servants were paid a bonus after six months' conscientious service, another bonus at the end of the year, and so on. They were made to feel that they were just as important to her husband's and her own success as the secretaries at their offices.

"Much trouble in the home is avoided," said Mrs. Blair, "by rejecting the retainer attitude." Treat your servants as though they were a part of your organization, and the results will be worth the effort.

FAVORITE FOODS of FAMOUS FOLK

At Hyde Park or White House, It's Scrambled Eggs Sunday Night.

By Pattie Ellicott.

FOR MORE than 30 years President and Mrs. Roosevelt have enjoyed one favorite dish at informal Sunday night suppers whether they have been at their Hyde Park home, in their town house in New York City or in the White House. This dish is scrambled eggs and Mrs. Roosevelt always makes them herself in a chafing dish.

In common with other husbands the world around, there is no doubt that President Roosevelt thinks Mrs. Roosevelt's scrambled eggs excel all others. Those who have been privileged to attend these Sunday night informal suppers agree with the President.

Included with their personal belongings that they brought to the Executive Mansion was the familiar chafing dish that had done duty for so many years at these Sunday night impromptu feasts.

Affairs of state are laid aside on Sunday night at supper time and with a few chosen spirits, the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, their family and house guests enjoy the fun of getting their own supper as do so many American households all over the land. It is a happy custom in this country that the servants of our homes, large and small, are given a respite from their tasks on Sunday nights while the family exercises its culinary skill and longings.

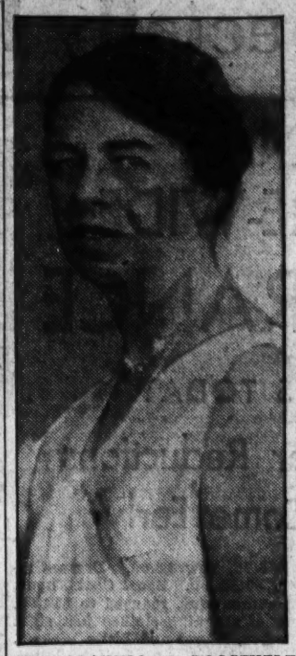
At such Sunday night suppers, what fits in better than scrambled eggs? On toast, the delicacy will be all the more appreciated and if a few crisp slices of bacon are included on the dish there will be even louder sighs of satisfaction.

There are many methods of scramblings eggs, of course, and each one, including that of the First Lady, requires a personal technique. For the benefit of newlyweds and others who have not thought of scrambled eggs as the piece de resistance for informal Sunday night suppers, here is a reliable recipe taken from "Every Woman's Cook Book," by Mrs. Charles F. Moritz.

Scrambled Eggs (in Chafing Dish).

Six eggs, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 tablespoons cold water, salt and pepper.

Beat eggs slightly, add water, salt and pepper to season. Melt butter in chafing dish (do not use pan with hot water). When butter hisses, add eggs and stir until desired consistency. Serve on toast, or serve with caviar or sardellen sandwiches.



MRS. FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT has made scrambled eggs the most outstanding White House dish.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I want to express my gratitude both to you and to "R. H.," whose letter was printed Monday, August 19, for your kind and helpful advice concerning my brother-in-law about whom I wrote you on August 16. I am proceeding first on the suggestions developed through "R. H.'s" letter, as they seem to offer greater possibilities of permanent solution of his problem—which is to find employment suited to his disability.

• • • •

I want you, Miss Haworth, to know, too, that your comments on my own and other letters during the past year have done more than anything else to help me lift myself out of a slough of despond in which I had been laboring for several years. It seems ridiculous to me, now, that I should ever have regarded my "problem" as such—so you know I really am cured! Sincerely, G. P.

All Need Encouragement.

DEAR G. P.: Needless to say, I am greatly pleased to hear that this column provided the clew which may lead to the social rehabilitation of your brother-in-law, resident of a Middle Western State, who has become temporarily dependent since losing his right arm and suffering other injuries in an automobile accident eight months ago.

• • • •

I, too, am grateful to "R. H.," whose suggestion that your brother-in-law's problem be "taken up through rehabilitation" inspired the idea of contacting the office of John C. Wright, assistant Federal commissioner for vocational education, which works with State boards of vocation education in rehabilitating disabled adults. This help, as you know, consists in training the disabled individual in a craft or profession adapted to his disability and in aiding him to find the work for which he qualifies; and I am happy to say that Commissioner Wright's office is prepared to furnish your brother-in-law full information on how to avail himself of this service.

Watchful Eye Keeps Infant Out of Harm

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

Associated Press Staff Writer.

Babies, like kittens, are best left to their own devices, and allowed to amuse themselves. There is, however, this difference. The tiny baby, and even the toddler, is not able to care for itself in an emergency as a small animal early learns to do. There is no instinct to tell it to get out of harm's way, and for many months it is incapable of moving itself from one place to another.

The baby should be trained to stay by itself and should be taken up as little as possible; but the mother must not for one minute fail in her watchfulness and care for its safety. There are frequent cases of children left in their cribs or carriages, apparently quite safe, who hours later are found smothered, or of children left alone in the house who are burned to death; or of toddlers who wander off and are drowned or run over.

A mother can never for one moment relax her vigilance where children are concerned. If she puts the child out to sleep in its carriage, she should place the carriage where she can see it as she goes about her tasks. If the child is alone in the yard or in another room, she should glance at it every so often to be sure it is not in danger.

The fertile mind of childhood is forever thinking up new enterprises, and has no knowledge of danger. The baby who cannot get about one day may have learned to crawl by the next; or, crawling one minute, may be walking a few hours later. The tiny mite who cannot turn itself over, may roll off the bed before the mother guesses that it can move.

There is no need for the child to be conscious of supervision. The less it knows of being watched, the better. The mother's care must be as pervasive and unnoticed as the air one breathes.

Ivy Adorns Bathroom.

An attractive bathroom was seen recently with white-painted walls and a floor of black and gray design. The bathtub set in an alcove, had several glass shelves on the wall at each end. Ivy vines grew in pots placed on the shelves and trailed down the walls.

Pains in Back Seldom Caused By the Kidneys

Ailment May Usually Be Traced to Arthritis or Muscles.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

THE removal of waste from the body is a highly complex process and is accomplished principally through the lungs, the skin, the intestinal tract, and the urinary tract. Each has its special function, although each will help the others in the event of an overload or a breakdown. The assistance that can be given, however, is small in comparison with the work performed by any one of the special excretory organs.

The essential job of the kidneys is to carry off waste material that accumulates from the breaking down of muscle tissue. The lungs aid in disposing of carbon dioxide from burned starches and sugars. But the kidneys are of vital importance in removing the substances that come from the oxidation of protein, chiefly creatine, urea, and uric acid.

It is perhaps fortunate that the kidneys become diseased without advising us of the fact. Changes in structure and hence functions of these organs can begin in a quiet manner and progress to a fairly serious stage before we are aware that trouble exists. The signal of pain, which we depend upon for warning in other diseases, will rarely appear unless there is some mechanical obstruction to the outflow of urine—as, for example, a stone in the kidney itself or a blocking of the ureter (the tube that leads from the kidney to the bladder).

If the kidney cells swell, they will not function. Sometimes this situation occurs when disease attacks the body and throws a large amount of toxin into the blood stream. The kidneys make a strenuous effort to remove this material, and as a result, the cells may be overloaded and disintegration may follow. Poisons produced by infections about the teeth, in the tonsils, the throat, or the sinuses, which are slowly absorbed, often prove destructive in the same manner.

Much can be done to relieve kidney load. The diet will help, and removal of focal infection and scrupulous cleanliness of the entire body are imperative. We can drink too much water just as we can eat too much food. Enough water should be taken to insure a thorough flushing of the urinary tract, but not such an amount as will engorge the blood vessels and result in swelling of the tissues. Salts can be regulated and protein will be needed, particularly if there is elimination of protein via the urine (albumin).

Sufferers from kidney disease can so readjust their lives that there will be little if any interference with average body activities. A trace of albumin in the urine of an individual past middle life need not cause concern

Cut of Decolletes Is Daringly Low On Winter Gowns

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Aug. 14.—Daring decolletes, cut in front as low as the wearer's figure would permit and dipping to the waist in the back, appeared in the winter fashion shows.

Just before the biggest houses ended their "openings," Mainbocher, the American designer, introduced them. Several of his evening gowns, however, made up in skirts what they subtracted above. Skirts were fashioned with puffed bustle backs and great fullness below.

On the other hand, Mainbocher also showed some evening gowns cut higher and some dinner frocks with high necks and long sleeves. And there were simple skirts with back fullness.

Arizona's NYA Director Is a Woman Engineer

Miss Jane Rider One of Few of Her Sex to Enter Profession.

By Dudley Harmon.

EVEN IN THESE days when careers for women include everything from torch singing to taxicab driving, it is still somewhat of a novelty to meet a woman engineer.

One of the few women in the country to enter the engineering profession is Miss Jane Rider, who is in Washington this week to attend the conference of the State directors of the National Youth Administration. She was recently appointed head of this administration's activities in Arizona. Employed by her State as an engineer, where she had charge of water works and other projects relating to sanitation, Miss Rider is one of two women to have been elected a member of the American Society of Engineers.

Plans to Make Survey.

"Although I have not yet had time to give the matter much thought," she said, "of one thing I am sure. I must first find out just how many of our young people are eligible for help under this allotment. Then I shall attempt to discover what it is youth most wants and needs in the way of gainful employment. To this end, I intend to employ as many young persons as possible in the making of an exact mathematical survey to determine the answers to these questions."

Miss Rider chose her unusual career largely by accident. "Both my father and grandfather were engineers," she explained, "and you know that once a tradition has been established in your family, there's no use in trying to fight against it.

"Seriously speaking, however, my choice of profession came about quite by chance. One morning at breakfast my father and mother were discussing what to do about my career. You see, I was something of a problem child, for books and studies up to that time had interested me not at all, and my grades at school were nothing to brag about. Rather at the end of his rope as far as my future was concerned, my father said to me half jokingly, 'Why don't you be an engineer?' To his great surprise, I replied, 'Why not?' and my future was decided from that date."

Graduated at University of Arizona.

Miss Rider obtained her degree in engineering from the University of Arizona. During her senior year in college she became interested in bacteriology, and abandoned engineering for several years to pursue her studies in this field. After several years at the University of Pennsylvania, specializing in the study of bacteria as it affects milk and water, Miss Rider found herself becoming interested in water supplies from an engineering standpoint. So she devoted herself to the practice of engineering, confining herself to problems of sanitation.

Miss Rider believes there still exists much prejudice against women in the field of engineering.

Asked whether she planned to make it easier for women to enter engineering as part of her new duties as State youth director, she replied:

"Engineering is such a crowded field, and the depression has thrown so many capable men engineers out of work, that I don't believe it is feasible to encourage women to enter it at this time. However, I hope that eventually the opportunity may present itself to smooth the path for women engineers."

Prizes Await Best Recipes For Puddings

They may be served simply chilled or as frozen desserts. Any recipe is eligible that comes under the classification of a cold pudding.

The 12 recipes selected for publication next Tuesday will be awarded the customary $1 prizes and will be entered in the final contest for the grand prizes. These are a Sunshine mix master, a G. E. Hotpoint coffee maker, and a Dominion sandwich grill offered through the courtesy of the National Electrical Supply Co.

Recipes submitted must be received not later than Saturday morning. Address all entries to Dorothea Duncan, Home Economics Editor, The Washington Post, Washington, D. C.

A simple but unusual recipe may win one of the coveted prizes. Copy that favorite pudding recipe of yours today, and mail it in time to be considered with the others.

PROMOTING a move to reduce the working schedule of guards at the District Jail, Col. Charles I. Stengle, executive assistant, A. F. G. E., appeared at the District of Columbia budget hearing yesterday. The guards are said to be working on a six and a half and seven-day week schedule, and the employe group official is supporting a five and a half or six-day week plan.

Under the proposed plan an additional appropriation of $9,000 will be asked to be used for hiring six more guards, thus reducing the working hours at the jail.

A similar move was started in the last session of Congress, but was not carried to completion.

Sirovich Bill.

The House Civil Service Committee has voted not to consider the Sirovich bill. Following a session of the committee, Chairman Robert Ramspeck, of Georgia, made the following statement:

"The committee has voted not to consider the Sirovich bill. The committee instructed the chairman to advise employe groups that as a policy, the committee felt that the omnibus method of dealing with Federal employe legislation was not the best, and that the committee would prefer for the employe groups to express their opinions separately on the different subject matter contained in the bill. This action was taken at the present time in order that the employe groups might be advised of the policy of the committee prior to the holding of their national conventions."

A. C. Edwards, BAE, has been one of the dynamic personalities behind the activity movement in the Department of Agriculture. He has aided in the formation and direction of such groups as the Athletic and Recreational Association, the Musical and Dramatic Guild, the Agriculture Exchange, and the Agriculture Credit Union.

Mr. Edwards is president of the Agriculture Branch, Lodge No. 2, N. F. F. E., and has contributed materially to the success of the medical and health committee, the rent and housing committee and the graduate school. He considers the latter his most outstanding accomplishment.

The Internal Revenue Athletic Association will sponsor a dance at Chevy Chase Lake tonight. Admission will be free to members upon presentation of membership card at the gate, W. G. Schutz, president of the association, announced. A couple will be allowed admission on one membership card.

No. 1 Man.

Somewhat inflated, the writer of a recent letter to the Bureau of Investigation made known his wants in these words:

"I wish to be equipped with a badge and all necessities of the law. Kindly send word to the local office of the Justice Department to take care of me if I come before them as I have a number of contentions with jealous people. Number my badge No. 1 as I am the first man of the land today and must have protection."

I. Podrog (F), Patent Office, and Mrs. Podrog will celebrate their silver wedding anniversary tomorrow. Their residence is at 4008 Marlboro Place northwest.

G-Woman.

A young lady now in the ninth grade has her heart set on becoming a G-Woman. In a letter to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, she wrote: "I wish to help the United States rid itself of some of the thieves and gangsters that have turned so many of this generation against law and order."

Guns on Farm Draw Damage Move in 'War'

Owner's Wife Mistook Artillery Battery for Light Unit.

Army Appoints Board to Settle Claims, Now Only $20.

By Phil Austensen.
A Staff Correspondent.

Camp Reckord, Mount Gretna, Pa., Aug. 21.—Appointment of a rent and claims board for the Third Corps of the First Field Army holding maneuvers on a more than 20-mile front in this area was announced today by Maj. Gen. Robert E. Callan, corps commander. Officers from each division will act as members of the board.

The board will investigate promptly any claim for damage caused by troops of their division or which may be brought to their attention. Gen. Callan has emphasized the necessity for obtaining the good will of neighboring farmers and land owners over whose property the troops maneuver.

It was not revealed whether appointment of the board resulted from an incident in which a battery of the 110th Field Artillery was involved yesterday.

The battery had taken position in a farm yard as part of the regimental maneuver and was preparing to return to its camp when the owner of the farm appeared and "hit the ceiling" when he found five 75 millimeter guns and four heavy trucks lumbering across his field. He demanded $20 "damages."

Thought He Meant Lights.

The commander had asked permission of the farmer's wife before locating his battery, but she said she had understood "the battery" to mean a searchlight battery.

Maryland's "Fighting First" today attacked a strongly entrenched battalion of the Fifth Infantry on Stone Hill.

The First regiment, led by Col. D. John Markey, of Frederick, moved to the scene of the "battle" in trucks, accompanied by supporting artillery batteries.

Leaving the trucks, the regiment began marching in war-time order toward the point where the first contact with the "enemy" was to be made On the way, "enemy" airplanes appeared and swooped toward the ground troops with the intention of "strafing" them. The First deployed into adjacent fields while the artillery went into action to drive off the attacking planes.

Planes and artillery cooperated with both attacking forces and defense troops.

Third Corps Ready.

Governor Plans Review

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 21 (AP).—Gov. George C. Peery, commander in chief of the National Guard of Virginia, is expected to visit the summer encampment of the Ninety-first Brigade at Virginia Beach Friday.

In honor of his coming, the day will be turned into a ceremonial day, the guard will be turned out and the Governor given a salute of 17 guns, after which he will review the brigade.

The Governor will be shown over the encampment by Brig. Gen. S. Gardner Waller, adjutant general, and members of his staff. Immediately after the parade there will be a reception on the field for the Governor.

Although there was a bank of dark clouds in the west all day, a strong breeze direct from the ocean kept skies clear above the reservation and First Infantry units moved onto the rifle range for the first day's firing since the camp opened Saturday.

Virginians See the Sun

Strasburg, Va., Aug. 21 (AP).—Sun broke through the clouds after 36 hours of heavy rain and permitted the 111th Field Artillery and the Fifty-fourth Brigade Headquarters Battery to carry out a full day's program in Powell's Fort Valley today. The training was conducted by individual batteries and the same program is arranged for tomorrow.

Beginning Friday the battalions will function for two days and on Monday the regimental problems will start.

The men were mustered for pay today and the pay rolls were immediately sent off so that the money will be available while the organizations still are in the valley section.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 21.—Members of the 111th Field Artillery, encamped at Elizabeth Furnace in Powells Fort Valley, are finding time for extra-curricular activities. Through Capt. Frank S. Pace, of Norfolk, invitations have been extended to citizens of Frederick County and Winchester to visit the camp Wednesday and Thursday evenings, when the band will give concerts. At 8 o'clock Friday the band will give a concert at Handley High School here

10-Year-Old Boy Held As Office Burglar

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 21.—Charged with robbery, a 10-year-old boy giving the name of William McClellan, of Ridgeley, W. Va., was captured early yesterday in the office of the Cessna Lumber Co. by Special Officer William H. Buley.

Buley said the boy shattered the glass panel in the office door. The boy carried a realistic toy pistol, with holster and "dummy bullets," in a belt. Police said he admitted several petty robberies of local offices and shops in recent nights. Petty cash and small articles were taken. He was held for action by the Juvenile Court.

3 Children Die With Mother As Home Burns

Father Is Held Helpless As Gasoline Blaze Takes Its Toll.

By the Associated Press.

Buckingham Court House, Va., Aug. 21.—Mrs. Thomas Land, 30, and three of her young children were burned to death in their home here yesterday when gasoline which was being used to clean a bed ignited and trapped them in a second-floor bedroom.

The anguished father, who was working on Frank H. Spencer's nearby plantation, was held back by neighbors from rushing into the blazing house, from which the charred bodies of his wife and children were taken three hours later. The children who died were Eleanor Land, 6, whose body was found clasped with that of her mother; Burnell Land, a son, and Margarette Land, 8, a daughter.

Funeral services for the mother and three children were held here at 3 p. m. today.

Mrs. Land was cleaning bedding—spraying it, one neighbor said—with gasoline which had been obtained from a nearby filling station. She or one of the children struck a match to observe the work and an explosion filled the room with flames.

"There was a flash of fire, a scream and the house was ablaze. That was all. Just one cry," a witness of the fire said.

Mrs. Millie Wheeler, the children's grandmother, and Elsie Land, 12, ran out from downstairs after Mrs. Wheeler had made an unsuccessful effort to reach those upstairs.

Request for Funds Must End Aug. 27

Money Is Running Short, State PWA Head Says.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 21.—Governmental units and public institutions have been notified by State Public Works Administrator Abel Wolman that their requests for PWA funds must be filed with his office not later than August 27.

PWA headquarters in Washington has informed the local office that money for construction work is running short and that applications can not be received indefinitely. Nine hundred million dollars was allotted to PWA projects throughout the country.

So far, requests for PWA funds filed with Wolman's office total $11,000,000, exclusive of the Baltimore city applications. This $11,000,000 in loans and grants will start projects with a total cost of $21,000,000. The Baltimore program calls for about $10,000,000 in city funds and $9,000,000 from the Federal Treasury.

Better Business Is Seen for Fall

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 21.—Retail business this fall will be "substantially better" than it was a year ago, Flint Garrison, of New York City, director general of the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, told the annual Southern Retail Merchants conference here tonight.

More than 600 persons from seven States and the District of Columbia applauded the "Better Business" speech as the conference concluded its two-day session.

The speaker based his prediction of improved trade on four points—a considerable increase in farmers' incomes, larger industrial pay rolls because of a demand for goods, a higher index of retail trade this year over 1934, and, above all, expenditure of the Roosevelt Administration's $4,800,000,000 emergency re-employment fund.

County Starts Drive Against Unlicensed Dogs

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 21.—After ordering $100 paid to farmers for sheep that have been killed by dogs during August in Washington County, the board of county commissioners today sent notices to all constables to launch a campaign against unlicensed dogs.

Farmers, who appear at almost every meeting of the board with claims, say that most of the sheep killers are German shepherd dogs and few are licensed.

Crops Rated Fair to Good In Maryland

Soaking Rain Needed, Federal and State Report Says.

Tomatoes, Corn, Tobacco Thriving; Pastures, Grasses Suffer.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 21.—Crop conditions in Maryland were reported as "fair to good" today in a survey by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with the State weather service.

Pointing out that the week ended yesterday was dry and moderately warm, with a mean temperature 4 or 5 degrees above normal, John R. Weeks, Weather Bureau statistician, asserted a soaking rain, rather than the brief showers of recent days, is needed.

Pastures and grasses, Weeks said, are "poor to fair," with the exception of Uniontown and Snow Hill districts and in the Allegany Mountain region where they were described as good.

Grain Thrashing Continues.

Cutting oats ended in the latter section during the week. At Grantsville, oats generally are tough and straw is limp. Thrashing of wheat, rye and oats continues west of Chesapeake Bay with yields "fair to excellent."

The digging of early potatoes ended on the Eastern Shore but still is in progress west of the bay. Late potatoes are in bloom in western Maryland and are beginning to bloom in the north-central section of the State.

Early corn, Weeks said, is well-eared and filling out well. Late corn is in tassel, and, except in the Allegany Mountain region, much corn is fired near the ground.

Early Tobacco Blooms.

The harvesting of early tomatoes, sugar corn, truck crops, early tree fruits, berries, cantaloupes, and watermelons continues, with late tomatoes blooming and fruiting. Sweet potatoes also are maturing, with early tobacco already bloomed and late tobacco in the process.

Harvesting of tobacco began during the week in St. Marys County.

Soy bean pods at College Park were reported 1 inch long, and soy beans are being cut at Marydel. Lack of rain has resulted in slow maturing of lespedaza and cowpeas at Faulkner.

Theft Suspect Held 'Gold Wholesaler'

Richmond, Va., Aug. 21 (AP).—An alleged burglar accused of contracting in advance with a Norfolk old-gold dealer to supply him with "1,000 pounds" of gold and silverware a week was charged by police today with taking jewelry valued at $200 from a Forest Hill home here.

The man, R. B. Williams, 49, of Shreveport, La., was arrested here Monday when he appeared at a telegraph office to receive $45 from the dealer, to whom he had shipped a quantity of silverware which M. B. Warren identified as having been stolen from his home.

Police said Williams, who posed as an aviator, was wanted in connection with several robberies in Norfolk.

J. T. Richards Regains Post On Road Board

By the Associated Press.

Elkton, Md., Aug. 21.—Joseph T. Richards, the Democrat whose dismissal by the Republican State roads commission brought on a long court battle between the Cecil County commissioners and the roads commission, was back on the job again today.

The county commissioners instituted the court fight to prevent Richards' dismissal and the Cecil County Circuit Court enjoined the State commission from dismissing him.

Richards went back to work, not as county roads supervisor, his position before his dismissal, but as supervisor of all roads of the county, both dirt roads and hard-surfaced roads. The work on both systems of roads is to be done under direction of the county roads engineer.

It is not known whether the new set-up will remove from the county commissioners their former power of recommending how Cecil County's share of the State gasoline tax fund shall be spent on dirt roads. In some quarters here it was believed that in the future the commissioners would have no voice in the matter.

The county has been receiving approximately $90,000 annually from the fund.

As Richards went back to work, it was disclosed that P. T. Harrison, a Democrat, has been transferred from his post as supervisor of State roads in Cecil County to a similar post in Washington County. His place was taken here by R. E. L. Putman, Hagerstown, who held the post to which Harrison was sent.

Putman refused to reveal his party affiliation.

Under the old set-up, the county's share of the gasoline tax fund was spent under direction of the county roads supervisor on recommendation of the county commissioners. The county roads supervisor was recommended for the post by the county board.

Under the new set-up the money will be expended under direction of the State roads engineer for the county, an official with whose appointment the county commissioners are not concerned.

It was learned in Baltimore yesterday that Joshua W. Baxley had been returned to his post as county roads supervisor for Howard County. Baxley, a Democrat, had been ousted by the State commission, but the county commissioners protested and cited the Richards case decision.

High Enrollment Expected at W. L.

Freshman Class Record, Dr. Gaines' Forecast.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Lexington, Va., Aug. 21.—Enrollment at Washington and Lee University this year will probably reach its highest peak since 1928, according to Dr. Francis P. Gaines, its president.

It is also probable, Dr. Gaines said, that the freshman class will be among the largest ever to assemble on the campus. The number of old students to reregister last spring for the coming semester was also greater than at any time since 1932.

Work on the new fireproof law building to replace Tucker Hall, burned last December, is expected to be completed by January or the beginning of the second school semester. The opening of school, annually preceeded by a freshman camp lasting a week, is scheduled for September 19.

State Probes Charges On Boy's Death

Reform School Inmate's Parents Assert He Died of Beating.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Grafton, W. Va.—An investigation was started today into the death of Neal Doss, 16, at the West Virginia Industrial School for Boys, at Pruntytown last January.

Although a death certificate, signed by a Taylor County physician, reported the boy died January 8 of spinal meningitis, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Doss, of Maxletown, Greenbrier County, and their attorney, H. L. Van Sickler, of Lewisburg, a member of the State House of Delegates, assert the lad was beaten to death.

The investigation, which is being held behind locked doors with newspapermen barred, was ordered by Gov. H. G. Kump after Delegate Van Sickler had unsuccessfully sought a probe by the State board of control, under whose jurisdiction the school operates.

The investigators are James A. Chamber, president of the control board, and J. F. Bouchelle, assistant attorney general, who examined witnesses in the presence of Van Sickler, and R. P. Bell, superintendent of the school. The testimony will not be disclosed, Bouchelle said, until after a report has been made to the Governor.

Dr. Paul Warden, of Grafton, told newspapermen after he had testified that "all he knew about the case" was that he had examined fluid said to have been extracted from Doss' back and had found "beyond doubt" that the boy was suffering from spinal meningitis. He was corroborated by Dr. R. D. Stout, school doctor.

Junior Hamilton, undertaker, who prepared the body for burial, declared that the Doss boy had a black eye and a mark on his back where fluid apparently had been extracted, but there was no other evidence of violence.

Coleman Denies Election Charges

Defeated Candidates' Claim Asserted 'Spurious.'

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 21.—A prompt and vigorous denial is being prepared by counsel for S. Bernard Coleman, Democratic nominee to the State Senate from the Twenty-seventh District, to charges filed yesterday by H. H. Walton, defeated candidate, in which it is claimed that the primary on August 6 was an "undue election" in which "false returns" showed Coleman as the winner by a majority of 14 votes in a total of 7,120 votes in the district.

Counsel for Coleman today termed the Walton charges as "spurious and scurrilous" and said at the proper time they would file an answer containing general and specific denial of the points raised by Walton. They indicated that they may also file a counter complaint setting forth alleged abuses of the election laws by Walton supporters. Coleman has ten days in which to file an answer.

Frank M. Chichester, C. O'Connor Goorlick and W. Marshall King, of this city, are counsel for Coleman.

Gov. Peery Approves University PWA Loan

Richmond, Va., Aug. 21 (AP).—The University of Virginia's application for a PWA loan and grant of $950,000 for the erection of a new library building, which would be paid for by a $20 annual levy on each student over a 30-year period today was ready to go to the Public Works office here with Gov. Peery's approval.

The loan would amount to $522,500 and the grant, $427,000, for retirement of the loan $30,216 would be set aside annually for interest and amortization. A tentative estimate of $12,284 yearly for maintenence and operating costs was said by Budget Director J. H. Bradford to be twice as much as would be needed for those items.

Impersonation of U. S. Agent In $3,000 Swindle Confessed

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 21.—Pleading guilty to charges of impersonating a Government officer, Floyd E. Lehman was held for the action of the Federal grand jury today by United States Commissioner James K. Cullen. The prisoner posed as an officer of the Internal Revenue Division and, through the impersonation, obtained $8,000 from Benjamin F. King, of Upper Marlboro.

When arraigned, Lehman, returned here from Chicago, where he had been arrested by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, told Commissioner Cullen he wanted to plead guilty and "get the thing over with."

The defendant also said that he had gone to the home of King, a laborer in the Arlington National Cemetery, stating that he was connected with the income tax bureau and had been sent to collect $5,000 income taxes which he said King owed the Government. He said he "settled" with King for $3,000.

The cemetery employe, Lehman told the commissioner, was banking all of his pay with the exception of $17 a month, and had been doing that for years. King is also the central figure in another case pending in the United States District Court. George Hewitt and Warner W. Wood are in jail awaiting trial on a charge of kidnaping the man in an effort to obtain $8,000 ransom. Both Hewitt and Wood are in jail in default of $20,000 bail on a charge of violating the Lindbergh kidnaping law.

Sleeps In a Hotel, Wakes in a Morgue

Salisbury, Md., Aug. 21 (AP).—While his brother was searching for him, W. A. Nicoll woke up this morning to find himself—in a deserted morgue.

It all began last night when Nicoll went to bed in his room at a hotel here. Nicoll walks in his sleep at times and it is believed he stepped to the roof of the hotel porch, from there to the porch of a deserted undertaking shop next door and from there into the deserted morgue.

He was still clad in pajamas when he awoke today. He called a servant from the hotel and had his clothing sent over, ending a search started by his brother, his roommate at the hotel.

Gigantic Picnic Draws Crowds From 4 States

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 21.—Thousands from Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania attended the annual Urma picnic today at Rowe's Park, on the National highway, 9 miles west of here. The picnic, sponsored each year by the United Retail Merchants Association, which operates several hundred stores handling foodstuffs, is the largest picnic in western Maryland each summer.

The picnic had its beginning in 1927 with a small gathering of merchant members of the association and their families and then attracted about 5,000 persons. Each year the attendance has been growing until last year 50,000 persons were on the grounds during the day. The association opened the picnic to the public and has brought each year prominent speakers and has presented a varied program.

The speaker at today's picnic was Representative Theodore Christianson, of Minnesota. Millard E. Tydings and Mayor Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore also were present.

A program beginning at 2 o'clock provided daylight fireworks and contests for the younger people present, while in the evening a vaudeville show was presented, followed by night fireworks.

The Junior Y. M. C. A. Band, of Hagerstown, and the Mercersburg (Pa.) and Waynesboro High School bands furnished music in the afternoon and evening.

The picnic was arranged by E. G. Hoover, chairman, and the following other committee members: W. C. Nehring, W. H. Lewis, M. L. Kaniper, P. M. Murray, L. A. Zitzman, Paul Miller, William Moore and Roy B. Mowen.

B. & O. Begins Operation of New Line Today.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 21.—Bus service between Fort George G. Meade and Jessups Station on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad will start tomorrow morning. It will be operated by the B. & O.

Establishment of the service follows a day during which the fort was without transportation service. The Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis bus service stopped at midnight last night, when the road ceased to operate. The B. & O. had not completed its arrangements sufficiently to allow the new line to be started today.

Virginia Asks Area Be Used As Public Park

High Knob Tract, Planned for Forest Reserve, Seen as Playground.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 21.—Development by the Federal Government of the High Knob Mountain area in southwest Virginia as a national park to provide a playground for the people of Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee was recommended today by the State conservation and development commission at the conclusion of a two-day meeting.

The area, which embraces 32,000 acres in Scott and Wise Counties, is now being acquired by the Federal Government as a forest reserve, and the commission's recommendation is for a public park as a substitute project. High Knob Mountain, 5,330 feet high, gives the area its name.

The commission also directed Chairman Wilbur C. Hall to investigate the advisability of purchasing additional small tracts of land at the Hungry Mother State Park near Marion and the Westmoreland State Park near Colonial Beach for road purposes.

General policies concerning fall and winter advertising directed at tourists were discussed, but the detailed program was left in charge of Hall and Richard Gilliam, executive secretary.

Gov. Peery joined the members of the commission at a dinner tonight in honor of Ernest M. Smith, executive vice president, and J. A. Brown, general manager, of the American Automobile Association, which financed production of a seven-reel travelogue of Virginia scenes, which was shown here late tonight before an audience of State officials, legislators, newspapermen and theater operators.

The picture will soon be released for showings in theaters throughout the country.

Senator Asks Base of Navy At Solomons

Latimer Starts Campaign for Development at Patuxent's Mouth.

Improving of Southern Maryland Highway Also Sought.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 21.—A campaign to interest the Navy Department in the development of the Solomons Island area as a naval base will be launched next week by State Senator James B. Latimer, of Calvert County, he said here today.

Senator Latimer said that his main interest in such development would be that it would mean the improvement of the southern Maryland boulevard to Solomons. He was in Baltimore to try to interest the State roads commission in the improvement.

Next week, he said, he will ask the Federal Bureau of Public Roads if it can do anything for the highway. He will also see Navy officials, saying that it was his impression they had Federal money available for building roads to naval reservations.

Reciting the advantages of the Solomons area at the mouth of the Patuxent, he said that it was a safe harbor, the deepest on the coast, and that it was only 75 miles from Washington. At Point Patience, he declared, it would be possible to moor a battleship to the shore, as the water is 25 feet deep only 20 feet from shore.

The total cost of building an improved road to reach the proposed development would be less than $1,000,000, he asserted.

Canneries Employ 1,600 in Salisbury

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Salisbury, Md., Aug. 21.—Wicomico County canneries are processing 40,000 bushels of tomatoes daily and giving seasonal employment to 1,600 persons, former Mayor Wade H. Insley, one of the larger plant operators, estimated today.

The 15 cents per basket paid to farmers is the lowest midseason price in the last three years, Insley said. This situation he attributed to the large quantities being hauled to the plants.

Acreage this year is above the average and the yield is good. Several farmers planted to ship green wrapped tomatoes, but the price on the fruit dropped so low that growers permitted it to ripen on the vines. This caused the canneries to begin operations more than two weeks earlier than customarily.

The demand for labor has depleted the unemployment ranks. A similar situation, it was said, exists in the nine Eastern Shore counties.

Midshipmen, With Own Orchestra, Officials and "Extras" Will Attend Premiere

Naval Academy Film Debut in D.C. Tomorrow

By Nelson B. Bell.

When the idea originally was conceived by Paramount to accord "Annapolis Farewell" its world premiere in the National Capital, this desk was appealed to by home-office executives for some novel approach in what it was reasonably anticipated would be a gala event.

With the thought in mind that the picture had been made, for the greater part, under Alexander Hall's direction at the U. S. Naval Academy, in Annapolis, Md., and had enlisted the services, in minor capacities, of some of the most charming of the Capital's younger social and official sets, the suggestion was made that the logical approach seemed to be through the Naval Academy and not any of the conventional avenues so habitually pursued in staging a typical "Hollywood premiere."

That seems to have been the plan finally decided upon by Paramount, for tomorrow night, when "Annapolis Farewell," featuring Sir Guy Standing, Richard Cromwell, Rosalind Keith and others of note, is given its official "first time on any screen," at the Warner Brothers Metropolitan Theater, preceding a regular week's engagement, beginning Friday, at the Earle, 330 midshipmen from the U. S. Naval Academy will be in attendance. Not only that, but they will bring their own orchestra with them.

Orchestra Also in Premiere.

This will be the first Washington appearance of the Naval Academy Orchestra, a newly assembled and equipped organization of 22 instrumentalists, selected from the Naval Academy Band.

Lieut. W. R. Sims will conduct the orchestra, which will be seated on the stage of the Metropolitan. The men will wear the uniforms in which they appear in the June Week hop scenes of the picture. This, by the way, is the official group of music-makers for all dances and hops at the academy.

The entire second class of midshipmen will be present at the "Annapolis Farewell" premiere. They will come to Washington in special buses in order to see the picture made in Annapolis last June in which they themselves appear.

Besides the midshipmen, tomorrow night's audience will have as guests of honor a long list of distinguished officials of the Navy Department and officers of the Navy, not to forget the local beauties who were recruited for "extra" roles in the film by the local drama desks.

In the name of this helpful and reliable family journal, thanks principally to the perspicacious Miss Helen Shafer Mark, these charming young women will include the Misses Mary Elizabeth ("Baby") Overton, daughter of Senator John Overton, of Louisiana; Jane Holt, sister of Rush D. Holt, the "baby" Senator from West Virginia, and Helen Tewksbury, popular debutante.

Lights, cameras, flags appropriate to the occasion and all the other trappings of what has come to be known as a "gala" first night will characterize the initial presentation of this picture in which Washington feels so intimate and genuine an interest.

The proposed private preview screening of "Annapolis Farewell," that was to have come off yesterday afternoon at 1:30, with the newspaper candidates for cinematic glory the guests of especial honor, was canceled at the last minute for reasons that should please the public, if not those who were so acutely disappointed. A Paramount wire advised the Warner officials who had planned the compliment to the amateur participants in the picture that by virtue of certain superior Hollywood retakes, Alex Hall, the director, deemed a newly assembled print of "Annapolis Farewell" at least 25 per cent better than those first tossed together and tentatively distributed. That should make the picture one of the best of the season, according to all advance report. The new print will not arrive in the Capital until Thursday.

Last Shots of Dead Great.

At both the Warner Brothers Metropolitan and Earle Theaters, I am advised, the only authentic newsreel shots of Wiley Post and Will Rogers on their last junket are being shown.

These are "clips" in the latest release of the Paramount News in which, in addition to the customary "background" views of both families at home, at play and in flight, bona fide pictures of the last take-off, Claire Oakpeha, the Eskimo who ran 15 miles with news of the tragedy, and the bereaved relatives awaiting the arrival of Crosson's funeral ship on home soil also are shown.

These Paramount "scoops" run rather beyond the usual length of newsreel shots, consuming something like 2 to 3 minutes, so Manager Harry E. Lohmeyer, of the Earle, tells me. Ordinary news "slips" are from three-quarters of a minute to a minute in screen length.

My attention is called to a considerable likelihood of confusion as among the talented young people appearing in the Major Bowes radio amateurs reel, opening today as chief supplementary of "Alice Adams," starring Katharine Hepburn in the title role of the Booth Tarkington story, and the personnel of the Bowes group of amateur artists coming to the stage of Loew's Fox Theater on Friday to headline the stage portion of the bill. As I understand it, the short-reel being shouted about by Manager Hardie Meakin, of RKO-Keith's, features James Brown, colored singer; the "Oklahoma Mustang," Adolphus Robinson, an 11-year-old miniature of Bill Robinson, main fellow among the tap dancers; the Morris Sisters, with their saxophones, Trap Drummer Staufer and twins Doris and Daphne; Doris Wester, who was an instant hit and now is at the Rainbow Room at the Rockefeller Center in New York; Three Hot Spots, Negro singers; Phil Liebowitz, doing "Moe Ginsberg" and the Coogan Hillbillies.

Now then, coming to the Fox stage on Friday will be Jack Squires, who officiates as Major Bowes' official gong-ringer; a Russian Quartet, Bernie Rossi, who does a "Jimmie Durante," Clarence Browning, a Richmond Hillbilly; Sol Strauss, the Polish Caruso; Vincent Mundi, a one-man band—that used to be Joe Cook's billing, remember?—the Stauffer Twins, amateur Duncan Sisters; Veronica Mimosa, whose artistry at the pianoforte commanded something like 100,000 popular votes, and two who may be the same as appear in the film. These would be Adolphus Robinson and a prize-winning saxophone trio that might turn out to be the Morris Sisters.

Anyhow, and this seems to be the main point, the two entertainments are neither duplicates nor identical carbon copies. So both should do all right!

Soviet on the Screen.

A new exhibitor organization that is pleased to be known as "The Fine-Art Film Productions" announces a two-day engagement of a "Great All-Soviet Double Feature Program" in the Murray Casino, 920 U street, today and tomorrow.

The items that are expected to whip up a lively interest in this latest of the demonstrations of the U. S. S. R. prowess in picture-making are "Broken Shoes," described as "a powerful, stirring film on the struggles and persecutions in Nazi Germany," and "China Express," modestly acclaimed a "thrilling drama of gripping events in war-torn, rebelling China."

If you care, now and again, for a little dash of sprightly news from the neighborhoods, then you should be interested to know that that controversial bit of whimsy concocted by the Messrs. Ben Hecht and Charlie MacArthur as a starring vehicle for Noel Coward on the screen will be shown on the screen at the air-cooled Tivoli Theater, Fourteenth street and Park road northwest, tomorrow and Friday. This film has "clicked" in Washington's downtown first-run beyond the measure of its success in any other metropolitan community. Now let's see what the residentials think of it.

And as long as we are whirling around, so to speak, on the Warner Brothers' "wheel," it should no longer be kept a secret that the Savoy Theater, Fourteenth and Irving streets northwest, just catty-corner as the saying goes across the Capital's "Broadway of the Bronx" from the Tivoli, is being all spruced up against the coming of a new season. That is to say, the lobby is being only partially "spruced" up. It is being refinished in walnut and spruce. The entire interior of veteran house is being modernized with new decorations, dam-

Tragedy Postponed.

Owing to the indefatigable persistence of your old friend, Jupe Pluvius, last evening's contemplated production of Master Will Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," a tragic little drama of the drug stores, by the Community Players and the National Capital Parks, was postponed until tonight.

There was fine prospect, until Jupe proved he had the greater stamina, of putting the play on regardless of intermittent showers. A last-minute decision, however, at something like 8 p. m., had the settings getting under roof and the determination definitely reached not to hazard the prospect of a first "Dempsey-Tunney," if you get the idea.

Tickets good for last night's deferred enactment of the classic love tragedy will be honored tonight—as Old Jupe will not, if he repeats!

Bureau-of-Missing-Persons Note.

So whatever became of El Brendel?

So She Did the Smart Thing!

Which is to say, if you have read the so-called "topline" over this charming new camera shot of Claudette Colbert, that "She Married the Boss." That, and this is the point of the whole thing, is the title of a new picture in which the charming feminine star of that prize-winning opus of Columbia, "It Happened One Night," soon will be seen on a Warner Brothers screen. This, incidentally, is another Columbia production, which is expected to prove as great a box-office "wallop" as her first.

Rites for Nuns, Crash Victims, Set Tomorrow

Requiem for Three Will Be Sung in Historic Holy Cross Academy.

Requiem mass for Sisters Frances Gabriel, Mary Bernard and Winifred Jean, whose lives were snuffed out late Tuesday afternoon in the automobile-bus collision which also killed instantly John McCarthy, 58, of 628 Quebec place northwest, and Miss Winifred Slavin, of Galesburg, Ill., will be sung tomorrow in historic Holy Cross Academy at 8 a. m.

Officiating at the last rites for the three Catholic nuns, two of whom—Sisters Mary Bernard and Frances Gabriel—were the daughters of Mr. McCarthy, Fourteenth street restaurateur, will be Bishop John McNamara, auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore.

Mass for Mr. McCarthy will probably be said at 10 a. m. at St. Gabriel's Catholic Church, of which he was an active member.

Burial in Mount Olivet.

Time and place for last rites for Miss Slavin, sister of Sister Winifred Jean, were not announced yesterday. Her body was to be taken to her home, in Galesburg, Ill., by her brother, J. L. Slavin, a prominent railroad official, who left for Washington as soon as he received word of the tragedy.

The three sisters will sleep side by side in death in Mount Olivet Cemetery. Not far away the body of Mr. McCarthy, who was taking the party home from a holiday outing at Annapolis, will be laid at rest.

Sister Mary Bernard, 21, was formerly Helen McCarthy. Just last week she had come from South Bend, Ind., to teach at the Blessed Sacrament School at 5841 Chevy Chase Parkway.

Sister Frances Gabriel, 24, was formerly Theresa McCarthy. She had come from St. Paul's Academy, New York.

Sister Winifred Jean, 24, had been teaching at the Blessed Sacrament School for three years.

Her lay sister, Miss Slavin, only Saturday had returned from a three-month vacation in Italy.

For more than 35 years proprietor of the restaurant bearing his name, in the 2900 block of Fourteenth street, Mr. McCarthy was active in church affairs and well known in his community. He is survived by three other daughters, Margaret, Mary and Agnes, and a son, John, jr.

Meanwhile police and officials of the Capital Transit Co., whose bus it was that demolished Mr. McCarthy's car and brought death to the five victims, launched a three-way investigation.

The coroner's inquest will be held tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. in Hyattsville Police Court, with Magistrate Louis Gundling, of Lanham, presiding. More than a score of witnesses will appear.

Curtis G. Mason, of Ballston, Va., driver of the bus, which upset after striking the automobile broadside, is at liberty under $1,000 bail pending the investigation.

Club Blames Funds Lack.

In Washington last night the Keystone Automobile Club blamed the tragic accident, in part, on Maryland's lack of funds for road improvements to eliminate crash hazards.

Officials of the organization said that at the point where the accident occurred the shoulder of the pavement off which the McCarthy sedan slid in an effort to avoid the oncoming bus is as much as "6 inches higher than the adjoining ground."

Candid Camera Shots.

Hollywood, Aug. 21.

HAROLD LLOYD is unusually polite on the set . . . Patsy Kelly is always good for laughs, on the lot as well as in the flicker . . . Jean Harlow is good to look at . . . Dolores Del Rio's maid always carries a wad of chewing gum with her and hands it out on the set to anyone who asks . . . Margaret Sullavan seldom mingles with the performers in the picture. She sits away from the scenery, reading or chatting with the hairdressers . . . Garbo seems so lonely on the set—and she doesn't seem to like it, either.

Practically every writer at Metro has the word "Private" printed on his door. Just to be different Norman Krasna has the word "Captain" printed on his . . . On Robert Riskin's desk you can always find a couple of wrapped newspapers. And when Riskin does go to his office he throws the papers into the wastebasket without unwrapping them . . . Director von Sternberg's secretary, Mickey McCarey, is about as enticing as Dietrich . . . Peter Lorre, the frightener, sends cute gifts to those he likes, and next to his monicker, he draws a picture of a bunny.

Mae West has a piano in her dressing room, and if she likes you she'll call you in to hear her practice the songs she'll sing in her next flicker, "Klondike Lou" . . . Anita Louise isn't as bashful as she appears . . . Edward Arnold gives another truly fine performance in "Diamond Jim" . . . It was a great role for an actor who needed a meal . . . Joan Crawford is now taking her poetry in French . . . The Countess de Frasso generally forgets to get clothed when she walks about her house.

• • • •

AT THE "quickie" studios they sometimes shoot a flicker in a week . . . Here the actors and actresses haven't any standing. They'll keep working until late at night until every scene in the picture, which takes place in that particular set, is filmed . . . Then the set is removed . . . They don't have retakes or added scenes . . . They do have a scenario—if you want to call it that . . . A quickie still consists of a camera and a supply of cuffs.

• • • •

William Powell often brings his lunch to the studio because he believes he has the better cook . . . Marlene Dietrich eats at Josef von Sternberg's former table at the Paramount commissary . . . Mary Pickford has taken an office at the United Artists' Studio, of which she is one of the owners . . . Dorothy Lee's real monicker is Marjorie Millsap . . . Jack Holt, the western cowboy, can really ride a horse. Hope this doesn't destroy any illusions.

• • • •

George Kelly is the shyest celebrity in Hollywood. He is never seen at any of the restaurants or night clubs where the crowds gather . . . He never visits the studios. He goes for rides in his auto, plays golf, and has just completed a new play . . . The N. B. C. broadcasting studio is within the RKO studio . . . At Metro they have a studio policeman on the main street of the studio to direct traffic . . . At the Paramount commissary the waitresses are not permitted to serve trays with food to the stars in their dressing rooms, but a restaurant across the street from the studio does.

• • • •

ONE of the earliest flickers made in Los Angeles was "Monte Cristo," with Hobart Bosworth . . . The newsreels really got started when a cameraman made some shots of soldiers marching in the Spanish-American War . . . The first motion picture shot in the cinema town is said to have been filmed in a laundry . . . Any big picture being made these days costs on the average of $10,000 a day to make . . . A day's work at the studio, consisting of eight hours, often represents only six minutes on the screen.

• • • •

Virginia Bruce's stand-in, Ann Doran, looks so much like Miss Bruce that people are always asking her if she knows John Gilbert . . . When Warner Baxter and his stand-in march down the street, autograph seekers will often rush up to the stand-in first . . . George Raft's stand-in complains more than Raft when George has had a hard day's work . . . Fredric March's stand-in is apt at taking bows for a good performance by March . . . There's the yarn about the stand-in who wouldn't stand in because he didn't like the script.

• • • •

King Vidor, when directing, always has Betty Hill on the set with him. She often coaches the players on the set, giving a good performance, too . . . Director James Whale was once a cartoonist, and so was Director Gregory La Cava . . . Director Wesley Ruggles was an actor in the Keystone Comedies . . . Director Michael Curtiz says, "In Europe, when an actor is bad, the producer lets you change him. In this country when an actor is bad they change the director."

This Morning...

With Shirley Povich

IF I were one of those chaps who took a brisk walk to the office each morning, I know what would spur my stride. The light-hearted spring in my step would not be the glow of great good health that the Y. M. C. A. posters advertise. If I swung along drinking deeply of the dawn of a new day, liking to think I was at peace with the world and eager for the tasks ahead, I fear my motives would embrace a selfish pleasure—the anticipation of the morning mail.

POVICH.

What adventures are to be found therein? In the contents of what the postman has left on the desk lie new worlds, perhaps, changing scenes, new channels of thought and a harkening to what happened yesterday or the day before. Fan mail if I'm lucky and pan mail if I'm not. In any event, fresh developments and a check, perhaps, from the Philadelphia paper long overdue. Of "Please Remit" dunning bills, there are none. They are all directed to this department's home address. Nothing, in fact, clouds the anticipation of the morning mail.

Oh, what fun it used to be! I speak now in the past tense, you notice. Because, this morning I was shaken loose from my smugness by a batch of dynamite in the form of a pan letter that has ruined the anticipation of the morning mail for me until my natural ego reasserts itself and time heals all wounds. For a couple of days, anyway, it will be with trembling fingers, at least with none of my former eagerness.

THE jolt that was handed me was from the pen of Mr. I. Brungart, 901 Massachusetts avenue northwest, who writes on the stationery of the International Association of Fire Fighters, A. F. of L. Building, Washington. It must have been a misprint. It should have read "Fire Eaters." Without the courtesy of a polite salutation, Mr. Brungart addresses this department thusly:

"Sorehead!"

"Fortunately you don't have to stay in Detroit and be annoyed by a fawning populace.

"At any rate, if I were a sports writer any time I happened to be afflicted with a bad hangover, had lost at the races, or whatever it was that ailed you on that particular day, I would write even about the weather rather than put such unwarranted, acrimonious opinions in writing. I personally can't see that they contribute much to the value of the page in which they appear. They certainly reflect a personal attitude that is not even of interest to your readers.

"(Signed) I. BRUNGART."

(A former Detroit resident who was able to be a good enough sport to root for Washington regardless.)

"P. S. And I don't like your photo, either. You don't look like a sports writer ought to look."

Comment:—Whew! All right, Miss Smithson, take a letter, please.

Mr. I. Brungart,
901 Massachusetts Ave., N. W.,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Brungart—no, Miss Smithson, make that "My Dear Mr. Brungart:" Leave my mug out of this. So you don't like it, eh? Well, now isn't that too bad? I don't know what the turn-in value on it is, but it's paid for, and anyway, I'm going to keep it just for sentiment's sake. By the way, what is the latest thing they are wearing now in mugs, Mr. Brungart? I like to keep up on these things. And since you have such definite opinions, Mr. Brungart, pray tell me: Who killed Cock Robin?

And so I don't look like a sports writer ought to look, either? Well, then, I guess there's no hope. And by the way, what should a sports writer look like? Tall, dark and handsome; short, fat and funny looking; blond, medium and devilish, or what? Would it help any if I tipped my hat to a rakish angle, Mr. Brungart, or, as you say, am I hopeless? I could stick a pencil behind my ear, perhaps. In fact, if it would help, I am peculiarly fitted to stick a baseball bat behind my ear.

And about that hangover, Mr. Brungart, sh! I didn't think you'd bring that up. Did you ever have a hangover, Mr. Brungart? Then the milk of human kindness must have curdled in your veins. We guys with hangovers must stick together. Yrs. in sport,

S. L. P.

Gallico Goes to Picking Fight Winners Again—It's Bud Baer

By Paul Gallico.

A Special Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—There have been some late developments in the Buddy Baer-Jack Doyle combination 6-round prize fight and saengerfest to be held in the Madison Square Garden bowl tomorrow evening with fair weather and no quarter promised. My scouts have informed me that at the recent physical examination of the two singer-fighters at the State commission offices, Mr. Doyle got his first look at the abdomen, shoulders and chest expansion that permits Buddy to sing as loud as he does. My scouts tell me they thought they detected signs of incipient alarm and care on Mr. Doyle's handsome face, and that I had best not be too rash in my selection of the ultimate victor.

Mr. Doyle, who once was quoted as saying that he would step right in and smash Buddy with his right, was requoted immediately after the brief commission ceremony as saying that he thought perhaps he would feel Buddy out a bit before he let him have it. That is bad news. I pick Max Baer's big kid brother.

I must say that I look forward to tomorrow night's encounter with considerable anticipation, even more so than I do those extravagantly ballyhooed championship fights. For one thing the strain is off poppa. I am not expected to turn out either an epic or a classic of the red badge of courage type, and about the most difficult thing I will have to do, I suspect, is keep track of the knock-downs.

You take along a lot of blank sheets of paper to the fight, and devote a separate sheet to each round for notes and comments and the winner of the round, but the main thing is a drawing of a square which denotes the ring, with direction rows, orienting yourself, depending on where you are sitting. Each time an athlete hits the canvas, you place a neat "X" to mark the spot where the body fell. Then you draw a line out from the "X" in the manner of marking proof, and at the end of the line, you mark the intial of the gladiator who reclined there, a RT or LT to record the hand that accomplished the fell deed, with an "S" or a "J" to record the spot struck, that is jawr or stummick, and then finally you pencil in a number from 1 to 10, depending upon the length of time the hero remained on the deck.

Tigers Win 2 To Lead by 7 Games

Crowder Beats Boston, 4-1, Yielding 4 Hits in First Game.

Outhit 6-to-11 in Second Battle, Tigers Win From Welch, 3-2.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Aug. 21.—The Detroit Tigers built their American League lead back to seven games today by defeating Boston, 4 to 1 and 3 to 2, in both games of a double-header, while the New York Yankees dropped the second game of a double bill to the St. Louis Browns.

Alvin (General) Crowder set the Red Sox down with four hits in the opening game for his fifteenth victory of the season. It was his first win over the Sox in four starts.

Elden Auker got credit for the second game, although he allowed 11 hits while John Welch was holding the Tigers to six safeties. Airtight fielding behind Auker, and timely hitting saved the game for the Tigers.

In the second game, the score was tied at two runs until the eighth, when Gehringer tripled down the first-base line and scored on Cronin's throw to retire Goslin at first.

Yanks-Browns Split Pair of Slugfests

Gehrig Hits Homer, 3 on, in 14-2 Win; Murphy Loses Finale, 14-3.

By the Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 21.—The Yankees and the Browns took turns at swinging from their heels today and divided a pair of lopsided games. The Yanks won the opener, 14 to 2, and the Browns the afterpiece, 14 to 3. The split put the Yanks seven games behind the Detroit Tigers, who beat Boston twice.

Lou Gehrig provided a pair of highlights by belting a home run in each game to bring his season's total to 21. The first came with the bases full to put the Yanks ahead and assured Lou of a new record. It was believed to be the seventeenth of his career clouted with the sacks loaded, giving him one more than Babe Ruth made that way. Gehrig, however, created some uncertainty about the feat by claiming he had hit No. 17 at Washington July 7.

Lou's second circuit swat started the Yanks off in front in the afterpiece, but Johnny Murphy blew up in the third inning, giving six runs and walking in two of them. Ivy Andrews limited the Yanks to six hits in this contest.

Nats Annex Slugfest From Chisox, 15 to 7

Special Dispatch to The Post.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—By the simple process of scoring more runs than ever Earl Whitehill could hand back to the White Sox, the Nats won a ball game today. For seven innings it was quite a battle between the Nats and Whitehill, but the Washington pitcher finally resigned himself to Washington's determination to win the game and offered no further opposition.

Whitehill found the victory virtually forced upon him in the eighth inning when the Nats stopped trifling with Pitcher Whitlow Wyatt and packed seven runs into the inning. The upshot of it all was a 15-7 victory brought about chiefly by 18 Washington hits and three Chicago errors.

They gave Whitehill a 3-0 lead in the second inning and boosted it to 4-0 in the fourth and then the Washington southpaw surrendered five runs to the Sox to find himself trailing, 5-4.

The Nats produced a counterrally that netted four more runs in the fifth inning and established Whitehill in a brand new 8-5 lead, but came the seventh and Whitehill all but wasted his margin when 152 Totals Lead Field in Delayed Amateur Golf Test at Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—After a day and a half of rainstorms, postponements and high scores, Chicago today named its district delegation of qualifiers for the National Amateur Golf Championship at Cleveland September 9 to 14, inclusive.

Jack Westland, runner-up to Francis Ouimet in the 1931 championship, and Bill Lain, club champion of the Beverly course that exacted a high toll of shots, tied for low scoring honors with 36-hole totals of 152, or 10 shots over par for the distance. Twenty qualified, together with five transfer players.

Four, who scored 157 totals, were forced to play off for three remaining places with the result that Russell Martin, a leading Chicago amateur, was eliminated. Martin qualified later, however, when it was announced that Bob Baldwin, of Chicago, who had qualified with 156, had been forced to withdraw because of business reasons.

Ruth to Vie With Aces of Links In Sept. Tourney at Hot Springs

By the Associated Press.

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Aug. 21.—Babe Ruth, whose ancient legs are too old for baseball's rigors, but spry enough to carry him around a golf course, has entered the Cascades open golf tournament to be played here September 19 to 21.

The Bambino sent in his entry from Cleveland, where he participated in the Cleveland open and will trade shots with many of the country's outstanding professionals in the fall tournament over the mountain-rimmed Cascades layout, where par 71 is a tough nut to crack.

Already in the field are such headliners as Tommy Armour, Walter Hagen, Bobby Cruickshank, Johnny Fischer, Jimmy Thomson, Harry Cooper, Dennie Shute, Henry Picard, Johnny Revolta, Ed Dudley, Bryan Nelson, Tony Manero, Abe Espinosa, Vincent Eldred, Clarence Clark, Ray Mangum, Al Houghton, Bill Mehlhorn and 50 other lesser lights.

Sam Parks, jr., the national open champion; Johnny Goodman and Paul Runyan are expected, but their entries have not yet been received. Among the amateurs invited are Bobby Riegel, of Richmond, Southern amateur champion, and Billy Howell, Virginia titlist, who won his crown at Riegel's expense this summer.

The tournament will be worth $2,500 for the 72 holes, 18 to be played each of the first two days with 36 holes for the third day.

Indians, Macks Each Take A Game

A's Blanked in Finale, 3-0, After Blasting 10-5 Victory in Opener.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 21.—Shut-out pitching by Lloyd Brown gave the Cleveland Indians a 3-to-1 victory over Philadelphia in the second game of their double-header today after the Athletics pounded four Cleveland hurlers for 13 hits to win, 10 to 5, in the first. Brown was touched for only four scattered hits in the nightcap.

Big Hal Trosky drove home two runs with a circuit clout in the first inning of the second game, and accounted for three runs by a homer in the sixth inning of the first game.

Jimmy Foxx got his twenty-sixth home run of the season in the ninth inning of the opening encounter, and Bob Johnson marked up his twenty-third in the sixth inning of the opener.

12,000 at Cumberland's Carnival Day See Hot Favorites Win

$5.60 Double Payoff Sets Record

Canteret Takes Feature Amid Acrobats and Side Shows.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Aug. 21.—There's no race track quite like Cumberland's Fairgo Park, and there's no day at the races quite like Cumberland day. It is carnival day up here in this country, where some prehistoric giant must have ploughed and sowed a crop of trees. At noon the wheels of industry, which are grinding this section back to prosperity, stop and tractors are rolled into the barn. It is Cumberland's holiday and two hours later one would find it difficult to give away a $10 bill at Baltimore and Center streets, Cumberland's Fourteenth and F.

But if Cumberland did work in the morning, it played in the afternoon—played the races. And many a dollar that has been leading a rather uneventful life found itself introduced to the mysteries of the mutuel machine.

Sardines are miles from their nearest neighbor in comparison to the way 12,000 of the good folk were packed into the 5,000 capacity park this afternoon. But it was all in good clean fun and Cumberland would be disappointed, indeed, if it had not a record crowd.

Circus in Infield.

There is more than mere racing at the track during fair week. The infield, generally given over to stable boys and would-be gate crashers at other tracks, is the scene of a circus performance. Between races the losers are entertained with everything from dog tricks to the man on the flying trapeze. In addition, there is a microphone placed on a stage opposite the grandstand where the announcements are made in homey fashion.

It was really mean that Cumberland should wait for Cumberland Day to have the shortest daily double pay-off in Maryland history, but such it was at $5.60. A pair of favorites, so hot that they almost made steam rise from the drying-out track, teamed to produce the pay-off—Keyed Up in the first race and Mazyniata in the third.

The West Virginians in the crowd had their chance to shout at the finish of the fetaure race. Canteret, trained by C. M. Feltner, one of the officials of the Charles Town track, drove to victory in the Windsor Hotel Purse, a 5-furlong test for the better sprinters. Ridden by Eddie Smith, the Washington boy, who is setting the pace for the local jockeys, Canteret came down to the wire a length in front of Scotty Don, with In High a head farther back.

Also Favorites.

Paired with Tuleyries Wand as the Wageley-Bull entry, Canteret was backed into favoritism and proved worthy thereof. Smith rated the mare off the pace set by In High, moved to the front on the back stretch and coasted to the finish.

Smith stole the day's riding show with three winners. After losing with the favored Stepee in the sixth as Rollick rolled home at a $16 mutuel, he rode Madges Fellow to victory in the final at $18.70.

The boys with big bankrolls and a willingness to take interest on their money were successful in the first race when Keyed Up, with dusky R. Booker up, bounded over the course to defeat Fairio, Irish Play and five others. Keyed Up paid a mere $3.80, but that mutuel was the calm before the storm, for the second race produced the longest pay-off of the meeting. Sammy Palumbo, the pride of Charles Town, rode Rapidup rapidly enough to win at $76.40 for a deuce. Rapidup led Sandfalon and Queens Flag, a pair of well-played horses, to the wire.

Action returned to the favorite influence for the next two events. Mazyniata, under Eddie Smith's guidance, walked the chalk line to pay $4.30, and Running Water followed suit in the fourth race at $4.20.

PATSY BEGONE, prominent from the start and hard ridden to dispose of ARMFUL, drew out steadily through the closing sixteenth. FESTOON, slow to begin, worked her way up gradually and closed with good energy through the stretch. ARMFUL displayed good speed, made a determined effort to go along with the winner, but was not good enough, weakening slightly in the last 70 yards.

GROG, under steadying restraint after obtaining a prominent position at once, responded gamely to pressure in the stretch and wore down TINKLING BROOK. The latter sent to the front in the opening sixteenth, drew clear and, rated along in front, held on well in the drive, was forced to ease back slightly inside the last sixteenth when the winner bore over. JUBILEE JIM was well placed and continued stoutly to the end.

JUDGE PEAK, $30.90.

CANCEL, away in the first flight and sent to the front soon after the start, fought it out stoutly with MAIDWELL for the lead, disposed of the latter a mile and held away to the end. CHIMNEY TOP, unable to reach the leaders during the first half-mile, came determinedly on the outside through the stretch run. JUDGE PEAK, forwardly placed all the way, continued with good energy to the end.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:17. Off at 4:19½. Winner, P. M. Pike's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TIME FLIGHT, $9.30, $4.20, $3.00; OUR MAE, $3.30, $2.60; RED WAGON, $2.90.

TIME FLIGHT, away fast, forced the pace of RED WAGON, assumed command nearing the stretch and, hard ridden at the end, held OUR MAE safe. The latter, restrained in pursuit of the early leaders, came around on the outside in the stretch, and closed stoutly under hard driving. RED WAGON went to the front in the opening strides, was unable to shake off TIME FLIGHT and weakened in the stretch run.

FIFTH RACE—One and three-sixteenth miles. The Narragansett Special. Purse, $25,000. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:54. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TOP ROW, $18.50, $3.40, $2.60; DISCOVERY, $2.40, $2.20; HOWARD, $3.20.

TOP ROW followed in nearest pursuit of the pacemaker until reaching the half-mile ground, moved up to assume a slight lead, withstood determined bids from DISCOVERY and drew out through the stretch. DISCOVERY, quickest to begin and under stout restraint while establishing the pace, went along with TOP ROW through the half-mile pole until approaching the stretch and, under punishment in the stretch turned drive, slowly moved up when called upon midway down the back stretch and was catching DISCOVERY at the end. TIME SUPPLY dropped back at the start and was never a threat. FIDELIS, away well, dropped back rounding into the back stretch.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:28. Off at 5:28½. Winner, A. C. Cumberland, Md., Aug. 21.

Dear Al:

I arrived here this afternoon just in time to see Keyed Up bring Clocker Mike his twenty-third winner in forty-three races. Of course, I didn't know Mike had been doing so well, but he was not long in showing me the cold figures. Yes, sir, the old boy has been batting over the .500 mark, some sort of a record in turf circles. I inquired around and found that Mike has been practically living at the track. I discovered the reason later, when I saw about 40 of those nickel-claw machines along Carnival Lane. Mike is smart around the race track but, like a lot of ball players, he's just a playboy off the field. I don't know how true it is, but one of the jockey agents told me that Mike gave the weight-guessing man 10 cents worth of business and he missed by 4 pounds, Mike winning a prize. After eating three hamburgers and drinking four bottles of beer, Mike went back and the weight man guessed him right on the ounce. The clocker had forgotten about losing 48 nickles in the nearby machine.

BILL.

First race.—In a Dear has made several brisk moves over this course and seems well suited despite the fact that she will draw an apprentice rider. Gets 11 pounds from Amijo, which looms as the one to beat. Anjoe would be a factor if moved into the starting field.

Second race—Furled Flag shapes up as the best thing of the day. Gets only steadying weight and is not too sternly opposed. Any price will be a good one. Bunky and Semeler to take care of the others.

Third race—Lodorous is last on the also eligible list and probably would run away with the purse if allowed to run. The prospect of an off-track suits Hogarty. The veteran is in fair shape. Mario for the minor award.

Fourth race—Dearxin seems well placed at this route. Gives away a little weight, but Clocker Mike says this one is the goods. Buntino, with an apprentice rider up, will be a keen factor. Infilee should go well on a soft course.

Fifth race—Play Cap is another formidable horse which is far down the list of also eligibles. Fit and ready, this fellow would be hard to beat should he see action. Black Dreams is just below Playcap. Of those afforded a chance to run, Whiskora and Brilliant Girl probably are best.

Seventh race—Post Brigades last was a nice effort. The top weight should not bother this fellow. Bendromel likes the track and is the one to beat. Apathy, favored by light weight, is a keen factor.

Louis-Baer Fight Is Slated for Yankee Stadium September 24

Jacobs Is Due To Reveal Plans

Detroit Bid Ignored By Promoter; Louis Is Expected Aug. 27.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Despite financial pressure that has his head swimming a little, chiefly from a guarantee of personal profit of $100,000 from Detroit, Mike Jacobs is going to announce tomorrow at noon that Joe Louis and Max Baer will fight right here in the Yankee Stadium on the night of September 24.

Fending every one off with the same astuteness that used to mark the maneuvers of Tex Rickard in the old days, Jacobs refused to put this in so many words today, but asked that all be present at the offices of the New York State Athletic Commission tomorrow to hear his announcement.

He dallied over an offer from Detroit, brought to him here by a man who said he represented the Ford Motor Co., an offer of $100,000 in cash for himself and the same for Louis and Bear if the fight were staged in Detroit and was radio broadcast by the company. This offer included a percentage of the receipts over and above $300,000 and expenses.

Mike is shadow boxing furiously, but keeping strictly apart from public announcements until tomorrow. But it can be said, on assurance so good that it would almost seem to come from Miguel himself, that all decisions have been made.

The match will be staged at the Yankee Stadium, instead of the Polo Grounds, for two reasons. One is that it involves less conflict with the baseball schedule. The other is that the American League park's capacity is bigger, around 85,000 for boxing.

Louis, in pretty good shape right now due to having fought twice since Baer last saw action, will arrive here August 27, and probably will go into training September 1. Jacobs wants him to train at Jack Dempsey's old stamping grounds at Saratoga, N. Y. Baer is already in camp at Gene Tunney's former strongnold at Speculator, N. Y., 70 miles farther into the Adirondacks.

Union Bridge Scores Over Taneytown Nine

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Taneytown, Md., Aug. 21.—Airtight hurling by Minnick, who allowed but two hits, both by Blettner, enabled Union Bridge to down Taneytown in a postponed county league game, 4 to 0. The victory moved Union Bridge into third place in the pennant race, within reach of Brunswick for the runner-up berth.

Union Bridge won in the initial inning when Bankard, first up, hit a long home run to deep right field. Two errors, a scarifice and an infield out gave the cement makers another run in the fifth frame. A blow by Nicodemus and a circuit blow by Behrens in the sixth session counted two more for Union Bridge. Taneytown loaded the bases with one out in the first inning but Minnick steadied and retired the next two batters.

Weavers Blank Athletics, 5-0, In Valley

Corkins Yields Only Five Hits as Mates Bunch Blows in Eighth.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Aug. 21.—The Weavers, recent entry in the Valley League, blanked the Athletics here today, 5 to 0, in their first meeting of the season.

Frank Corkins, formerly with the Heurich Brewers and Union Printers of Washington, was on the mound for the Weavers and was in splendid form. He issued no passes and yielded only four scattered hits.

The Weavers collected eight hits off of Warner. They registered their first run in the opening frame on two passes, an error and fielder's choice.

In the eighth they bunched three hits, one a double by Cropp, with two passes and a sacrifice, to score four runs.

Connell and Cropp led with the stick for the victors, each getting two hits, Ralph Breeden at shortstop fielded brilliantly throughout, accepting seven chances.

Fary, backstop for the Athletics, secured half of his team's hits, one a two-bagger. Haslup also contributed a double.

"Out Fishin'"

By Jack Hawley.

CAPT. HARRY WOODBURN, of Solomons Island, reports no fishing Monday or Tuesday with the elements still holding control of the situation. However, indications at this writing are very favorable; the wind has moderated and the heavy rains of the past two days are conducive to exellent fishing. Everything points toward a very good week-end, providing, of course, that a recurrence of present conditions is not in the offing.

Capt. Woodburn wishes to announce a change in phone numbers. Call Solomons 221 or 417 for your reservations. Capt. Bob Overton, of Piny Point, phones that alewives for chumming are now available at his wharf for those heading for the Middle Grounds, (S. W. or N. W.), and his boats make the trip in two hours—good time considering that St. Jeromes Creek is much closer and boats from there require but 1½ hours to make the trip in good weather.

We sincerely hope that boats out of Point Lookout and St. Jeromes Creek will follow the good example of Capt. Overton and set a few nets in the creek, as this writer observed many schools of alewives within a stone's throw of the wharf. These boatmen do not realize the injury they are doing to themselves, nor do they realize the number of requests received by this writer from anglers who desire to chum on the Middles.

Perhaps one of the most interesting attempts to assist anglers who heretofore have been unable to have the wherewithall to take in a good fishing trip at Solomons Island has been made by Capt. Woodburn. He informs this writer that his large fleet of first-class fishing boats is now available at the following rate: (Sunday and holidays excepted) passengers up to but not exceeding ten, $10 from early morning (set your own time) until the boat docks at 1 p. m. No bait is furnished. This is a real chance for all anglers to get in some good fishing at very reasonable cost and Woodburn believes that volume of business is more productive than idle boats in the forenoon.

Solomons is noted for its excellent trout (weak fish) at this time of the year and we fully agree that his rates are very reasonable for still fishing. We trust that other boatmen will follow his example and make bargain days and hours for fishing folks who surely deserve these rates. Fishing is always expensive considering the added cost of replacing equipment season after season.

Reports received as late as 4 p. m. Wednesday, from most of the better fishing grounds in the Potomac and Chesapeake can be summed up as follows: Plenty of fish in nearby waters, with cutlers waiting for a break in the weather, expected late tonight. All boatmen are unanimous in their opinion that clear weather is just ahead.

This writer has noticed that many anglers are using feathered baits that are lacking the real attraction, a spinner placed just ahead of the weighted lure. Ask your dealer to mount a spinner on your next purchase of this kind of lure. It will increase the attraction of the lure and add to your increase in strikes. The spinner is known as a "June Bug" and sells for 15 cents.

M. Franklin Kline, author and world traveler, recently returned from a two weeks' fishing trip in New Zealand, where he landed many fine trout weighing up to 22 pounds. Mr. Kline believes our chumming for bluefish the equal (pound for pound) of any other kind of sport fishing which he enjoys each year in various parts of the world. He regrets the necessity of forsaking the Chesapeake early in September for his twenty-third trip around the world, but is making frequent visits to S. W. Middles because, as he tells this writer, "I can't get enough of your bluefishing, and those big fellows are truly fine scrappers, so destructive to everything in their path. Its thrilling."

William T. Chantland, Mrs. Chantland and son, Sherman, are leaving Friday for some real sport fishing in the Gulf of Mexico. They expect to remain aboard a fishing cruiser for a week or more in company with friends from Beaumont, Tex.

Culpeper Wins, Regains Top In League

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Aug. 21.—The University of North Carolina in 1936 will play a 10-game football schedule, including New York University and Tulane, according to information obtained today.

Other teams to be met will be Tennessee, Maryland, Virginia, South Carolina, North Carolina State, Davidson, Wake Forest and Duke.

Georgia Tech and V. M. I., on this year's schedule, will not be met in 1936.

Post Mortems . . .

The prize inane remark of 1935 was made by Referee Robert E. (Muggsy) Morris while working a colored boxing bout at Griffith Stadium last Monday night . . . a fighter's cup kept slipping out of his trunks, which was the referee's cue to send him to the dressing room to have it properly fixed . . . instead, Morris kept making his handlers fix it in the ring, and the third time it happened he remarked to the boxer in exasperation, "If this happens again, I'll count you out" . . . the boxing commissioners finally sent an inspector over to handle the matter properly . . . Tony (The Barber) Burruto, the local sandlot baseball enthusiast, and a friend were filling the gas tank of Tony's car recently when Burruto lit a match to see if the tank was full . . . the car caught on fire, but neither was hurt . . . and neither was the car . . . Billy McCarney, the man who has been summoned to Max Baer's camp in Speculator to handle general press relations and help supervise the training quarters, is one of three people who can control the Livermore Lothario to any great extent . . . Jack Dempsey and Dolph Thomas, a trainer, are the other two . . . Dempsey has the greatest control over Max, McCarney comes next and Thomas, who trained him for his losing fight with Braddock, runs a poor third.

18 Nat Bingles Rout Chisox, 15 to 7

7-Run Attack in Eighth Is Decisive as Whitehill Scores Victory.

he pitched two runs back to the White Sox. When the Nats boosted Whitehill's lead to 15-7 in the eighth, there wasn't much the veteran southpaw could do about it without being suspected of treason and he held the Sox to one hit in the last two innings.

At one point in the proceedings it appeared to be a costly ball game for the Nats. Catcher Sammy Holbrook, the lone remaining veteran backstop with the team, was forced to the bench for repairs after being struck on the throwing hand by a foul tip off Piet's bat. Holbrook returned to the game, however, with little more than a finger bruise.

Joe Kuhel, Buddy Myer, Cecil Travis and Jake Powell were the chief offenders in the 18-hit attack against the three Chicago pitchers, Babe Phelps, Les Tietje and Wyatt. Each contributed three hits to the proceedings. Phelps was forced to leave the game in the Nats' three-run second inning, when he suffered an injury to his throwing hand while covering the plate after a wild pitch.

Phelps got off to a sour start in the second inning when he hit Manush with a pitched ball. Travis followed with a single, Phelps contributed a wild pitch, Travis greeted Relief Pitcher Tietje with a single and Hayes muffed Whitehill's grounder, to set the Nats up to a 3-to-0 lead.

Kuhel Hits Triple.

Kuhel's triple made it 4 to 0 in the fourth, when the Sox swung into action. After two walks, Conlan pushed a single past Kress; Sewell singled and Radcliffe tripled down the right-field line. It was 5 to 4 in favor of the Sox when Simmons followed with a triple.

Red Kress was the hero of that fifth inning, which saw the Nats take an 8-to-5 lead. After Manush's double and singles by Travis and Powell, Kress slammed a triple that scored two runners and later scored himself. Simmons' double featured the sixth when the Sox pulled up to 8 to 7, and then the Nats bestirred themselves in the eighth when Wyatt took up the pitching for the Sox.

Umpires Belabored By Fans at Mt. Airy

By the Associated Press.

Danville, Va., Aug. 21.—Dr. J. E. Taylor, president of the Bi-State Baseball League, tonight was investigating a reported mass attack made by fans at Mount Airy, N. C., on Umpires Kukendall and Cilbuka Tuesday afternoon, following a game between Mount Airy and Bassett, Va.

Fans, apparently supporters of the Mount Airy, N. C., team, resenting a ninth-inning decision of Kukendall's, approached the two umpires after the game and an altercation developed during which bats, bottles and fists were used as weapons. No one was seriously injured, though Kukendall was knocked down and pummelled, while Manager Mickey Shader and officials of the Mount Airy Club sought in vain to restore order.

Woodstock Defeats Edinburgh, 19 to 14

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Woodstock, Va., Aug. 21.—Woodstock emerged the winner in a sloppy contest at Edinburg today, 19 to 14. The slugfest was marked by almost countless errors. Irwin started for lowly Edinburg and was pounded from the hill after 7 innings of attempting to push the ball by the Woodstock batters, who collected a total of 14 hits and as many runs.

Lefty Dinges relieved the veteran, but his offerings were thought little of by the Woodstock batters, who pounded out six more hits and runs in the two innings that he hurled.

Jake Sheetz, Woodstock starter, was forced to yield to Raymond Sheetz in the first inning when he was greeted with a bombardment that granted six runs. He later tried to silence the base hits that were bouncing off the Edinburg bats and again he was sent to the showers, this time for keeps. Jim Coffman finished the game and got credit for the win. Laughlin, Woodstock catcher, was knocked out in the eighth inning, when he was hit in the head by a wild pitch of Dinges. He regained strength rapidly and finished behind the plate for the Shamrocks.

For a very good reason the English depend on Johnnie Walker in sections of the world where it gets really hot. In Egypt, India, Sumatra . . . a long, tall drink of Johnnie Walker Red Label is the answer to the hottest day.

Cool and inviting . . . there's nothing like it for refreshment. It ranks with the linen suit and the cork helmet of the tropics.

Try Johnnie Walker Red Label, yourself, this evening after work. Settle down with a long, cool, frosty highball. Sip it slowly and feel it refresh you. Take a tip from the tropics these warm days. There's no better whisky than Scotch—and no better Scotch under the sun than Johnnie Walker.

Steel Extends Its Unexpected Summer Gains

Miscellaneous Demand Offsets Drop in Auto and Plate Orders.

New York, Aug. 21.—Steel works operations and scrap prices continue to rise in one of the most unexpected upward swings in the history of the trade. Ingot output has advanced one and one-half points to 50½ per cent in its seventh consecutive weekly increase. Scrap prices, as measured by the Iron Age composite for heavy melting steel, have risen from $12.08 to $12.50 per gross ton, the highest level since the third week in April, 1934.

The recent gains in steel mill operations have been made in the face of reduced demands from the automobile industry and of tapering tin plate mill operations, previously the two outstanding supports of ingot output. Tin plate production has slumped from 85 to 78 per cent of capacity and is in line for further seasonal curtailment. Releases from the automotive industry, influenced by between-model suspensions, have dropped sharply in certain centers, notably the Cleveland-Lorain district where ingot output has fallen from 50 to 43 per cent, but are beginning to show signs of improvement elsewhere.

Minor Outlets Chief Factor.

The explanation for the sustained advance in steel production, therefore, lies among the minor and less conspicious outlets which, for want of a better term, have been labeled "miscellaneous." Part of the gain in unclassified business is directly traceable to improved farmer buying. Demand for galvanized sheets for roofing is the best that some mills have ever experienced. Wire products are moving to agricultural areas for fall consumption earlier than is usually the case. Farm equipment and tractor plants continue to operate at a high rate, the former with hardly a break for the transition from fall to spring manufacturing programs.

But a flourishing miscellaneous demand is not confined to agricultural areas. In industrial centers, likewise, orders which are small in size but imposing in the aggregate are on the increase, apparently representing an accumulation of deferred replacements necessitated by the wear and tear of the depression years.

The impressive showing of miscellaneous bookings is causing the steel industry to revise its views on the extent of recovery, when it comes. If unclassified demand can play such an important part in supporting a 50 per cent operation, what has been regarded as excess capacity should rapidly shrink with the reappearance of normal business from the heavy industries.

Cotton Spinning At 73.5% Capacity

By the Associated Press.

Active spindle hours for July totaled 5,157,527,985, or an average of 171 hours per spindle in place, compared with 5,083,383,303 and 167 for June, this year, and 5,151,979,342 and 167 for July, last year.

Power Production Highest in 5 Years

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 21.—The Associated Press adjusted weekly index of electric power production advanced 0.8 of a point last week to 102.2, a new 1935 record and the highest level since the first week of February, 1930. For the corresponding week of 1934 the index stood at 96.5, and for the week ended August 10 it was 101.4.

$9 Annual Rate Is Maintained By A. T. & T. Co.

Payments Continue to Come From Cash, Which Is Now $250,000,000.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 21.—American Telephone & Telegraph Co. directors today authorized the usual quarterly dividend of $2.25 on the capital stock, which calls for a distribution of about $42,000,000 among the company's 675,000 stockholders. The dividend is payable October 15 to stock of record September 16.

One of the few important industrial concerns to go through the depression without lowering its dividend, American Telephone has an unbroken record since 1921 of $9 annual disbursements to stockholders. In each year since 1930 the company has had to draw upon surplus to pay a part of the dividend, but in spite of this policy it had cash reserves of more than $250,000,000 at the end of 1934.

In telephone installations and earnings the trends have been upward for more than a year, but revenues, according to recently published figures, are still short of the $9 dividend requirements. For the five months ended May 31 the company's proportion of net income of the Bell system was $50,770,000, equal to $2.72 a share of capital stock, against $50,045,000 or $2.68 a share earned in the first five months of 1934.

Lead Price Advanced Second Time in 2 Days

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—St. Joseph Lead Co. has advanced the price of lead $1 a ton to a basis of 4.15 cents a pound, St. Louis, and 4.35 cents, New York. This follows a $1 a ton advance by the same producing interest yesterday. The demand was reported to be heavy.

American Smelting & Refining Co. also announced an advance of $1 a ton to a basis of 4.30 cents a pound, New York.

Stocks — Easing of legislation fears lifted stock prices into higher ground. Led by steels, farm shares, and some specialties, gains of fractions to a point predominated. A number of the steels made new 1935 highs. Favorable tone of week-end news was held largely responsible. Turnover was 1,757,380 shares.

Bonds—Steadied Federals were the main factor in a modest improvement of the corporate list. Industrials were especially firm with some new highs, while utilities were in good demand. Rails were mixed. Transfers were off to $10,588,000.

Curb—Advances of fractions to more than a point predominated at the close. Trading slackened to 318,000 shares.

Grains—Wheat climbed 2 cents, the advance being attributed to war talk, but the bullish effect of a war remaining obscure to traders. September wheat closed at 89½; September corn at 74½ and September oats at 27⅜.

Cotton—Disclosures that Secretary Wallace opposed any "gift loans" during 1935 acted as a damper on the market and last prices were 5 to 7 points lower. October last at 11.25.

Sugar—Raw firm at 3.45; refined unchanged at 5.10 for the fine granulated.

Coffee—Spot coffee was steady. Rio No. 7 at 6½ and Santos No. 4 at 8@8¼.

Safeway Stores Gain 26.4% in Year

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—Sales of Safeway Stores System for the four weeks ended August 10 amounted to $23,434,823, compared with $18,535,453 in the like period last year, an increase of 26.4 per cent. For the 32 weeks to August 10 sales were $171,077,495, against $144,033,671 last year, a gain of 18.8 per cent.

Stores in operation on August 10 totaled 3,412, compared with 3,212 on the same date last year, an increase of 6.2 per cent.

U. S. Security Purchases.

Net market purchases of Government securities for Treasury investment accounts for July amounted to $33,426,000, Secretary Morgenthau announced yesterday.

Highlights and Background Of Financial News and Trends

Steel Shares Take Favorite Trading Position in Active Deals—Government Bonds Recover. Wheat and Cotton Advance.

By Carlton A. Shively.

New York, Aug. 21.—Forward was still the word in financial markets. This time Government bonds joined the hardening process and dollars were steady. Stocks were urged forward gently in the morning, grew active enough to throw the ticker tape behind around the middle of the day, and then went through a moderate last hour that left the day's turnover under the 2,000,000-share mark. Prices were a little under the best at the close, but net gains were in the majority. Grain and cotton were higher. September wheat ended 1⅝ cents higher at 89½ cents a bushel.

Steel shares plotted the course for the market, and with the aid of the coppers, electrics and airplanes gave tone to what otherwise looked to be a dull trading affair. Motor shares also grew firm with the buoyancy of the favored groups. Steel reached a new high price for the year at 45½, and some confident buying took place in General Motors. Leading copper shares also worked into new high ground. American Telephone moved up 1½ points on its regular dividend, but trading was not stimulated.

Mail orders and farm implements were strong, and the building stocks enjoyed some revival. In addition to the airplanes, led by Boeing and Aviation Corporation, the ship building stocks grew popular. Some of the steel company preferred stocks soared. Otis Steel common was exceptionally strong at a new high. The preferred jumped about 8 points. Sloss Sheffield preferred climbed 4 or 5 points. Coca-Cola joined the active list and reached forward 3 or 4 points by early afternoon. Auburn Auto advanced easily. Public utilities generally were no better than firm.

Pegged Markets.

No great excitement prevailed in money and foreign exchanges. Banks still are on the hunt for loans, for what they can get, but corporations continue rather cautious borrowers. This month's Federal Reserve Board bulletin shows a further reduction in average interest rates charged bank customers, for New York City and the Southern and Western cities, but the rate rose slightly for Northern and Eastern cities, probably a seasonal influence.

In New York the average rate dropped in July from 2.66 to 2.61 per cent, which compares with 3.30 per cent a year ago. Southern and Western rates declined from 4.76 to 4.58 per cent, against 5.07 per cent last year. Northern and Eastern rates rose to 3.87, against 3.78 per cent in June and 4.15 per cent in July of last year.

Foreign exchanges were fairly steady. A central bank may stabilize or fix the rate of exchange for immediate delivery without regard to the futures market, which usually is uncontrolled and therefore, some believe, a more reliable indicator of political and financial conditions. The lira for 90 days delivery was at a discount of 63 points today against 55 yesterday and 30-day contracts were at a discount of 20 points against 18. The spot market remained firmly pegged at a level slightly changed from Tuesday's quotations.

Silver, also apparently pegged in London and in this market, made no change. Indian markets were closed, so the Bombay failure was not an element affecting today's market. Despite this stability the rate for Hongkong dollars weakened appreciably. Sterling and francs were almost motionless, while guilders were unsettled by vague reports of a tightening money situation in Amsterdam.

Trade Progresses.

Industrial news was favorable, and especially in steel, which helped to account for the buoyancy of the steel company shares. In reviewing the week the Iron Age says the rise in operations, now around 50 per cent of capacity, and in scrap prices is "one of the most unexpected upward swings in the history of the trade." Automotive demand has fallen, public works takings are slow and the railroads still are out of the market, but miscellaneous business from small consumers is booming, particularly from farm sources. That naturally leads to the assumption of a high operating rate later when the other three main sources of steel orders show more activity.

Electrical output continues to rise and railroad freight car loadings last week, as indicated by reports of leading carriers, were higher than for the corresponding week of last year. That was the first increase over the previous year since last spring and throws a somewhat brighter light on the industrial picture. From the standpoint of the railroad security holder the future nevertheless is not easy to predict. Earnings continue to run well below a year ago, and Congress is trying to devise additional means of increasing the expense of operation, although it has done something to hold in check the inroads of motor transportation.

Meanwhile more industrial and mercantile leaders join the group of optimistic prophets. There is no question that hope for greater business activity now is running high. That makes all the more doleful the spectacle of a Congress and an administration heaping obstacles in the path. With a newer and better deal clearing the way, this country soon would be well out of the depression. Could it have had less anxiety over the currency, less regulation, taxation, doles, bonuses and wealth-destroying acts and threats, it doubtless would have been out before now.

Rail Earnings.

The first half-dozen rail earnings reports for July show a decline of about 4 per cent in operating revenues and 40 per cent in net operating income from a year ago. The group is not large enough to be representaitve, but there is no reason to expect a reversal in direction when all reports are in. August results will depend upon the vigor of the rise in car loadings, which in the week ended August 17 were higher than last year for the first time since June 15. Western roads are making unfavorable comparisons, because of the unnatural movement of livestock and feed in 1934. Eastern roads are benefiting from replenishment of coal stocks under the threat of labor troubles a month hence.

Cotton Loan.

The cotton loan affair is as good an illustration as any of the helpfulness of Government control over markets and business. Not only is the whole business of the Government taking over the cotton surplus and keeping the price too high for good export business a mistake, but the hesitation and vacillation with regard to future loans is upsetting to markets and wearing on everyone's patience. Southern Congressmen and planters generally, it is presumed, want the 12-cent loan continued; some would like to see the loan figure jacked up to 14 or 15 cents. Certain more level headed men do not want to keep up the futile business, or at least they wish to cut the loan figure. Meanwhile President Roosevelt smiles and gives no indication of which way the cat will jump.

Giants Tame Reds To Maintain Lead

Schumacher Turns in 15th Victory Over Cincinnati.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 21.—Hal Schumacher exercised his taming "jinx" at the expense of the Reds today and beat them, 3 to 0, to enable the Giants to maintain their three-game lead over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Schumacher, who never lost to the Reds until this season, turned them back for the fifteenth time in his major league career today after a keen mound duel with Rookie Gene Schott. It was Hal's seventeenth victory of the season and he got it only after being on the wrong side of the argument for seven innings.

Welsh and McElvenny Gain in Parks Tennis

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 21.—In an extraordinary confirmation of ratings, seeded stars without exception took their places in quarter-final bracketings of the National Public Parks tennis tournament here today.

Barnard Welsh, defending men's singles champion from Washington, D. C., eliminated Max Davidson, Chicago star, 6—2, 6—3, 6—2. He is scheduled to meet eighth-seeded Maurice Bayon, of New Orleans, tomorrow. Bayon put Roy Huber, St. Paul, out of the running, 6—1, 7—5, 6—4.

Arnold Simons, Louisville, Ky., ace, who is seeded second, conquered William Hughes, Tennessee State champion from Memphis, 6—3, 4—6, 6—4, 6—2.

Charles Britzius, Minneapolis, was put out by Ralph McElvenny, of Washington. Britzius stroked gamely to the last, but finally succumbed to the Washington star's accurate placement shots, 8—6, 6—8, 6—4, 6—3. McElvenny faces Simons tomorrow.

William Schommer, of Minneapolis, repeated his triumph of several months ago when he downed Trevor Weiss, Chicago, 6—4, 6—4, 6—3. The two southpaws battled in the final of the Big Ten Conference singles championship and Schommer was victor in straight sets.

Battling Tenors Meet in Ring Tonight

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—A couple of vocally prominent young heavyweights, Jacob (Buddy) Baer, brother of Max Baer, and Jack Doyle, husband of the motion-picture actress, Judith Allen, are down for six rounds of usual fistic entertainment tomorrow night in the Madison Square Garden bowl on Long Island.

Although the Garden insists the match is part of a campaign to produce opponents for fellows like big Max, Joe Louis and Jimmy Braddock, the potential customers apparently have taken the attitude that this is the sideshow attraction to the summer's three-ring fistic circus. About 10,000 are expected.

Baer, who scales a modest 260 pounds and makes his big brother, Max, look small by comparison, has piled up a string of one-round knockouts over a list of one-round heavyweights, operating mostly in New York State and the Midwest. Doyle, imported from Ireland, has been doing the same, chiefly in New Jersey, where he is now under suspension for failure to fulfill an engagement.

Baer has only been beaten once, in a four-round decision bout with Babe Hunt. Doyle, who weighs about 205, knocked out Jack Pettifer in England for his greatest single achievement.

Both warriors sing well.

Eddie Hogan, of Waterbury, Conn., and Norman Barnett, of Newark, N. J., have been paired in one preliminary; Tony Galento, of Newark, and Willie McGee, of New York, in another, and Don Petrin, of Newark, and Bob Tow, of Washington, in still another.

Cards, Plus Diz Dean, Beat Wallowing Braves

Boston, Aug. 21 (AP).—With his mates pounding out 19 hits, Dizzy Dean beat the Braves, 13 to 3, today, to give the Cardinals the series, three games to one.

The Cardinals made only two assists, one more than the record, and Jim Collins, St. Louis first baseman, had no putouts. In the one chance he had all day, he took Fletcher's grounder in the first inning and threw to Dean, who covered the bag for the out.

Davis Cupmen Reach Doubles Semifinals

Allison, Van Ryn, Budge, Mako Are Ahead for National Title.

By the Associated Press.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 21.—The United States Davis Cup delegation to the National doubles tennis tournament at Longwood registered a pair of impressive straight-set victories today to steal a lap on their rivals by entering the semifinals.

Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn, who held the national team title back in 1931 and were runners-up to George Lott and Lester Stoefen, now gracing the professional ranks, at Philadelphia last year, gave a consistent performance, turning back Robert Bryan, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and John McDiarmid, of Fort Worth, Tex., 9—7, 6—3, 6—4.

The other internationalists, Don Budge and Gene Mako, young California stars, had a much easier task eliminating the Seattle entry, Henry Prusoff and Sam Lee, 6—2, 6—2, 6—1. The latter pair, forced to play 83 games yesterday before conquering the Anglo-American team of Malcom D. Horn and James H. Van Alen, appeared dead on their feet during all of the quarter-finals competition.

Women Qualify.

Having qualified Freda James and Kay Stammers, the all-England champions, for the semifinals yesterday, the women's division spent the day deciding that round's other occupants.

The defending titlists, Helen Jacobs and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, gained a one-sided 6—1, 6—1 win over a Brookline team, Mrs. Betty Corbiere and Mrs. Virginia Mabley. Nancy Lyle and Evelyn Dearman, who gave Britain a doubles victory in last week's Wightman Cup play at Forest Hills, advanced on a 6—3, 6—3 victory over Gracyn Wheeler, of Santa Monica Calif., and Katherine Winthrop, of Boston. Mrs. Dorothy Andrus, of Stamford, Conn., and Carolin Babcock, of Los Angeles, had to go an extra set before ousting the Anglo-American combination, Mrs. Phyllis Mudford King and Mrs. Penelope Anderson McBride, of Short Hills, N. J., 3—0, 6—2, 6—4.

On The Air Today

Eddie Cantor and Jimmy Wallington will be reunited for Cantor's new radio show this fall. It was a plain case of friendship triumphing over five years of distinguished service for NBC, according to NBC officials. Wallington and Cantor have worked together on the air since they first broadcast four years ago. When circumstances took Cantor's show from NBC to CBS both Jimmie and Eddie "felt lost."

So they decided to "get together" this season and since Cantor's new show, which starts October 6, will be aired by CBS, Wallington resigned from NBC. Having built a reputation and a "name," Jimmie will also devote some of his time to acting and serving as a master of ceremonies "on his own."

Although reluctant to see him go, NBC officials have wished the 30-year-old announcing star the best in success and have expressed the hope that some day, in the not too distant future, he will be back on the "home network."

Announcement finally has come through confirming Frank Crumit's permanent position as master-of-ceremonies for Town Hall tonight, pending Fred Allen's return from Hollywood. Uncle Jim Harkins is devoting his time to Allen's amateur vaudeville unit . . . Predictions that Eddy Duchin would never leave Hollywood without appearing in a picture were right. Duchin has been signed for a part in "Coronado," starring Leon Errol and other musical headliners.

Receipt of three more letters from volunteers for The Post's Board of Review and Criticism brings the total close to the number necessary for a working group. The latest candidates are Louis A. Banks, 2515 Thirteenth street northwest; Margaret L. King, Alexandria, and Lloyd A. Swanson, Department of State. I am impressed with the sincere tone of all letters received to date and I'm hopeful that the group will be rounded out and can meet by September 1. Four or five "volunteers" yet are needed. If interested, address your letter to Radio Editor, care of The Washington Post.

Strange as It Seems

RARELY, if ever, do you actually drink coffee. The beverage that you usually have at breakfast is more properly a tincture of coffee—the coffee itself, that is the grounds, stayed in the pot. In Turkey, however, you drink the grounds and all. The bean is pulverized, like a coco bean in chocolate, and mixed with boiling water.

Modern police systems have hidden microphones in rooms and cells so that officials can overhear what their prisoners talk about. This is more generally used to gain an unwitting admission from a suspect who believes himself to be out of earshot. Dionysius, tyrant of Syracuse, used this same system 24 centuries ago.

He had no modern equipment, but he did have a knowledge of the use of acoustics. The cave in the above drawing had the remarkable property of echoing whispered words along its walls so that they could be heard great distances away. Dionysius used it for his prison. He could sit at a certain point along the walls and hear whispered conversations of his prisoners. Unwary captives very often gave themselves away, thinking no one was near.

The ancient cave is still a marvel of acoustics. A single hand clap resounds with thunderous applause —a single spoken word sounds like the babbling of a crowd. Travelers still test the method used by Dionysius—whispered words against the cave wall can be heard 210 feet away.

Listen, I'm telling you.... don't you try to park that big stiletto in me or...

Tee hee! Poor Dominacker. But he did look so funny going through the air.
But Dictatress. Think. What this means. George striking the Mogul. That, according to law, means beheading.

Oh we can fix that by George and me getting married right away instead of next week. As my husband, he'll be above the law.

Courtney Ryley Cooper's '10,000 Public Enemies'

Chapter XXXIV.—A She-Devil Dies.

The tight-lipped old woman of crime and her lawless son, hugging their guns, watched grimly in the growing light. Then occurred one of the most daring actions in the history of the Bureau of Investigation. The lean, thin-featured inspector in charge left his place of concealment and walked straight for the door of the house.

He knocked. Ma Barker, her brown eyes glittering, a machine gun hidden behind her, slowly opened the door. The aperture was little more than a crack—enough for the inspector to see her wrinkles, her narrowed eyes, the wattles of her sagging neck.

Inspector Saved By Clever Ruse.

"Well?" she asked.

"We are Federal officers, Mrs. Barker," the inspector said. The house is surrounded. If you will come out, one by one, there will be no trouble."

The old eyes of the woman kidnaper gleamed maliciously.

"To hell with you, all of you!" she yelled, slamming the door and clawing for her machine gun. Then she called to Fred, upstairs. "Let the damned Feds have it! Shoot!"

Fred Barker obeyed. The bullets nipped at the inspector's clothing and splattered his shoes with dust. Just then a special agent, a lank, raw-boned Texan, began shooting with an automatic rifle to distract their attention and draw the fire of Fred and Ma, who now had joined her son upstairs. The ruse worked. The inspector, forgotten for an instant, sped for cover.

The Bureau of Investigation answered the challenge with a burst of machine-gun fire. Men were spotted at more than a dozen points; no demand for surrender had been made until every sharpshooter was in his place.

Her eyes streaming from the effects of tear gas, Ma Barker sat concealed at a window, peering outward at intervals in the hope that before she died she might kill a Federal man. It was vain. A burst of rifle fire tore through the walls and caught her. She fell upon her own gun, its drum all but emptied. Fred Barker at last caved and dropped with 14 bullets in his body, a superautomatic in an outstretched hand; he had exhausted the drum of his machine gun. That afternoon, Chicago papers printed rather lurid stories to the effect that Arthur Barker betrayed his mother in an attempt to save his own neck, by confessing the place of her hide-out. It was not true. The son had been silent. What had betrayed the Barkers was their own actions, a tiny shred of evidence here, another somewhere else, a scrap of paper left behind in an apartment—and the fact that "the boys" had tried to still the maddened, babbling lips of Shotgun George Zeigler.

Only Old Creepy, Volney Davis, Bill Weaver and Harry Campbell now remained at large, plus the minor satellites, such as Doc Moran and others. The Bureau of Investigation set forth anew upon the continuation of the chase, which was to have its interruptions.

Old Creepy, with his pregnant woman, had gone into hiding in southern Florida after their visit to Oklawaha. Now, with the news of the raid, they began to move, taking Harry Campbell and his radio singer with them. They were in a stolen car, the number of which was traced to Atlantic City by Florida officials, who did not know the identity of the thieves. Florida wired Atlantic City to chase down the men, who were staying at a small resort hotel. Local law-enforcement officials, not knowing the desperation of their quarry, went to the hotel unequipped for a battle against such men as Old Creepy and Campbell. The result was a fight in which Karpis and Campbell escaped, abandoning their women. The story of their flight—the kidnaping of a doctor and the events which followed—are recent and well known. The doctor was terribly frightened.

It is doubtful, however, if he was one-tenth as frightened, and certainly he was not one-hundredth as desperate as Old Creepy. A name had been fastened upon him, which in the history of the Bureau of Investigation has never failed to result in death or capture.

Public Enemy Number One.

Thus ends the cycle begun by Frank Nash of the slow grin and cunning brain, the old-time bandit with the red dust of Oklahoma on his stirrup leathers. It was a long trail from Oklahoma and 6-shooters to Florida and machine guns. Beside this beaten path of criminality were strewn an absolute minimum of 57 dead persons, including police, sheriffs and special agents killed in the line of duty, prison guards, convicts and suspected persons who committed suicide, victims of bank robbers, men condemned to death by their own gang members, and finally, the outlaws themselves, who learned, after all, that neither attorneys, hideouts, politicians nor writs of habeas corpus can exert influence upon a law-enforcement bullet.

A minimum of 41 persons have been sentenced to prison. There were about 83 awaiting trial. Only a few of these are principals; for the most part they have died by gunfire. The rest represent the feeders who allowed these men to live, to hide, to plunder. Never before have they been truly disturbed. There is a new day, however, in the realm of law enforcement. J. Edgar Hoover is keeping his word—to tear up the roots of crime.

Tragic Humor.

One man's tragedy is another man's comedy. That is as true of Bridge as it ever was of the movies. When the comedian falls down a flight of stairs or is the unwilling recipent of a facial treatment from a custard pie, the audience can be depended on for a laugh, and when two players get their signals crossed with tragic results as far as they are concerned, there is, both to the opponents and to the spectators, an element of irresistible humor involved.

Systems Crossed.

In today's hand North and South got their systems crossed. South had played with North some months before and knew he was then using the Official System. In the meantime North had shifted to the Culbertson System, but had forgotten to tell his partner. The stage is now set for our Comedy of Errors.

North, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.

2♣	Pass	2◇ (1)	2♡
3◇	Pass	3NT (2)	Pass
5NT	Pass	6◇ (3)	Dbl.
Redbl. (4)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—South, taking the two club bid to be artificial, gave the Official System response for a bust, two diamonds.

2—Compelled to keep the bidding open and unwilling to encourage partner by mentioning his own five-card club suit.

3—A sign-off in the lowest bid suit. South assumed that North's suit was actually diamonds, since he had never rebid clubs and the two club bid under the Official System might have been made with no clubs at all.

4—North, on the other hand, thought his partner was playing Culbertson too and couldn't understand how there could be a double.

The Play.

West opened the King of hearts and when North laid down the dummy it proved a shock for declarer. The shock probably influenced his play a little, for after West had cashed the Ace of hearts, allowing East to discard his lone club, he shifted to a singleton spade and South took the finesse. A low spade was returned, which West trumped, and the lead of the ten of hearts unwisely trumped with the Jack of diamonds. Dummy then played the Ace of Clubs, which East trumped, returning a third spade. Here South saw he should make sure of taking at least four tricks, so he trumped with the King of diamonds, and when West discarded his last club, four tricks was all he could make. The set was a mere 4,600 points on a hand which was a laydown for five clubs.

The Amateur Hour craze of radio will change the albums of the country. Ten years from now, when a visitor comes to the house, you will show her a picture of your Aunt Mary, her jaws distended, giving an imitation of ZaSu Pitts on Station WZQZ. Or perhaps it will be a picture of Uncle Moe, caught in an unguarded moment at Station WWOK impersonating the Four Mills Brothers. At the present rate, every family in the country will have some claim to theatrical fame via the Amateur Hours. The country's mania for writing the Great American Novel has been supplanted by a fiercer desire to imitate Crosby. Every station you tune in on offers amateur talent. I was driven home late last night by a taxicab driver who asked me if I wanted him to sing "Old Man River." Maj. Bowes and Col. Jay Flippen have something to answer for.

* * * *

At 2 a. m., Tuesday, in a Broadway night club, a long parade of radio amateurs streamed out on the floor . . . There was a colored boy who played a popular song by banging cups with a spoon; there was a lady who grunted like a pig and squealed in imitation of a hyena; there was a boy who mimicked Durante and Charlie Butterworth; there was a portly youngster who sang "Soon;" there were various and sundry others . . . All of these were bona fide amateurs, for all of them lacked the polish of professional entertainers . . . Watching them, I felt admiration for the ambitious courage that prompted them to pursue the will of the wisp that they were chasing, and I felt sympathetic, too, for the way of the radio amateur is hard and rocky, and the rewards are not in proportion to the discouragement.

* * * *

I asked one of them, a tiny little girl, Frances Iselin, what she hoped to get out of these radio amateur hours. "I got this wrist watch," she told me, exhibiting a silver timepiece. "And now and then we get theater engagements, too." It developed that the theater engagements which are tossed to these kids pay them $1.50 a performance. This is a new type of coolie labor device invented by small theaters. For $25, a small theater can assemble 15 of these radio amateurs, and by banging gongs and otherwise humiliating them, the theater gets itself an attraction which will stimulate the box office for one night. The agents who handle this coolie type of labor make 50 cents to $1.50 on each act, as much as the traffic will bear, and at the present moment, the demand is heavy, for the amateur vogue is still in full swing.

* * * *

The big amateur hours, sponsored by reputable business organizations and radio stations, treat the ambitious youngsters all right. But the offshoots of the amateur craze too often develop into rackets of cruel proportions. One youngster told me that he had won a contest in a Brooklyn theater. The first prize was a week's engagement for $25. Boiled down, this meant that for 28 performances he got $25, less than $1 a show. By the time he'd paid his subway fare and his luncheons, he owed himself $2.30 on the week. "But it was worth it," he said enthusiastically. "The experience I got was worth $1,000 to me." Despite the lad's enthusiasm, the theater gave him a pretty shoddy deal. There should be no middle ground—the amateurs, having won a contest, should get a decent wage for a week's engagement in a theater, or the contests themselves should be discontinued. Coolie labor should be taboo.

Notes: The Rudy Weisses (he's a Warner executive, she was Sonny Walters) expects Sir Stork in November . . . The Harry Content-Margaret Hawksworth Bell scooperoo caught the town flat-footed . . . Jack Rumsey will shift his Mayfair into the Pierre this fall . . . Ben Finney will stage Sunday night affairs through the winter at the Central Park Casino . . . Jack Oakie and Reginald Owen give the standout performances in "Call of the Wild" . . . If Gov. Lehman is looking for a man to head the New York State crime bureau, I can suggest two: ABC Commissioner Ed Mulrooney or Capt. Bill Raftis, commander of the pickpocket squad, one of the great detectives of the world . . . Jock Whitney handed Billy Rose a $100,000 slice of angel cake for "Jumbo" yesterday . . . Charles Levine, the chap who made that transatlantic flight, will marry Della Doris Berne as soon as the Reno courts free him . . . Teddy Bergman is 28 today . . . Abe Lyman calls Joe Louis 'the dark clout with the silver lining," but I think G. Lottman made it up . . . Rumors that Reggie Childs and Perquita Courtney are romancing are accurate . . . They'll celebrate their third wedding anniversary on the twenty-sixth . . . Paramount will give Kate Smith a chance at Marie Dressler roles.
